FATALLY INJURED

MISS MELVINA LAPIERRE.

Received From Collision With Scorching Bicyclists on Sunday Night—Edwin A. Lynde and Angus M. Sellers are the Riders Who Were on the Tandem—They State Their Side of the Case.

There is no longer any mystery concerning the identity of the two scorching bicyclists who ran into and fatally injured Miss Melvina Laplerre on the boulevard Sunday night.

They are Edwin A. Lynde, a plumber, employed by Scott & O'Day, plumbers, 542 Appleton street, and who boards at 99 Pulfer street and Angus M. Sellers, who boards at 11 Branch street.

Both young men called at the home of the injured girl last evening and disclosed their identity. They offered to do all in their power to save the life of the young woman but at first refused to give their names. Afterward however, they gave them as above.

Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, who is attending Miss Lapierre, states that she cannot recover. She has neither opened her eyes nor spoken since the accident happened but moans constantly and in her delirium struggles in such a manner that it takes three or four to hold her in bed.

When the two men called at the Lapierre residence last evening, several relatives and friends of the injured girl were present and as soon as the former made known that they were the men who had caused the accident, they were criticized severely for not having returned to the scene of the accident.

The young men in reply said that when Mr. Tobin, the young man who was in company with the women, when the accident happened, suggested that some one go for a doctor they volunteered and they claim they went with all haste to the residence of Dr. Colton, 49 Varnum avenue and asked the doctor to go to the scene of the accident.

A man whom they presumed was the doctor suggested that it would be better to call the ambulance and after hearing him call up the ambulance on the telephone they went away, feeling that they could do no more.

The night operator at the telephone exchange corroborates the statement of the two men in regard to the ambulance with the statement that there were two calls for the ambulance for the boulevard accident. The first he says came from Dr. Colton's house and later another came he thinks from the boulevard pumping station, the ambulance having gone in response to the first call before the second rang in as no one at the stable answered the call.

Lynde in telling his story to a reporter said:

"We went out to Lakeview and the Dale, Sellers going with me at my invitation, for I was tired of drifting about town, doing nothing, and I wanted company. We didn't stay a great while and we came back by way of the boulevard. It was dark and we took the right hand road down the boulevard as all cyclists and teams are supposed to do, for there are signs there saying 'Keep to the Right,' and as we got down a little distance, Sellers who was riding behind said 'Look out! There's a buggy coming.' It was safe enough to one side for we could see the dark top far enough on our right—we were coming on the left side. As soon as we passed it we saw the wheels coming dead in front of us, but it was too late to do anything, although I instinctively turned the front wheel to the right. Instantly there was a fearful crash and mixup. The head of the young lady whom we first struck took me fair over the heart and knocked me senseless for a few seconds and when I came to, I found we had also knocked the other lady (Miss Maggie McDonald) over and smashed her wheel, too.

"I don't feel that we were wholly to blame," continued Mr. Lynde. "But I only wish it had been me that was hurt instead of Miss Laplerre."

"When I swung our wheel to the right, Miss Lapierre in her excitement, turned hers to the left."

Mr. Lynde then pointed out the bent fork on the right side of Miss Lapierre's wheel to prove that this was the way the accident happened.

"If she had turned to the right instead of the left," said he, "we would have cleared all right. But she didn't and I don't want to lay any blame to her for the sad affair."

Both men offered to give themselves up to the police but the girl's father, Constable J. S. Lapierre deemed it unnecessary, as the men can be found at any time.

The police have not yet acted in the matter but owing to the serious nature of the case it is probable that the two young men will be apprehended.

BADLY INJURED

Elderly Centralville Woman Fell Down Stairs.

Bridget Rowbottom, aged 65 years, met with a bad accident at her home, 10 West Third street early this morning. About 3 o'clock she arose and started to go into another room. In the dark she mistook the door and opening a door leading to the cellar, stepped in, she fell down a flight of stairs.

She was badly injured and later was removed in the ambulance to St. John's hospital.

LOWELL DRUNKS FINED.

Lowell was largely represented in the Lawrence police court Monday. Those coming from the Spindle City had their cases disposed of as follows: Frank Henry, third offence, two months; Mary McKinley, second offense, 30 days; Thomas Eagan, John McAllister, Michael Eagan, William Tweed, Austin Gilden, James Murray and George Marshal, each fined $5 for second offense, and Owen Caffrey, John Sherlock, John O'Neil, Lawrence Ford, John Kendrick, Terrence McCarthy, Frank Boeam, Norman Roach, Henry Kennedy, Patrick Boyden, William F. Wentworth, Thomas Stimpson, John Caffrey, Edward McArdle, Dennis Clervin and Frank Johnson were fined $1 each.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE.

A good way to forget the heat is to visit Lakeview theatre this week and witness the performances of Grant and Flynn's New York Stars, which while being a "hot" show will make you forget your own troubles. The charming Mayo Sisters in their songs and dances present a breezy act, while the aerial work of the Irwins reminds us that the day of flying machines is not far distant. Murphy and Willard present a pleasing musical act and the Wilsons, real coon agitators, interpret the songs of their race in a first class manner and show the latest wrinkles in cake walking. William Fields, the tramp juggler, is a wonder in his line and the whole performance is well worth attending.

WORST BATTLE YET

Gen. Lawton Called Out His Entire Force, Which is Far Outnumbered by the Insurgents.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13.—The fighting at Las Pinas continued hotly all day long. General Lawton called out the whole force of 3,000 men and at three o'clock he was only able to push the insurgents back 500 yards to the Seapote river, where they are entrenched. The insurgents resisted desperately and aggressively. They attempted to turn the left flank of the American troops. The American loss is conservatively estimated at sixty. The battle continues and the fighting is the hardest the Americans have thus far met with in the Philippines.

A DEADLY CYCLONE

Hundreds and Perhaps Thousands Killed

The Property Loss Enormous—Fearful Visitation of the Mississippi Valley—Fire in the Ruined Buildings Adds to the Horror.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 13.—Scores of persons were killed—the number may reach into the thousands—and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed by a cyclone that swept across the Mississippi Valley east and slight north of this city last night, practically annihilating the village of New Richmond and causing great property loss also at Hudson, Wis., and at Hastings, Minn., and in the section of the country lying between.

How great has been the loss of life it is impossible to tell for the storm has interrupted communication with Hudson and New Richmond reports have come in a round-about way. One man who was at New Richmond when the storm struck has reached Stillwater, Minn.

New Richmond, a village of 2,000 inhabitants, according to his story, was razed by the storm and soon after it was in flames, the injured persons who were pinned in the wreckage being likely to die by fire. The town was crowded with people who had come from the surrounding country to attend a circus. All the hotels of the village were filled with guests.

Damage to railroads and telegraph and telephone lines is widespread. The running of trains has been interfered with and communication with points in the path of the storm has been cut off. Latest reports estimate the loss of life at New Richmond at 250 and some put the figures as high as 500.

Throughout the region of the storm crops have been destroyed. Grain has been torn out by the roots or beaten into the soil. Trees have been uprooted or snapped off like straws. Fields and roads have been flooded and sections of railroads on all lines passing through the storm section washed out.

Coming on the heels of a heavy rain storm of Sunday and Sunday night, the storm has turned every small stream tributary to the Mississippi in this section into a torrent. Bridges have been swept away and much property damaged by overflows.

J. A. Carroll, who arrived at Stillwater late last night was in New Richmond, Wis., when the tornado struck. He says the main street was wiped out and hundreds of people killed. He does not know how many, as he left soon after. The ruins of the town are burning, he says, cutting off all hope of escape for those pinned in the wreckage. Carroll escaped by a hair's breadth and was the means of saving others in the instant that was given for flight. Every place where a building stood a few hours ago in the village is now a pit of death. Carroll was in the hotel just before 6 o'clock. It had been stifling hot and the air was breathless. A dull rumble broke the stillness, increasing to a roar.

"I ran to the door of the hotel," he says, "and there was a funnel-shaped cloud bearing down upon us. The noise of its roaring was frightful. The blackness of the sky was indescribable. I shouted that a cyclone was upon us and ran for the basement. It was hardly an instant before the building was lifted from its foundations, twisted into fragments and dashed into splinters.

"The track of the storm seemed to be half a mile wide. How far it extended, I cannot tell. The storm struck us from the southwest and its onrushing was like a tidal wave. There is not a building left on its foundation in the main part of the village. Most of them are twisted and beaten to shreds.

"To add to the horror fire in the ruins followed the storm. It was night and there were no lights. There was no means left for fighting the fire. The only thing we could do was to battle for the lives we might reach before the fire cut off escape. I must have worked two hours in the debris. A train was got together to come to Stillwater for help and I came with it."

Damages to railroads, telegraph and telephone lines and crops is widespread.

Next to New Richmond, the most severe damage done by storm was at Hudson, Wis., and also at La Crosse, Wis. In the vicinity of the first named town, a tornado and cloudburst destroyed wires, haystacks, unroofed residences, barns, outbuildings all along its path.

At La Crosse, it was the worst storm known in many years, nearly five inches of rain falling. The river rose so rapidly that 400 people living in the lower portion of the city were driven from their homes. Over 100 head of live stock were drowned. Nearly every bridge in the La Crosse valley is gone.

At Mankato, Minn., six inches of rain fell. Winona, Minn., Sparta, Wis., and other towns in the adjoining territory are partly under water and much damage has been done.

Faribault, Minn., El Roy Villa, Rockton, and Tomah, also suffered severely and have the same story to tell of flooded cellars and streets, heavy damage to crops, hundreds of heads of cattle are drowned, numerous washouts on the railroads, bridges washed away and wire communication paralyzed. The killed and injured so far as known are:

Near Stockton, Minn.—Two men killed by lightning.

At New Richmond—Dead: Dr. Wade. Injured: ——— Barrett, rescued from the wreck of the Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; Dr. Epley, both legs broken; Charles McKennon, proprietor of the Nicholas Hotel; Mrs. Charles McKennon; two children of Charles McKennon, buried under wreck of Nicholas Hotel; ——— Newhall, rescued from wreck of Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; laundry girl, employed at Nicholas Hotel, fatally injured.

At Hudson, Wis.——— ——— Vollman, leg broken.

Champions Keep up the Good Work.

Pittsburg Took a Game From Cleveland.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The champion Bostons gave the giants a bad defeat here yesterday afternoon by bunching nine hits into two innings and scoring 11 runs.

The home team hit Nichols quite freely but its work was scattered through seven innings, not more than two safe ones coming in any one inning.

After Boston had scored eight runs in the third inning, with one out and two men on the bases, Colcolough relieved Carrick, and the Boston men failed to get a man around the bases thereafter. Only three hits, all singles, were made off the second pitcher, and the last 15 men at the bat for Boston went out in order.

It should have been an easy shut out for Nichols, as two men were out and the bases full when Long made a bad fumble of Gleason's grounder in the seventh, allowing two runs to cross the plate.

The playing of the teams was not so much in favor of the champions as the score might indicate. Each team got in one dozen clean drives, with a total favoring Boston two points. Each team drew three passes, and the giants reached first base 17 times, only one less than Boston.

Fourteen chances were offered the giants to send in a run from second on a safe hit and they failed. Boston lost five chances of this kind.

Boston found Carrick the most delicious morsel they have discovered this season, and were fattening up their averages in splendid style when he was sent to the stable.

Hickman and Nichols warmed up before the game. Then Nichols decided to do a little work. He was forced to let loose three or four times when a hit meant runs, and always got his man right, but the game as a whole was little more than good exercise for the old reliable.

Collins was the only Boston man who had difficult grounders to handle, and he took care of two screaming drives.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Earned runs—Boston 3. Stolen bases—Gleason, Stahl 2. Two base hits—Nichols, Gleason. Three base hit—Duffy. Double plays—Long and Tenney; Lowe, Long and Tenney; Wilson, Gleason and Doyle. First on balls, off Carrick 2, off Colcolough, off Nichols 3. Struck out—By Carrick 2, by Nichols. Passed balls—Warner, Clark. Wild pitch—Nichols. Left on bases—New York 12, Boston 2. First by errors—New York 2, Boston 2. Umpires—Lynch and Warner. Time—1h 58m. Attendance 500.

The other game played resulted as follows:

Pittsburg 5, Cleveland 3.

JOSEPH F. CONVERY, President of the Trades and Labor Councils.

Joseph Convery, who has been elected president of the Trades and Labor Council, is one of the best known and most energetic labor men of the city. Everywhere that he is known his honesty is unquestioned and his acquaintance valued. "Joe" entered upon the cause of labor a little over a year ago and since then he has done as much good service as many who have been working earnestly for years.

Mr. Convery is at present employed in the lands and buildings workshop on Broadway where he has worked for a number of years except during Supt. Varnum's term, when he was engaged by the management of Music Hall. Mr. Convery is a carpenter by trade and has few superiors at the business in Lowell. While in the employment of the lands and buildings department, he was also stage carpenter at Huntington hall. When working at Music Hall, Mr. Convery was instrumental in bringing out the organization of the theatrical machinists' union which is now in a flourishing condition.

In the preliminary organization of the machinists, Mr. Convery's labor career began. He was also immediately appointed on committees which required considerable work and time, Mr. Convery was thus brought before the laboring people who were not slow to recognize his ability and his election to the highest office in the local labor world was the result. Ex-president Shannon, who retires in favor of Mr. Convery had been chief executive since the organization of the council.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CHICAGO, June 12.—As the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific westbound express train pulled into Genesee, Ill., at 9.50 o'clock last night, three cars left the track and crashed into a stock train standing on a siding. PROF. HAUPT'S INTERVIEW.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The president has taken notice of the interview attributed to Prof. Lewis Haupt, a member of the isthmian canal commission, and published in the newspapers last Saturday to the effect that the whole project of the commission was only a scheme to delude people. Naturally, the public expression of such a view, coming from a person connected with the commission, was received with great surprise and Prof. Haupt, either has been or will be immediately called upon for a statement. If he denies the authenticity of the interview that will be regarded as sufficient. If he stands by the statements made in the interview then he must leave the commission.

A Nashua resident informs The Sun that Miss Cordelia Gerols of Perham street, Nashua, is reported missing. She is supposed to have come to Lowell Saturday. She wore a white waist, black skirt, black sailor hat and light tan shoes and carried a bible. She is said to be about 20 years of age. She may be visiting friends, however.

NEGRO CAPTURED

Who is Charged With Committing an Assault

UPON A VERY AGED WOMAN.

Sheriff Feared an Attack by a Mob.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 12.—Trembling with fear and whining like a whipped cur, apprehensive lest the vengeance of an outraged community should be visited upon his head, William Morrison, the burly negro, who Saturday fiendishly assaulted Mrs. Margaret Roberts, a white woman of Stratford, tonight shivered in a cell in the Stratford lock-up.

Outside was an armed guard detailed by Sheriff Stagg, who, despite his apparent assertions to the contrary, evidently feared that the temper of the inhabitants was such that Morrison's life was none too secure.

Sheriff Stagg and Constables Beardsley and Fryer tramped over miles of the country adjacent to Stratford during the night. About daybreak yesterday morning they found themselves in the vicinity of Greens Farms, each mounted on a bicycle.

Sheriff Stagg learned from a farmer that a negro had just been hunted off the premises and was shown the direction in which the felow went. Hastening away, the sheriff soon came across the negro sound asleep beneath an elm tree.

His coat had been folded and served as a pillow. One of his shirt sleeves was torn, his trousers were dust covered and mud-stained, evidences that he had travelled over the road and through swamps.

Having a good description of the fiend the sheriff drew close and one good look convinced him he had his man.

In a minute the fellow was handcuffed. He awoke struggling desperately. In vain did he try to free his hands. He was quickly overpowered, however, and his arms pinioned behind him.

Morrison was given a hearing here today. He pleaded guilty and was held for the Superior court in $5000 bonds. The town hall where the hearing was held was crowded and there were many threats made against the negro. Edward B. Roberts, a nephew of the victim, attempted to strike the negro, but was prevented and for a while the highest excitement prevailed.

Mrs. Roberts, who is 71 years old, though still weak and suffering from shock, was present in court.

THREATENED BY FIRE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal June 12.—The lighthouse and buildings of the new United States Training station on Goat Island was threatened by fire last night. In some unknown manner, the dry grass and shrubs which cover the greater portion of the island, became ignited and fanned by a strong breeze the flames spread with great rapidity. A large force of men turned out to fight the fire and with much exertion got it under control before any serious damage was done.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

FAIR HAVEN, Vt., June 12.—The bodies of Mrs. John Quinn and her 12-year-old son, John, were found in the river at Eagle Bridge, N. Y., this forenoon. From the appearance of the bodies it is believed that they had been in the water since yesterday. The lad, who was subject to fainting fits, went fishing Sunday, and it is supposed he fell into the river. It is though Mrs. Quinn attempted to rescue the body and thus lost her life.

BADLY INJURED

John Lofegren Jumped From Burning Building

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 12.—John Lofgren, an occupant of a Tremont street boarding house, jumped from a fourth story window into a life net today during a fire and sustained serious if not fatal injuries. Lofgren was asleep when the fire started and on awakening found all exits blocked by the flames. He shouted for help from a window and the firemen held a life net. After considerable hesitation, the man jumped. His body turned in the descent and shot head first into the net. He fell with such force that the net parted and the man struck the sidewalk. He was taken up unconscious and was removed to the hospital where his case was found to be critical. The fire caused a loss of about $1500.

ANOTHER STRIKE

Freight Handlers Refuse to go to Work.

THE NON-UNION WENT AWAY.

Because Union Men Made the Demand

ONLY A FEW MEN AT WORK.

Labor Leaders Oppose the Strike.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 12.—In obedience to the order Sadopted at yesterday's meeting to strike in sympathy with the men already out at the Erie and Lackawanna docks, the freight handlers (housemen) at the New York, Central, Lehigh Valley, Wabash and Great Northern docks did not report for duty this morning. At the Anchor line docks, 60 union men reported for work, but found ten non-union men there. They refused to work with them and the non-union men were sent away. The union men then went to work. At the Lehigh docks a few men were at work. The outside men have been forced into idleness by the strike of the house men and consequently there is very little work being done at the docks. The present strike is opposed by many labor leaders.

NEGRO LYNCHED

By a Mob of Five Hundred Negroes

HE COMMITTED A MOST ATROCIOUS CRIME.

White People Know Nothing of Lynching.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

SARDIA, Miss., June 12.—Simon Brooks, colored, was taken by a mob of 500 negroes from the jail here sometime between midnight and dawn Sunday, and lynched. The crime for which he was hanged was most atrocious. Saturday night a negress named Armistead, while returning rom a shopping tour to her home, was assaulted by Brooks and another negro. The woman was outraged, her throat was cut, and she was severely beaten about the head, and her jaws were tied to prevent breathing. Her body was then concealed in rubbish. The woman rallied sufficiently to give the alarm and the names of her assailants. Part of the goods taken from the woman was later found in a trunk belonging to Brooks. The mob which was composed entirely of negroes, did its work quietly. The white people knew nothing of the affair until hours after it occurred.

A HORRIBLE FIND

Another Portion of a Man's Body Found.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Another section of a man's dismembered and mutilated body was found today in the upper bay. It was that part between a line drawn around the middle of the chest and one encircling the head at the bridge of the nose. The top of the skull, including the right ear, is cut off. The left ear is intact. The right arm is missing, severed at the shoulder. The left arm and hand, however, are attached. The eyes are missing but the face from the nose downward is uninjured. The man had a sandy moustache.

The remains found today fit exactly the portion of a body picked up near the Narrows on Saturday last.

The Lowell cricket representatives shared the honors with its out of town opponents on Saturday, the Mohairs and Zions winning and the Buntings tying with Lawrence.

The Mohairs formally opened their new grounds on Chelmsford street with a victory over the crack East Boston team by a score of 56 to 32. Hird took 4 wickets for 15 runs and Aveyard 5 wickets for 16 runs. Shuttleworth and Stirks made two brilliant catches which were warmly applauded.

The Zion cricket club at last broke their record of defeats at Lawrence, administering a drubbing to the St. John's second eleven by a score of 67 to 41.

The best game was played on the Wigginville grounds between the U. S. B. C. C. and the Lawrence team which ended in a draw.

THE MOLINEUX CASE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The arguments in the writs of prohibition, habeas corpus and certiorari in the Molineux case, were postponed today until Wednesday. The reason for the delay was that the writs had not been served on Magistrate Jerome of special sessions on Saturday, owing to his being out of town.

FIRST YACHT RACE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

POINT CLAIRE, Que., June 12.—The first yacht race of the series for a special cup presented by James Ross, between the Dominion of the Royal St. Lawrence club, the "Freak," which won the Sewanhaka cup last year, and the Yankee of the White Bear club, of St. Paul, Minn., was scheduled for this morning. The early morning was fine with a strong bright sunshine, but up to noon there was hardly a breath of air blowing. Mr. Duggan, the designer and captain of the Dominion, wore a confident air. The St. Paul men say they will sail the races for all there is in their boat until the superiority of the boats is decided. The boats started off heading for the south shore. Dominion is leading.

FREE SILVER AND "TRUSTS."

CHICAGO, June 12.—The Times-Herald has been asking members of the National democratic committee what should be their party's battle cry in 1900, whether "Free Silver" or "Down With the Trusts," or both.

While only one of the replies of these democratic leaders, the representative for Maine, the home state of Mr. Bryan's running mate in 1896, says: "Drop free silver," they are all unanimous in giving the trust question prominence it has never before had in the platform of their own or other party.

TOM BAKER, leader of the Baker Faction, was shot dead by one of the Howard followers while in charge of an armed escort of state troops. He makes the sixth victim of the deadly Baker-Howard feud which has become so notorious in Kentucky.

THE SIXTH VICTIM

In the Baker Feud at Manchester Ky.

DEE BAKER SHOT BY AN UNKNOWN PERSON.

Mrs. Baker to Train Her Sons for Revenge.

SAD OUTCOME OF OLD FACTIONAL STRIFE.

The Troops Called to Quell the Disturbance.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANCHESTER, Ky., June 13.—Tom Baker, the leader of the Baker faction, was killed last night. He is the sixth victim of the Baker-Howard feud.

As he was leaving the guard tent, near the court house last evening a puff of smoke was seen at the window of Sheriff White's residence, the report of a rifle followed, and Tom Baker fell into his wife's arms crying, "Oh, my God! They have killed me!" A moment later he was dead.

Several companies of state militia, which have been on guard here for a week were busy making ready to march to Barboursville with the indicted men, Colonel Williams intending to start early this morning.

With Tom Baker, when he was killed, were his wife, who is soon to be a mother, his brothers Al and Dee, and his son Jim. They were about sixty yards from the residence of Bev. P. White, the sheriff of Clay county, and brother to Will White, who was killed by Tom Baker.

Colonel Williams ordered the assembly sounded. In less time than it takes to tell every soldier was in his place, and a line was thrown across the front of the court house yard. Captain Longmire brought out his Gatling gun, a hundred cartridges were thrown into the hopper and it was ready for the attack.

Colonel Williams gave orders to charge the White residence, and the boys, with bayonets fixed, went forward at double-quick, scaling the yard fence.

Before the soldiers reached the house Sheriff White at the head of 30 men, all armed with pistols, came out to dispute the way. The soldiers halted.

Col. Williams' next order, "Charge!" caused the Howards and Whites to flee into the house. Thence they loudly threatened to shoot any man who tried to enter.

"Bring up the Gatling," ordered Colonel Williams, and that powerful persuader was trained on the house. It had a quieting effect on the men inside. After a very brief parley they surrendered. Sheriff White was arrested for resisting the guards.

Dee Baker begged the guards to give him a gun, so he could kill Bev White and Jim Baker cried for his gun. Jim swore he would kill Bev White if it took a lifetime.

There is much doubt as to who killed Tom Baker. A bystander said he saw the figure of a man to him unknown, on the porch of the White house a few seconds before the shot was fired.

In less than fifteen minutes after the shooting every business house in town was closed, and women fled to the hills. The mountaineers had made many threats as to what they would do to the troops if the latter ever fired on them. Hundreds of armed men were scattered through the streets.

The best marksmen were detailed to shoot down the soldiers who composed the Gatling gun squad. These mountaineers are armed with Winchesters and all are crack shots. The soldiers realize that little is needed to bring on a battle.

JURY DISAGREED

In the McKenzie-Lougest Case

AFTER BEING OUT ALL NIGHT.

The Claim Was for $50,000 Damages

FOR ALIENATION OF WIFE'S AFFECTION

Plaintiff Was Once a Lowell Coachman.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 13.—All night the jury having in charge the case for alleged alienation of affection, brought by Murdoch McKenzie against Dr. and Mrs. Lougest, was out. It had been instructed on retirement yesterday afternoon to bring in a sealed verdict.

The hearing of evidence was resumed yesterday morning before Judge Sherman. Mrs. Lougest, mother of Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, told in reply to the questions of Counsel Innis how she and Dr. Lougest had commenced to be suspicious of Nellie because of her actions, and they were going to call in a physician, but she left the house.

She also repeated in detail the incidents attending the visit of herself and her husband to Lowell when they received a letter from Nellie and the circumstances in connection with Nellie's return with them.

Dr. C. A. Lougest, the defendant, testified in reply to Mr. Innis, how he came to employ Murdock McKenzie as a farmhand and how McKenzie used to drive the family from the farm to the railroad station, a distance of two or three miles. Coming down to the time that Nellie left home and went to Lowell, the witness said that when he decided to go to Lowell he declared that if Nellie and McKenzie were married, she should never darken his door again, but if they were not married he would forgive Nellie and take her home.

"What was your object?" asked Dr. Lougest's counsel.

"My object was to stop the marriage, if possible," replied the witness.

The witness told of himself and his wife, Nellie's mother, going to Lowell, and visiting Dr. Jefferson and inquiring for Nellie. They then went to McKenzie's boarding house. "I rang the bell," he continued, "and Nellie came to the door at once. She begged me to forgive her and to take her home."

"Did you believe her to be married at the time?"

"I did not, sir."

The witness continued to say that in the cab on the way to the railroad station in Lowell there was no conversation on his part. Nellie sat with her head on her mother's shoulder and cried.

Next morning, he said, Nellie came downstairs at his house on Columbus avenue, with a letter in her hand addressed to "Mrs. Nellie McKenzie" and witness told her that if she and McKenzie were married, she had better go and live with him. She answered, asking him not to send her away, saying, "I would rather be in my grave than with that man."

Dr. Lougest, in reply to specific questions, denied that he had threatened to shoot McKenzie or had made any attempt to prevent McKenzie from visiting his wife at witness's house. In cross-examination by Counsel Daggett, for McKenzie, Dr. Lougest denied that he ever had a woman employed in the case endeavoring to get evidence against McKenzie.

MRS. McKENZIE'S STORY.

Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, wife of Murdoch, was then called to the witness stand. She is a trimly built little woman, with jet black hair. She said she is now 22 years old and is a daughter of Mrs. Lougest, the doctor himself being her stepfather.

"What were the relations between your father and mother and yourself?" asked Mr. Innis.

"Oh, the relations between pa and ma and myself were always most friendly."

"How did you become acquainted with Murdock McKenzie?"

"He used to drive me back and forth to the depot from the farm at Franklin a distance of about three miles. About a month or so after he became acquainted with me he told that he loved me dearly and more talk of that kind so I listened to it all and finally I got to like him somewhat, too."

"Did you kiss each other?"

"No, I did not."

"Was this concealed from your parents?"

"It was."

Mrs. McKenzie then went on to say that the relations between Murdoch and herself grew more affectionate between November and December, 1895. One day she was in the dining room of the house and Murdoch came to the door and asked, "May I come in?" She answered that he might if he wished.

"He began to speak love to me," continued Nellie, "and pulled a bottle out of his pocket. After some persuasion I took a drink from him.'

"He told me I was the only woman he ever loved," continued Nellie.

JURY DISAGREED.

BOSTON, June 13.—The jury in the case of Murdoch McKenzie vs. Dr. Lougest for the alleged alienation of the affections of plaintiff's wife, Nellie McKenzie, the defendant's stepdaughter, which went out yesterday afternoon today reported that they could not agree.

THE AMERICA

IS AS STAUNCH A CRAFT AS OF YORE.

Lieut. Col. Butler Ames has had the famous old yacht America thoroughly overhauled.

Since the famous yacht came out of Simpson's dry dock, eight days ago, and made her berth at the National dock, East Boston, she has been viewed by hundreds of people. Skipper William H. Canning has been kept busy answering questions.

Lieut. Col. Ames and Capt. Canning have superintended the thorough overhauling of the America and believe that she is faster than ever.

While having a great fondness for yachting, Mr. Ames says that business this summer will prevent him from spending as much time as he would like to aboard the boat. It is his intention, anyway, to see the international yacht race. Of course he is intensely American and all his hopes are in the Columbia. He has a new mainsail for his craft and with this spread of canvas, he hopes to keep within seeing distance of the Columbia and Shamrock.

In her new suit of canvas, her glittering coat of white paint and her brass rails and ornaments shining in the sun, and beautiful contour of her hull above the water-line, the America looks very handsome.

Capt. Canning has been the skipper of the America for over 20 years.

LABOR MATTERS

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

The Striking Shoemakers of Marlboro Are In Need of Assistance.

The Central Labor union of Boston has issued the following, addressed to all organized labor and sympathizers:

The undersigned, a committee authorized by the Central Labor union of Boston to solicit aid for the support of the strike now in progress at Marlboro, Mass., appeals for your sympathy and support. Ten local unions of shoe workers, numbering 3,000, have been on strike for the past 21 weeks, defending the right to maintain their organizations.

The employers seek to establish what they call "free shops," properly called slave pens, and insist that they treat only with individuals.

Two of the employers (Mr. Rice and Mr. Howe), at a banquet held in Boston Nov. 21, declared it to be their intention to "smash the American Federation of Labor," and likened the unions unto the Kuklux of the south.

We are led to appeal to you at this time in the hope that you will assist the men and women who are making one of the most, if not the most, heroic struggles in defense of the rights of organized labor ever made in this country, and that we may awaken your interest to the extent that you will contribute at least a sum equal to 2 cents or more per member per month from your union while the strike continues.

The strikers are so enthusiastic and confident of their ultimate success that it would be the rankest shame if organized labor failed to appreciate the sacrifices now being made by these noble men and women who are defending a principle most dear to every true trade unionist.

If you can possibly rake up a few dollars which can be contributed to this worthy cause, then do so quickly, and send returns to D. D. Driscoll, 987 Washington street, Boston.

Do not be deceived by any article that may appear in the press stating that the strike in Marlboro is settled. That is but a part of the scheme of the manufacturers to defeat the strike.

"JACK ARMSTRONG."

His "Book of the Wanderers" Is Unlike Any Other Book Published.

About 12 years ago, when the Chicago Labor Enquirer was one of the leading papers in the field of labor journalism, there was printed in its columns a series of tramp stories, written by "Jack Armstrong," that attracted unusual attention because of the terse style in which they were written and the truth and philosophy that ran through them like threads of gold. It is a pleasure to know that William Harrison Riley—or "Jack Armstrong"—has in the hands of a publisher "The Book of the Wanderers" by "Jack Armstrong." The story is similar in character to the papers that were printed in the Chicago Enquirer, but shows the extra care that is expected in a book.

"The Book of the Wanderers" is a socialistic work, containing just enough fiction to make it attractive to readers who object to "too much solid." In the story "Jack Armstrong" tells how he was formally educated in the private seminary of the Misses Pripperton. Then he relates some of his experiences while on the tramp and philosophizes on various social, political and theological questions. He engages as an editor and has the assistance of contributions from various heterodox persons, including "Elijah the Prophet," "Tupy the Hoodlum," "Saint Newman," "Lucy White" and others. The subjects range from currency to communism, from profit sharing to the Chicago tragedy which cost Parsons, Spies and others their lives. About every phase of social reform is treated of in the plainest language.

The Competition of Women.

The competition of women in the industrial world is coming to be recognized as something that must sooner or later engage the attention of social philosophers. Very few will deny that woman has the right to engage in the industrial pursuits if she sees fit to do so, and therefore the question of right or wrong cannot in good faith be argued. The New York Journal has taken a strong stand against the employment of women in the industrial world, and it bases its objections thereto upon two very novel grounds—namely: That the competition of women tends to lower wages, thereby reducing the earning capacity of the natural breadwinners; that the increased presence of women in the industrial world works a direct injury to the physical well being of the race.

The ever increasing presence of women in the industrial world is a problem pressing for solution. It cannot be settled on sentimental lines, for women's presence in the industrial world is not the result of sentiment. It is the result of a wrong industrial scheme. It is not a question of woman's right to enter into industrial competition with men. It is a question of remedying an industrial system which has forced women into industrial competition with men. The danger is grave enough to demand the attention of the wisest social economists of the nation.—Omaha World-Herald.

Bricklayers and Masons.

Thomas O'Dea, general secretary of the Bricklayers and Masons' International union, has forwarded to all subordinate unions a circular notifying them to consider the proposition of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. This is in accordance with the instructions of the convention held in Hartford last January, and the votes of the unions are to be returned in time for publication in the semiannual report in July.

MASSACHUSETTS LED.

Bulletin Showing Labor Legislation Enacted in 1898.

A bulletin issued by Horace G. Wadlin, chief of the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics, presents a number of matters of interest to members of trades unions, men in public life and students of the economic movement.

The first subject treated is labor legislation of 1898. The report states that during the year 1898 practically nothing was added to the statute books in any state relative to the hours of labor or to the employment of of women and children.

Labor legislation in 1898 was exceedingly restricted. In Vermont Labor day was established as a legal holiday. In New York the law relative to the employment of convicts was so changed as to provide that no printing could be done by convicts except such as might be required for the state penal and charitable institutions, or for reports relating thereto. The new constitution of Louisiana provides that after the expiration of the present leases convict labor shall no longer be leased, but may by authority of the legislature be employed on public works, convict farms or in manufacturing under the control or administration of the state. In Louisiana and Virginia a law was enacted enabling labor organizations to register their labels or trademarks. A bureau of labor and industrial statistics was established in Virginia.

The labor legislation of Massachusetts in 1898 exceeded in extent similar legislation in any other state. Summarized, labor legislation in this state provides for a textile school in New Bedford; amends and strengthens the law relating to the manufacture of clothing in tenements and dwelling houses; amends the act relative to the inspection of steam boilers; provides for the employment of prisoners, as far as possible, upon articles and materials to be used in the several public institutions of the commonwealth, and permits the general superintendent of prisons to employ prisoners in preparing road material by hand labor; provides that the labor of prisoners may be used in reclaiming and improving waste and unused lands not exceeding 1,000 acres in area, which may be taken in fee by the governor and council for that purpose. On such land, when thus taken, the governor may establish industrial camps for prisoners employed thereon. It also extends the operation of the law relative to the weekly payment of wages, which was previously restricted to corporations and contractors and to persons and partnerships engaged in manufacturing having more than 25 employees, so as to remove the limitation fixing the number of employees.

The law relating to the employment of children and their schooling was also changed so as to provide that no child under 14 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment, and that no such child shall be employed in any work performed for wages or other compensation during the hours when the public schools of the town or city in which he resides are in session, or at any work before the hour of 6 in the morning or after the hour of 7 in the evening, and no child under 16 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment except under provisions as to education fixed by law, including the filing of an age certificate in terms and under such provisions as the law contains.

A statute was also enacted prohibiting deductions in the wages of women and minors employed in manufacturing or mechanical establishments for the time during which the machinery is stopped, if said women and minors were refused the privilege of leaving the mill during such time, and also providing that none of the employees shall be compelled to make up time lost through the breaking down of the machinery, unless compensated at their regular rate of wages, if said employees had been detained within their workrooms during the time of such breakdown.

In California, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, Ohio and Wisconsin the laws prohibit the employment of women and minors under 18 for more than 60 hours per week in factories and workshops.

Italian Laborers For Hawaiian Plantations.

The planters are planning to introduce a large number of Italian laborers into the cane fields of Hawaii. A meeting of the trustees of the Sugar Planters' association was held the other day, at which the groundwork for bringing the Italians was laid. It will be submitted as soon as possible to a general meeting.

Consul F. A. Schaefer has succeeded in bringing about this new and promising labor market. In the past nine months several letters have passed between him and the government at Rome respecting the matter. A few months ago Mr. Schaefer sent to the Italian government copies of the labor contract, labor laws and full descriptions of plantation accommodations. Attention was also drawn to conditions as they would be when American laws were extended over the islands and the contract system abolished.

By the last mail Consul Schaefer received a letter from Rome stating that the contract and general plan were satisfactory. The Italian government would permit the enlistment and shipment of unlimited numbers of the peasant class of labor from the northern part of the kingdom. In dealing with the laborers, both in shipment and on plantations here, the Italian government desired to follow the same plan practiced in the labor transactions between Hawaii and Portugal.—Cor. San Francisco Call.

Examine the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor; its color and gloss are being destroyed and you may see where a cake of common soap fresh from the hot water in the scrubbing bucket has been laid on it for a moment, the free alkali having eaten an impression of the cake into the bright colors.

A more careful examination will show small "pin holes" here and there where the alkali has cut through the surface to soak into and gradually weaken the whole floor covering.

This is what cheap soaps do. Use Ivory Soap, it will not injure.

POLICE COURT

THREE LAKEVIEW DRUNKS FINED $5 EACH.

Considerable time was taken up in police court this morning with the trial of two women and a man, all French, who were arrested near Lakeview last night on a charge of drunkenness. They were fined $5 each.

The police inspectors and many of the officers were in Cambridge at the Superior court today.

DEATHS.

McCUE—Mrs. Mary J. McCue, wife of Water Inspector M. H. McCue, passed away at her residence, 781 Broadway, last evening at 7.30 p. m., after a brief illness. Besides her husband, she leaves three children, Master Harry M., a pupil of the Lowell High school; M. Alice and little Grace, pupils of the Bartlett school; also a brother, James J. McGill, Esq., and a sister, Mrs. Maggie J. Holmes, both the latter being of Providence.

Mrs. McCue was a member of the Middlesex Women's club and was deeply interested in the work of that organization. Naturally she was of a studious disposition and most earnestly devoted her spare moments in the pursuit of education and on such subjects she never failed to favorably impress those with whom she had occasion to exchange ideas. She was well versed in the classics. For her bereaved family, hosts of friends extend their heartfelt sympathy.

The funeral service will be held at St. Patrick's church Thursday morning at 9 o'clock. Interment will be at Providence, R. I.

False Pretenses

Misrepresenting the circulation of a newspaper to advertisers is obtaining money under false pretenses. All newspapers have a certain value as advertising mediums, but the value is determined by the number of papers printed and sold.

The Sun prints and sells more papers than any two other newspapers in Lowell. It is the cheapest of all the local papers on the basis of circulation. You should look into this matter intelligently when making your appropriation for advertising in Lowell.

When young ladies are invited to go boating, they should ascertain whether the man at the oars knows anything about rowing a boat. We have seen ladies out on a boat where they were in momentary danger of losing their lives although they did not realize the fact.

The pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church, Rev. A. E. Kenyon, is another influential personage added to the forces of sobriety and good order in this city. He is one of the clergymen who give newspapers due credit for their work in behalf of public decency and morality throughout the community.

Sam Lee is the first Chinaman who has had the audacity to enter the liquor business without a license. Sam's experience in court will probably prevent a repetition of the offense by his brother celestials. It would take a lot of washing to pay that $100, together with the costs incurred in the trial. Sam Lee will probably conclude that he had better stick to his washboard.

That was a rather comical statement which the father of Jim Jeffries, a religious minister, made on hearing of his son's victory. "I don't approve of the profession, because I believe it is bad. Nevertheless, I believe the Lord was on Jim's side." Is it not a reflection upon the Lord to charge that He would interfere in such a matter in favor of either side? If the new champion would send his parents about $10,000 of his prize money his ministerial father would more than ever be convinced that Providence had a hand in the fight.

COWARDLY SCORCHERS.

The bicycle accident on the boulevard on Sunday night as reported in yesterday's Sun, is an indication of the unprincipled character of the scorchers who endanger the lives of persons on public highways. The young woman was knocked down by two scorchers and while they returned to find her unconscious they said they would go and find a doctor. On this pretext they sneaked off without leaving their names and left the young lady to die, so far as they were concerned. That was a most cowardly deed.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

The Fourth of July committee has partly settled upon the features of the celebration and already we are assured that there will be a grand parade, a children's entertainment, parachute jump, band concerts and fireworks in the evening. If the money appropriated be expended to the best advantage, the celebration should be a good one. The committee is to be commended for dispensing with the oration feature, which has become a good deal of a chestnut. When there is any attempt to make it subservient to the canvass of any political aspirant, it is particularly desirable to abandon it altogether.

THE SMOOTH PAVING CONTRACTS

At present the people of the city are discussing the question of smooth paving, the expense, the quality and the necessity of this species of paving. It is but a short time ago since the experiment of putting in a little smooth paving was tried on Charles street. It happened that the contract for the smooth paving for Charles street was given to the Boston Paving Co., which has a patent on a certain kind of smooth paving, called "asphaltina." The next street of any importance to be smooth paved was Gorham street, in which the "asphaltina" company also got the job. Now it is Westford street that is to be smooth paved and strange as it may appear, the Boston Paving Co. has also secured the contract, but the street committee has recommended that Mammoth Road, Suffolk street and a portion of Bridge street shall also be smooth paved, though the contract for the latter has not yet been awarded.

Judging from the manner in which the various smooth paving contracts have been given to the "asphaltina," or Boston Paving Co., it would appear that there was, in reality, no other reliable concern in this business, but investigation will show that there are concerns in the business much more reliable than the Boston Paving Co., that there are companies which put in asphalt that is generally conceded to be superior to asphaltina. In point of fact, the asphalt companies give a ten year guarantee on their work, whereas the asphaltina company, which has received contracts here in Lowell, gives but a five year guarantee. This is quite a difference if the guarantee from a company that furnishes a proper bond to the city means anything, then the company which guarantees its work for ten years should have preference over one that guarantees its work for five years, especially when it figures as low or lower than the other.

There is another matter to be considered in connection with this smooth paving business and it is this: ... the present time the contracts for smooth paving Westford street are awarded to the Boston Paving Co. for $2.50 per square yard, whereas when that company figured in competition with other concerns it bid as low as $2.35 per square yard, the work and material in both cases being precisely the same.

Thus, it appears, that had the company been forced into competition it would have done the work at a lower figure.

There is a provision in the city charter that for all purchases of material exceeding $300 in amount, bids shall be called for, but if the street department would follow the same rule it could save considerable money for the city.

His Honor, the mayor, has made a great deal of a fuss over the fact that Mr. Muldoon was invested with some authority in the supply department, in the absence of Agent Barrett, but if he is so zealous in guarding the city's interests, it seems strange that he permits such loose methods to be employed in awarding contracts for smooth paving. Why does he not insist that the matter be thrown open to competition? He has the veto power against any such contract presented to him.

Why does he sign a contract for the expenditure of a large amount of money in smooth paving without calling for bids while there is abundant proof that the work can be done cheaper and better for less money? It seems that if he showed half the solicitude for the city's welfare in the smooth paving business that he has done in interfering with Mr. Barrett of the supply department, he might save the city thousands of dollars.

The question now comes, whether the Boston Paving company is to have a monopoly of the business in this city or whether the city's business is to be thrown open to competition so that the best material and the best work may be obtained at the lowest figure. The fact that but one company furnishes asphaltina is no excuse for giving the contract to that company alone. There is but one company that furnishes Trinidad Lake asphalt. Why has not a contract been awarded to that company? There are other companies furnishing smooth paving that investigation will show to be superior to asphaltina. Why is not the contract given to one of these? Any of them has as strong a claim to consideration as has the asphaltina company, but it may be that some official of the last named company has a pull at city hall that settles the matter, and shuts out the other companies, even from the privilege of bidding upon the work. It is time that this particular method of awarding contracts for smooth paving or anything else should be prohibited in the interest of the city in order to prevent extravagance and the waste of public money.

Several contracts have been given to the asphaltina company. Would it not be policy now to try a company that backs its work with a guarantee twice as long as that of the asphaltina company? If the guarantee indicates the durability of the smooth paving in each case, then the company that gives a ten year guarantee has a better article than that which can venture but a five year guarantee.

Why give preference to the poorer and less durable article? Is it because of favoritism or because of a political pull with the officials who let the contract?

CURRENT COMMENT.

Providence Journal—The latest bank defalcation—up in Dover, N. H.—is plainly another case where negligence has contributed quite as much as criminal intent to the catastrophe.

Manchester Union—Now that the peace commissioners to the Philippines are about to come home, having failed to argue the Filipinos into submission, why not send over a force of our trained stump speakers and determine what success they will have?

Philadelphia Press—Judging from the present outlook the Royalists in France are in for a bad quarter of an hour. The republic is supreme, the people are with it and the conspirators against its peace in the army, in the legislature, in private life, are likely to come to grief. The world will welcome a rounding up of these enemies of law and order and will wish President Loubet and his associates success. This seems assured as the outbreak at Auteuil, quite as ridiculous as Deroulede's "revolution" of last February has compromised the cause of all pretenders. If the Duke of Orleans is in Paris and is wise, he will not wait on the order of his going but get out.

Philadelphia North American — In the Shakespearean field alone, critibize Mr. Daly's stage adaptations as we may, he labored with genuine reverence for the bard and the light which he has shed upon these immortal dramas in the masterly presentations they have received at his hands, through artists painstakingly trained for their tasks, amply compensated for all of the so-called liberties which he took with the original texts. Aside from his Shakespearean productions, Mr. Daly gave to lovers of the stage from his own mind and in adaptations from the best foreign dramatists, an almost countless number of plays which are brilliant examples of the acted drama. His achievements are too fresh in the public mind to render necessary a recalling of the plays and the players he has given to the public. He was one of the fathers of the American drama and through his passing away we lose a stage genius whose place will be filled with difficulty if at all.

New York Post—The state of Massachusetts continues to set an excellent example for the rest of the country by reserving large tracts of land which possess great natural beauty for the enjoyment of future generations. Greylock, the noble mountain in the northwestern corner of the Commonwealth, was threatened with the loss of its charms a few years ago by the reckless assaults of lumbermen, who saw in the extensive forests along its slopes only so much wood. Happily there were public spirited citizens who recognized the shame which it would be to their generation if these mountain sides should be swept bare, and a movement was organized which, with the co-operation of the legislature, ended in the permanent acquisition for the community of a great tract of land. Greylock being secure, Wachusett, a fine mountain near the center of the state, next invited attention and the state will soon come into possession of 10,000 acres of land there, covering not only the summit, but also its approaches on every side. The readiness of a democracy thus to spend large sums of public money in the interest of beauty and taste is one of the most hopeful things in the development of our institutions.

CRISP GOSSIP.

Ere the late Sheriff Cushing was cold it is said there was a scramble for the position left vacant by his death.

These long trained skirts which the ladies are wearing would look much better in a city where the streets are kept somewhat clean.

That most delightful of summer outings, the annual outing of the Builders' Exchange will take place at Mountain Rock on June 29 next.

The fact that Jim Jeffries, the champion pugilist of the world is a total abstainer, good Christian and the favorite son of a preacher has done much toward removing the popular ban of self-defense.

It is hoped that the social clubs of this city will take hold of the parade idea on July Fourth and make the parade a success. Good sized prizes will make it an object.

The Rome, Alpine, Apollo, Ipso, Horsford and other prominent clubs should get in the game.

This is the feast of St. Anthony of Padua and is observed with special devotions in the local Catholic churches. St. Anthony was a native of Lisbon and was first a monk of the Augustine order but afterward became one of the most active propagators of the Order of Franciscans.

My attention has been called to a mistake which I made unintentionally recently in reporting the Barrett—Farrel wedding at which the floral decorations were among the neatest I have ever seen. The artistic decorative work was by Whittier & Co. I gave the credit to another firm. Excuse me Willie and remember me with a ticket for the fireworks.

I have never seen a speechmaker so thoroughly "game" on a candidate as is George W. Poore, the well known burden bearer of the republican city committee on Curtis Guild Jr., candidate for republican nomination for lieutenant governor. "You mark my words," says George to whoever is so unfortunate to mention the fight to him, "Curtis Guild, Jr., will carry that convention with votes to spare."

While at Glen Forest Saturday night I heard a familiar voice crying "Here's just one seat for a thin man" and looking around beheld my old friend "Nick" Calnin, the genial starter and perhaps the most indispensible man in the employ of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill road. "Nick" is "starting" at Glen Forest this year and they say that he can fill a car quicker than any man in Lawrence. "Nick" has been 13 years in the employ of the L. L. & H. and is still in the "young fellows" class and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Barney Morris was 107 years old yesterday says a New York despatch, but he went to his work as usual.

He walked a mile from his home, 364 Warren street, Brooklyn to Prospect park and displayed more energy in clearing the lawns of paper and rubbish than many a man half a century younger.

Barney has been a park laborer for the last ten years. He is the oldest city employee in Greater New York.

Father Time has dealt kindly with Barney. He enjoys good health and no one would judge from his appearance that he is more than 65. His eye sight is good and he wears no spectacles. As for walking with a cane Barney says: "Pshaw! Canes are for dudes.

"I was born June 10, 1792 in County Cavan, Ireland, where they raise good people" said Barney yesterday. "My father had a farm there. When I was 36 years old I came to America and I settled in Brooklyn."

Barney said he used to be a great hand ball player, something of a boxer and a general all around athlete.

"I never used tobacco or rum" he continued "and to my abstinence and hard work, with lots of play when I got the chance, I attribute my longevity."

Barney lives with his third wife, who is about 56 years old. He gets up every morning at 5 o'clock and walks to his work in Prospect park.

SOCIAL CHAT

Sunday was an ideal day for a ride in the electrics and they were worked to their fullest capacity, the railroad company having in use every car that could possibly carry passengers. The Lakeview route was of course as usual the heaviest worked line owing to the band concert which is always a great attraction. The other suburban routes showed very heavy riding. About every car was loaded beyond comfort and of course under these conditions a person sees many interesting sights and I witnessed one myself. I took a ride as far as Willmington and on my return as the car arrived at Billerica, a woman with three small children boarded the car which at that time had about every seat occupied and it was quite a problem what would become of this woman and her three small children. Her husband escorted her as far as the car, bade her good-bye and returned probably to the village. The childrens' ages ranged from an infant of three months to a child not over three years. The woman interested me very much in her very uncomfortable position trying to get a seat as well as provide some seat or standing room for the children. The warm air would cause an adult to feel drowsy and it certainly had the same telling effect on the children, and all finally becaming sleepy, a lady took one in her lap carrying it all the way to the city. What struck me very forcibly was the idea of a man to allow his wife to travel burdened with three babies. It certainly was a source of annoyance to the mother and a great deal of uneasiness to the conductor. This condition of affairs happens quite frequently and it is not pleasant for the passengers, conductors or the mother of the children. I believe that the father should accompany his wife if he wants his children to have a ride. When they arrived at the square the lady who kindly volunteered to take one of the children in her lap was more excited than the mother, as an appearance of cold perspiration came over her face got knowing how she could wake the child who was in a heavy sleep. The mother got out of the car with the infant sound asleep in her arms, the little boy equally so and the little girl in the lady's lap. It seemed to waken when a gentleman took the little one and carried her to the sidewalk where he shook her gently, talking with her and after a great deal of urging managed to get her little eyes open. The mother all this time was in the most agitated state of mind, and she had the sympathy of everybody, even perhaps the conductor. This is just one incident that probably had been repeated Sunday scores of times on every line in the city and suburbs.

Another thing that I observed while out riding was a number of married men whom I have been intimately acquainted with for years, taking a ride in the electrics with their wives. I attributed that pleasing incident to the no-license condition of our city as I know that some of these men were the regular frequenters of our Sunday hotels when the city had license. If a person desired to comment on the moral influences under no-license, there would not be room enough in The Sun to publish all the beneficial results that can be witnessed every day.

TOMORROW AFTEROOON.

We have decided to break up our home, sell our residence on Wilder street, our business property on Merrimack street, travel abroad for at least one year, and upon our return reside in Boston. In compliance with the above determination, we propose on Wednesday afternoon next, June 14th, 1899, to sell to the highest bidders at public auction the WILLIAM BASCOM RESIDENCE, No. 349 Wilder street, or at the corner of Wilder and Grove streets, and the Business Estate numbered 390, 392, 396 and 400 Merrimack street, opposite City Hall.

AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

THE RESIDENCE. Elegant modern house of ten rooms, also bath room, laundry, ironing room, storage and cellar, all heated by an excellent upright steam plant. Full set of double windows, window screens and screen doors. The living room, dining room, and large hall are finished in quartered oak and rosewood the drawing room is finished in cherry and rosewood. The second floor is in white wood finished in delicate colorings; the walls and ceilings throughout the house are beautifully decorated. The lower floor has plate glass windows, open fireplaces in both living room and dining room; the house is in prime condition and is certainly, with a very few exceptions one of the highest class, handsomest situated, and most expensive houses in the Highlands and there are none so choicely situated. It occupies the prominent height of Wilder street.

THE STABLE has stalls for two horses; carriage house for four carriages; harness room for eight harnesses; wash stand, cellar, heat, light and water.

THE LOT has a frontage of 78 feet on Wilder street, 131 feet on Grove street, an area of 5569 square feet and it is a most excellent parcel of land.

This estate is a most conspicuous one among the most conspicuous estates in ward eight, is right in the heart of the most select and finest neighborhood in this fashionable portion of Lowell. The house will be open for inspection after 10 a. m. on day of sale or between 3 and 5 o'clock p. m. by card admission on application.

AT FIVE O'CLOCK.

BIJOU THEATRE PROPERTY. About 5569 square feet of land with a frontage of 68 feet on Merrimack street. On the land is a three-story frame building with basement. The ground floor has three stores and theatre entrance. Is occupied by Dr. M. E. Thompson, druggist; Fred E. Labarge, shoe store; Castes Tenios, confectionery. The second and third stories are used as a theatre. The property rents for $265 a month and until very recently has rented for $285 a month. The contents of the theatre are as follows: Scenery, asbestos curtain, folding chairs and carpets.

This property is certainly a strong investment estate and from a speculative standpoint is a very chancey realty. Situated as it is on the best business street in Lowell today, in a spot that must always be a choice business stand, opposite the municipal buildings or seat of government of our city; a particular location that has got to be passed and repassed several times a day by thousands of our citizens, as well as by strangers and visitors in coming in and going out of Lowell; it can never be worth less as long as Lowell remains a city and if the past is a criterion, it is going to be worth twice as much within the next twelve or fifteen years. It is conceded by the best real estate men in Lowell that there never was a more propitious time in the history of Lowell to buy real estate than the present and that well situated real estate in Lowell will be worth more money within the next eight or ten years than ever before in the history of the city.

The purchaser of the residence must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers $1250 as soon as the property is struck off; the purchaser of the Bijou Theatre property must do the same with $2500. Other terms liberal. Sales rain or shine and on the premises.

LAWRENCE MATHEWS

VOTE TO WITHDRAW FROM THE ARCHDIOCESAN UNION.

The Father Mathew C.T.A.B. society of Lawrence met Sunday at its hall in that city and voted to withdraw from the archdiocesan union of Boston. The reason for this is that the society which has been paying into the union a far larger amount than any other society, feels that the benefits derived from the union are not worth the cost of membership.

VERY SENSATIONAL

Is Report of Alaska's Grand Jury.

It Denounces the General Agent of Education and Recommends That He be Removed.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

JUNEAU, Alaska, June 6.—via Seattle, Wash., June 12.—The grand jury of the United States district court for Alaska rendered a sensational report on the conduct of educational matters in Alaska. The report reads:

"In the hope that it may be able to effectually reach some remedial power of authority the grand jury desires to direct attention to the deplorable condition of educational affairs in Alaska.

"The blame cannot be justly laid at the doors of congress. Between the years 1884 and 1887, inclusive, there was appropriated for education in Alaska an aggregate of $415,000, a sum which had it been judiciously expended, ought to have given Alaska a school system fairly commensurate with the requirements of our people.

"We do not undertake to say that there has been any dishonest or direct misappropriation of any part of this large sum of money, but we do aver that a considerable portion of it has been frittered away in payment of the expenses of wholly useless summer jaunts by the general agent of education to remote parts of the establishtion to remote parts for the establishments of schools at points where but

"For the reason that it believes that a large sum of money has been uselessly expended and the truth not being manifested, will continue to be expended under the direction of the general agent of education in Alaska while yet the neglect of our educational interests is prolonged, the grand jury would hesitate to refer even casually to his extraordinary scheme for revolutionizing the mode of travel and transportation of mails and supplies in Alaska by the introduction of domesticated reindeer from Siberia. But we submit that his utter neglect of the duties for the performance of which he is paid a salary and the consequent demoralization of our educational system demands and justifies even harsher criticism than that which follows:

"We charge that this man is untruthful and he has persistently embodied in his official reports concerning educational matters in Alaska that which he knew to be absolutely false. If he has been guilty of falsehood in his official report on schools and education in Alaska, what reliance is to be placed on those he makes concerning the use of reindeer in Alaska? The plain simple truth is that each and every attempt at the use of the reindeer for transportation in Alaska has been a failure.

"The grand jury therefore earnestly protests against any further recommendation for the importation of domesticated reindeer and respectfully begs and prays on behalf of a long-suffering people that the honorable secretary of the interior may in his wisdom see fit to relieve Alaska of the incubus of an official who enjoys neither the respect nor the confidence of any considerable portion of her people, white or native, and whose days of usefulness so far as Alaska is concerned, were long since buried."

CAPT. NICHOLS

Was Buried at Cavite Yesterday Afternoon.

ALL FLAGS AT HALF MAST

Officers of the Fleet Were Present.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 12.—The funeral of Captain Henry Nichols, the commander of the United States double turreted monitor Monadnock, who died from sunstroke on Saturday, took place at Cavite yesterday with appropriate naval ceremonies. The officers of the fleet were present and the flags on all the vessels were half masted.

The sudden death of Captain Nichols was particularly sad because it occurred just at the moment when the result for which he had hoped and worked for months was about to be realized, namely the capture of Paranaque and its occupation by the American forces. The Monadnock has been lying off Paranaque for two months past under fire from the rebels almost daily. The heat there has been intense and the officers and men of the Monadnock suffered greatly. The commander-in-chief offered to retire the Monadnock from this trying duty and replace her by another ship, but Captain Nichols preferred to remain, declaring that he did not want to leave his post until Paranaque fell and the coast from there to Cavite was cleared of rebels. The heat on Saturday was most severe and the monitor was engaged all day in shelling the trenches at Paranaque and the rebels fleeing south through Las Pinas and also watching the American troops closing in upon the town. Captain Nichols was overcome by the heat at noon and retired to his cabin, where he received frequent reports of the operations and gave directions for several hours. He became much worse at 3 o'clock, lost consciousness and expired at 5 in the afternoon. Several hours before his death, he expressed gratification at the way events were progressing, remarking to an officer: "We have got the rebels there at last."

POLICE PREFECT

ON THE PART OF THE POLICE.

Premier Dupuy Replies to Interpellation.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PARIS, June 12.—The Prefect of Police, M. Blanc, has ordered an inquiry into the charges of police brutality yesterday. If they are substantiated the men at fault will be severely punished.

The Chamber of Deputies was crowded today, and there was considerable suppressed excitement when M. Vaillant, socialist, interpellated the government on yesterday's "Police outrages" at the Pavillion d'Armenonville, and demanded to know the instructions the government gave the police in regard to the socialist, who, he said, defended the republic against the reactionaries. (Applause.)

The premier, M. Dupuy, replied saying he realized yesterday was a fete day for the republicans. He added there had been few incidents, and that the only instructions to the police were to maintain order. The government, he continued, had ordered an inquiry into the responsibility for the affairs at the Pavillion d'Armeneuville and the Rue Montartre. At the same time, the Premier pointed out, the government acknowledged the services of the police, adding that maintenance of the government was impossible without public order (Applause from the Centre and protests from the Leftists.)

FRENCH CHAMBER

Adopts Order Against the Premier's Protest.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PARIS, June 12.—The Chamber of Deputies today adopted by a vote of 331 to 173 the order of the day proposed by M. Ruau, radical, representing the second district of St. Gaudens, which the premier refused to accept. The ministers forthwith left the house amid great excitement.

The text of M. Ruau's motion was as follows: "The chamber is determined to support only a government resolved to defend vigorously republican institutions and to secure public order and passes to the order of the day. After the vote was announced, the socialists shouted "Vive la Republique" and the ministers left the house. The chamber adjourned.

After M. Dupuy's statement, M. Clovis Hugh, socialist, and others complained of the police treatment yesterday. Finally the closure was declared and half a dozen orders of the day were moved. The premier supported the order of the day of M. Saumand, republican, approving the declaration of the government, for which priority was demanded and refused by a vote of 253 to 246.

Amidst increasing excitement other motions more or less favorable to the government were defeated and the chamber then adopted by 266 to 177, priority for M. Raou Ruaau's motion. Finally M. Dupuy declared the government would accept nothing short of M. Saumande's order of the day and the chamber promptly carried M. Ruaau's motion.

SENATOR GEORGE

The Haverhill Scholar in Town

BOOMING HIMSELF FOR AUDITOR.

A Most Picturesque Early Bird.

It's the early bird that catches the worm, even in politics and while Bates and Guild are off at the beach somewhere depending upon George Poore and others to look after their booms in this city, Senator Frank George, the tician, with his name in his hat and his overcoat over his arm lest a "frost" overtake him, is in town today, booming himself mightily for the position of state auditor.

Senator George looking as charming and as picturesque as the scenery which one views from the deck of his steamer while floating down the Merrimack from Haverhill, blew into town this morning alone and unheralded, but with a purpose of which he was not ashamed.

When I saw him he was still alone in a restaurant calmly annihilating a large steak and out of respect for his appetite I did not approach him but others saw him during the day and from them I learned his purpose, namely, to boom himself for the position of state auditor next fall.

His friends want him in that position. True, as yet they have not kept us awake nights clamoring for his recognition but nevertheless they want him. All candidates have friends who want them to run and Senator George is merely taking advantage of a cool day and is helping his friends along in their laudable desire to have him nominated for the office of state auditor.

MATRIMONIAL.

About one hundred and fifty local and Boston friends of Dr. Fred Stedman Snow and Miss Amy Louise Brooks of Boston, this afternoon witnessed the ceremony which made them husband and wife.

D. of Boston, united the happy couple just at 3. Surrounded under an overhanging floral piece and there pledged their vows. The wedding march was over a route of roses, the bride and her attendants descending from her room as the groom awaited her coming. The balusters were entwined with smilax and other cut flowers.

The bride and her maid were handsomely attired in white silk with pretty trimmings.

YALE CREW AT PRACTICE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

YALE QUARTERS, Gale's Ferry, Conn., June 12.—Today, for the first time during their stay here this season the Yale oarsmen experienced rough water and as a result were handicapped in their practice. The crew did not go out until 11 o'clock. Followed by the four substitutes the Varsity crew rowed over to Horton's Cove and both shells were sent over a half mile course. The Yale launch tied up to the railroad trestles and Coachers Gaullandet and Armstrong looked after the men from there. The work of the men in the two shells was ragged on account of the rough water and at 12.30 the oarsmen were all back at the float.

DEWEY HONORED

ARRIVED A DAY EARLIER THAN EXPECTED

But Refused the Hospitality of the Governor.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

SINGAPORE ISLAND, Malay Peninsula, June 12—Admiral Dewey surprised the colony of the Straits settlements and disturbed its Sunday siesta by arriving here at 3 p. m. yesterday, nearly a day ahead of time.

He had cabled that he would arrive this (Monday) morning and a suitable reception had been arranged by the governor and commander in chief of the Straits settlements, Lieut.-Col. Sir Charles B. H. Mitchell, the other officials of the British colony and E. Spencer Pratt, the United States consul general here. But Governor Mitchell was absent from the government house when the admiral's flagship, the Olympia, came to anchor and there was momentary consternation at the disarrangement of carefully laid plans.

The governor's aid-de-camp, Capt A. A. Duff and Consul General Pratt hurried to the pier, then out to the Olympia and paid their respects to Admiral Dewey, explaining that the governor general's absence was due to the fact that the admiral was not expected until the next morning.

The admiral expressed regret at being obliged to decline the hospitalities of the British governor and American consul general, saying that as he shall be here only three or four days he will remain quietly aboard the Olympia while she coals.

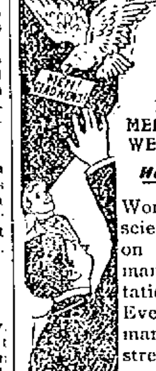

He came ashore this morning and paid an official visit at the government house, being escorted by a company of the King's Own, a great crowd of people gathering to see the American admiral and cheering him lustily, regarding this as an Anglo-American celebration.

Admiral Dewey is looking well.

The governor returned the visit this afternoon.

The Olympia had a fine voyage from Hong Kong, leaving that port last Tuesday afternoon, making the run of about 2000 miles in five days.

GLORIA

IS NOT A MEDICINE.

Love tickled the young man's ribs one day,
He scratched and scratched, but the tickle would stay;
Little he thought the young lady's heart
Had the same trouble as his from the start,
He had to drink GLORIA in order to see,
How to get out of the difficulty;
Young lady's answer, I'll surely be with you,
My mother and sisters will come along too,
He drank more Gloria and counted his cash,
Now thinks he will have to scratch gravel for hash.
Then all drink GLORIA before it's too late,
And look out well for this ticklish state.

THE COURSE OVER WHICH THE COLUMBIA AND THE SHAMROCK WILL SAIL IN THE FALL AT THE COMING CONTEST FOR AMERICA'S CUP.

A DAY ABOARD THE NEW COLUMBIA.

The Perfect Equipments of the New Yacht From Kitchen to Cabin.

C. Oliver Iselin has from the first declared that he saw no reason why the new yacht should not be launched June 8. There was to him an association about the number 8 which made him anxious to get the yacht afloat on that day.

Very few people will have an opportunity of spending a day on the Columbia; but those who do will find themselves in a great, graceful boat stretched out in long lines that lie upon the water like a Cleopatra on her couch.

The yacht, even at anchor, is perpetually moving and courtseying to the great white buoy which holds her fast.

When you come along-side the boat you will go up a companionway which leads from the water to the deck of the Columbia. Captain Charles Barr always stands at the head of the companionway, his cap in his hand, to welcome visitors. The captain is particularly glad to see ladies, and invites them to carry anything away with them they may see; and in this respect the captain has been known to rob a yacht of its silk curtains and in other ways deprive it of its furniture.

Captain Charley Barr is reputed to be the most skillful yachting skipper in America. Barr is not thirty-five years old. He is destined to be genius; and he will tell you how he was born of Scotch parentage in 1864, and how he will be thirty-five years old July 11. He will add that he became an American citizen many years ago. His parents wanted him to be a grocer, but he ran away and went to sea. He sailed all kinds of coasting boats until he got employment on a yacht. Since then he has sailed the forty-foot cutter Minerva, and the forty-six footer Oweenee; he also sailed the Navahoe for Royal Phelps Carroll; he brought the Vigilant back from England for George Gould in '95, and raced the Vigilant in the fall, when she acted as a trial horse for the Defender.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin will be aboard nearly all the time, and if you are lucky enough to be invited aboard the Columbia you will also be Mrs. Iselin's guest.

THE KITCHEN.

You will sit on deck for a few minutes and then Captain Barr will invite you to go down into the kitchen; for no one is ever contented with the outside appearance of a house. As you go toward the kitchen you will notice that there is not a speck of dust about the Columbia. Even the most careful dust hunter will not find the faintest trace of anything dead or living that ought not to be aboard.

They will want you to visit the kitchen the first thing because the cook will soon be getting ready for dinner, and then all visitors will be kept out of the kitchen. The kitchen is not a very big one for the work it turns out. It is only a fair sized one in a moderate sized flat, but there is a big range, with its pots and pans, all dazzlingly bright, and two men cooks in neat white aprons and big cooking caps, busily at work. A big dresser is filled with everything needed to flavor or prepare any kind of soup, fish or meat; canned goods in abundance and a great array of edibles to tempt dainty palates.

In another corner is the pantry where the china is kept. This service is not in keeping with the rest of the menage. It is a plain blue and white china set of the kind that may easily be bought in sets large enough for an ordinary family at from $10 to $15. Very little silverware is used on board, and what there is is of a plain pattern. The officers and men use aluminum teaspoons, which are so light that they almost float. A good sized carving table that can be folded against the partition completes the kitchen furnishings. The kitchen force consists of two cooks and two stewards.

ORDERING DINNER.

The cooks are kept busy, for there are six meals to prepare each day. First there is the officers' breakfast at 7 a. m., then the owners' and guests' at 9. Dinner for the officers is at noon and lunch for the after cabin is at 1 p. m., while supper for the former is served at 6 p. m., and dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Iselin and their friends at 8 p. m. This makes lots of work, but the stewards are glad to do it, for the people they cater to are very appreciative.

If you are there time enough in the morning—for when you go to spend a day upon a yacht you arrive as early as possible—you can go up with the cook to Mr. Iselin and hear him get his orders for dinner and the day, for everything is run just like a house.

Mr. Iselin orders a dinner which consists of six courses, soup, fish and entree, roast, game, dessert and coffee. Then there is a little wine also, but a greater demand is for cold mineral waters. The cook's favorite dish is a frozen pudding, which is served up every day on board. The crew generally eat on board the tender, except on race days, when they eat aboard the ship.

You will notice that particular attention is paid to the culinary department, for the crew that is fed well will work well. It is said that this is one of the causes for the failure to take the Cup away from America. The American sailors have the best of food, and therefore they do their best every day in the week. Perhaps you will be invited into Mrs. Iselin's cabin, and undoubtedly you will. It is in the stern of the ship. Her stateroom is a marvel of neatness and economy of space. It is shut off from the dining room by a studded frame, hung with rich scarlet silk, while the back walls, which curve upward and in, are lined with white crefonne, figured in a lovely design of cream and pale pink roses. Two berths with lockers beneath them have space therein, each cushioned with thick mattresses and mounted on woven wire springs. A bureau with a good-sized mirror and large drawers is tucked away in a convenient corner. The bureau is of white enamel and natural mahogany. All the fixtures in the cosy little dressing room that adjoins are of aluminum.

You will notice that there are lamps burned aboard the boat instead of electricity or gas, which would add too much to the weight of the fleet racer. The rooms are also partitioned off, you will observe, with silk curtains or with canvas; for wooden partitions would be a serious handicap to the boat. The canvas partitions answer very nicely for making rooms aboard the boat, and you would scarcely notice that they are not of wood.

Mrs. Iselin's stateroom has port-holes and sky-lights. There is a handsome rug on the floor; pretty furniture sets around the room, and there is room to store all the wearing apparel needed. A cosy little dressing room adjoins the sleeping room, so that if Mrs. Iselin decides to accompany the yacht she can be very comfortable aboard. Everything possible is made of aluminum, even to the wash stand, the hot and cold water faucets. This is also to save the weight.

A PLEASANT DAY.

The woodwork throughout the boat is yellow, and looks very clean and cool.

The dining room has four sides beautifully paneled in silk. The floor has a rug in the center on which stands the dining table, which is large enough to accommodate a number of guests. Big wicker chairs stand about the room, which, between meals, is used for the saloon.

The Columbia's buffet will be in this saloon, and will be a veritable storehouse for a small number of fine wines and choice edibles. The officers' quarters are models of neatness. Captain Barr's stateroom is next to the mate's room; then comes the stateroom for Mr. Iselin's valet. On the other side are staterooms for visitors. In the center of the cabin is the dining table of the officers; and in the floor there is a big trap door which can be lifted up to disclose an ice box big enough for a hotel.

The crew sleep in hammocks which are stretched upon iron frames painted white. These hammocks are so arranged that they contain very comfortable beds, and the red, white and blue mattresses and blankets look very tempting upon them.

If you are invited to spend a day aboard the Columbia by all means accept, for you will have the red-letter day of your life.

ROYALTY AT THE PLAY.

The Emperor of Austria is the greatest theatregoer among royalties of the day. He loves the play, and his kindly applause has often saved a piece from failure.

The Czar and the Prince of Wales are of the "good public" class. The Prince follows the play with interest, laughs at the comic scenes, shows emotion at the tragic parts.

The Czar and Czarina are interested both in the play and the players, but in a more subdued fashion. William of Germany is the "enlightened" spectator, who criticises in technical terms the actors, the piece and the scenery.

WHEN A MILLIONAIRE DIES ANOTHER IS BORN.

The Fall in Stocks at Flower's Death Brought Wealth to James R. Keene, Whose Career Has Been Unique.

"It's an ill wind that blows nowhere," so the French express it. The English version of the same is, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good." The day following the lamented death of ex-Governor Roswell P. Flower, of New York, a line appeared in the press of the country stating that, owing to the sudden decline in stocks on Flower's death, James R. Keene had made $350,000 on Wall Street.

As little is known in some sections of the country about James R. Keene as about the most obscure of men. Greatly averse to publicity and the newspaper interview, he is more of a myth to the New Yorker than is Cecil Rhodes operating away off in Cape Town.

If you ask the Wall Street banker who Keene is he will reply with great respect, "He is one of the powers of Wall street." If you ask a broker about Keene he will tell you that he is "the most famous plunger of the day." If you ask the same question of a sporting man he will enumerate the Keene horses; yet will tell you that he has never seen James R. Keene; and knows the family only through the deeds of the son, Foxhall, the well-known sport. Even society knows the Keene family very slightly; for, from choice, they have mingled little with society people.

HIS START.

James R. Keene was born an English gentleman. The Keenes of Lincolnshire have been land owners for generations, and the boy, James R., born at the Keene Abbey in 1838, was educated by private tutors. At the age of ten he was sent to Dublin to live in the family of an old master of Trinity who took a few boys at very high price.

The elder Keene was a land owner and something of a dealer in stocks. His moneyed interests lay in London. Many Englishmen of to-day will tell you of the crash of '52, when stocks went down and fortunes were lost. The elder Keene lost his money along with the other unfortunates, and the boy James was brought back from school.

In 1853 the elder Keene with his family, including the boy, James R., "came out" to this country—as he would have told you—and settled in Shasta county, California.

At that time everybody was digging for gold. Every mountain, every plain, every canyon and every gulch was being explored for the precious metal. Young James at fourteen showed all the energy which has made him famous since, and he asked permission of his father to set out to earn his own living, a permission which was readily granted.

At the age of fifteen the boy who was afterward to make a stir in the financial world was guarding the animals at an Indian post. He was employed in the roughest capacity, but he did his work well and he saved his money industriously.

In a short time he had saved enough to buy a miner's outfit, and with this he started to the mountains, tapping the rocks and washing the streams.

A POOR MINER.

But his success was indifferent. He did not "strike gold." The work was even less remunerative than guarding animals; so he decided to make use of the education which he had received, and in early manhood he accepted a position on a newspaper where he reported, wrote editorials and did the stock markets. Here he saved his money and soon he had a nice little sum.

Upon the discovery of the Comstock lode Keene threw up his newspaper job and went to Nevada, where he bought some mining property, which he sold at a good price and soon worked along until he came in possession of California mining stocks upon which he cleared $125,000 in one year.

Very gentlemanly in manner, of fine physique, highly educated and wealthy, young Keene was considered one of the catches of the Pacific Coast. And when he courted Sara, the daughter of Colonel Leroy Daingerfield, of Kentucky, no one wondered that he was admitted to so fine a Southern family. Miss Daingerfield was at that time visiting her brother in California, and like many another Southern girl, she made the best match of the season, right under the noses of the wealthy Western girls.

But a plunger does not always plunge in the right direction, and the Comstock disaster brought grief to the Keene family. James R. Keene lost his entire fortune, and was, comparatively speaking, penniless. Yet with good Keene stubbornness he refused to accept a position in an office. His brother-in-law wanted to make a politician of him, but he had no taste for politics. He declared that his forte lay in the stock market and he would do nothing else.

After a year of hard luck he formed the acquaintance of Senator C. N. Felton, who conceived a strong liking for him. Felton was at the head of the Stock Exchange in California, and held a position in the State Treasury. With his friendship Mr. Keene managed to get on his feet again, and in 1875 he was one of the rich men of the West.

Although the West has long since ceased to consider Keene one of its residents, it will always remember him for his part in its banking interests; for at the historic failure of the Bank of California he was one of the four men who loaned the bank $1,000,000 in cash to enable it to do business again.

Two children were born to the Keene family in these years, Foxhall, now a man of prominence in turf and social life, and Jessie, afterward the wife of Talbot I. Taylor, of Baltimore.

WITH A FORTUNE.

But making a fortune is trying work; and Mr. Keene found his health so broken that in 1877, at the age of thirty-nine, he was given up for a dead man. His physicians said that possibly, if he were to go at once to Europe for a long rest, he might recover; and Mr. Keene, alarmed at their warnings, bundled up his family and started overland for London by way of New York.

True to his long training in the stock market Mr. Keene read the newspapers, and the day of his arrival he saw that stocks were in very bad shape. In fact, as he scanned the columns of the stock market he found that a man with a little money could make a great deal in a short time. And he stepped down into Wall street to make a few purchases. Here he became interested, and by the following day he had decided not to go to Europe just yet. He remained right in New York, not even going back to California.

It is said that in the two years which followed James R. Keene cleared $9,000,000. Certainly he did well. And when he took passage for Europe two years later, for his long postponed vacation, he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had spent his time very profitably.

Upon his return he arranged his California interests in such shape that he could profitably leave them; and, buying a handsome home at Cedarhurst, Long Island, he continued his operations in Wall Street. To cement the eastern tie his son, Foxhall, married Miss Lawrence, of Long Island, of the well-known Lawrence family.

It has been charged against James R. Keene that he is gruff, even heartless. But there who know him well say that the exterior is a mere cloak for great affability, and that underneath the quiet, studied indifference there beats one of the most philanthropic hearts.

CROSSING THE EQUATOR WITH FATHER NEPTUNE.

Jolly Ceremonies Which Take Place When the Warships Pass Over The Equatorial Line.

The boys in blue manage to have good times at sea. Crossing the equator with Father Neptune is one of the events of the voyage to the Philippines.

Going through the Mediterranean the warships touch the equator in the narrow pass between the Malay Peninsula and the island of Sumatra, and at this point the fun takes place.

The day before the equator is reached the Captain announces the hour and the minute at which, by his calculations, his ship will pass over the central line of the earth. It may be midnight, or at 2 in the afternoon; but it is noised that the Captain, if he be an obliging one, is careful to select a time when all will be awake.

At the hour all of the crew not otherwise engaged, and all of the passengers, if there be any, come on deck, dressed in fanciful clothes. They are waiting for Father Neptune.

And they do not have long to wait. Soon there is a scrambling up the outside of the boat, and the old fellow clambers over the rail, all dripping with water.

He assumes one of many guises. Maybe he is an Indian, in paint and feathers. Perhaps he is a fat John Bull or again a Father Knickerbocker. No one can tell what shape Father Neptune will assume.

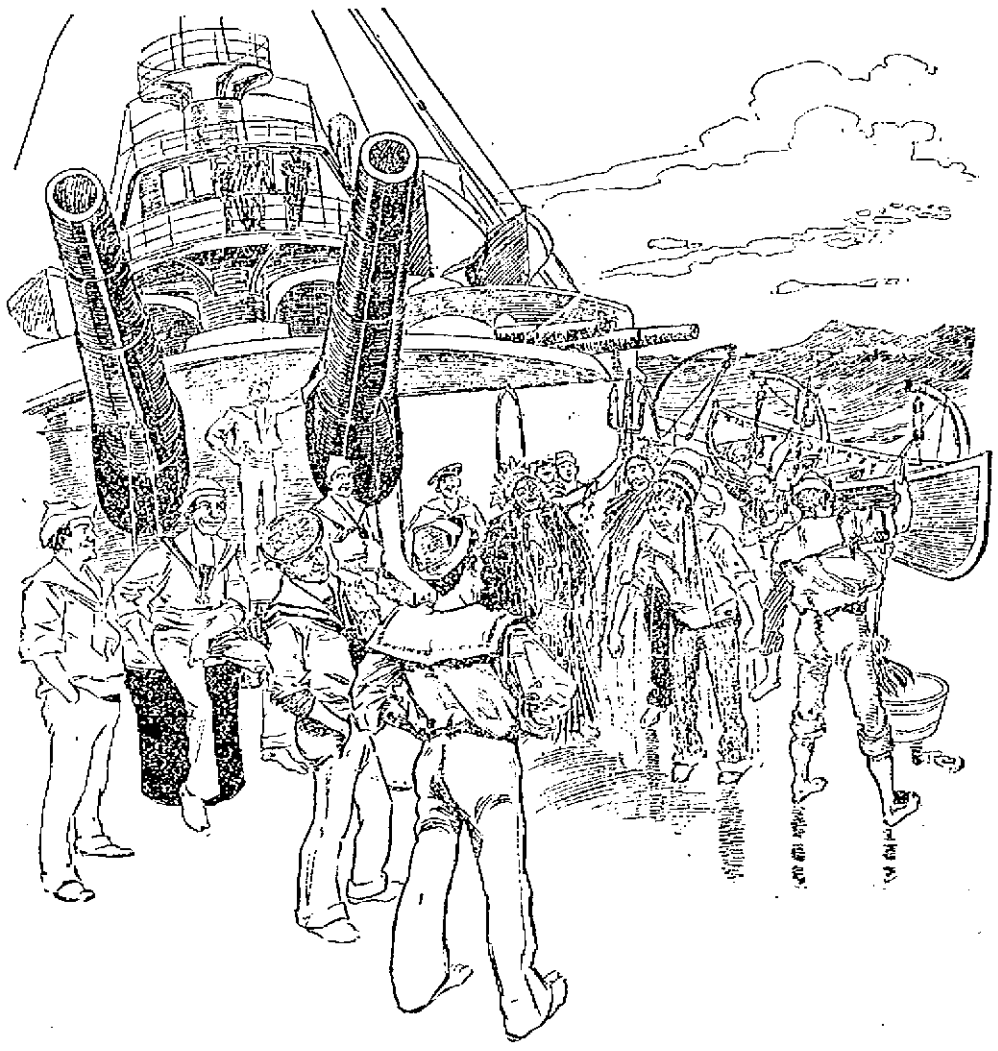

Once on deck, the old fellow begins to play pranks. He pours water over his guests, paints their faces, orders them to do strange things, which they cannot disobey, and cuts up at a terrific rate. Finally he selects one of the crew, orders out a chair and a razor and shaves him. It is a great honor to be shaved by Father Neptune, though the blood-curdling feats of the old fellow would scare a landlubber.

He sharpens his razor upon the sole of his shoe and leaps wildly in the air, with many war cries, before attacking his victim.

In going to the Philippines around Cape Horn the equator is crossed twice, with elaborate ceremonies that rob the long voyage of its tediousness.

This custom, which originated on the English high seas, prevails all over the world. The English sailors on their way to India indulge in the wildest pranks in the Indian Ocean, and colonists going out to Australia never forget the ceremony of crossing the equator with Father Neptune.

THIS IS ONE OF THE SPORTS THAT ENLIVEN THE LONG JOURNEY TO OUR NEW POSSESSIONS; THE EQUATOR IS CROSSED AMID THE WILDEST FUN.

MRS. GLADSTONE'S LIFE OF GLADSTONE

It is Whispered That She Has at Last Set to Work Upon a Task to Which She Has Long Been Urged.

Catherine Gwynne Gladstone, better known as Mrs. William Ewarts Gladstone, is quietly said to be busy upon her recollections of her late husband. Mrs. Beecher wrote a series of articles for a magazine entitled "Mr. Beecher as I Knew Him." Mrs. Gladstone's work, if she finishes it, will be called "The Home Life of Gladstone; or, the Study of an English Gentleman."

Mrs. Gladstone, the "Lady of Hawarden," as she is called in the town thereabouts, is one of the most remarkable women of the day. Gladstone did not hesitate to attribute to her the major part of his success, saying that her advice and her wisdom were the foundation stones of his best deeds.

Mrs. Gladstone was a Scotch heiress whose father was the owner of extensive Scottish mills, and whose lands lay scattered over England. He owned the ground over which Hawarden stands, and one of the first gifts to his daughter was Hawarden castle, together with outlying lands. Mr. Gladstone, who had formed the habit of going to church every morning in his life, built a chapel upon the estate, and for fifty years Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone attended that chapel every morning at nine o'clock to hear the half-hour service read.

Never a great beauty, Mrs. Gladstone has what is called style. She is tall and slender, and wore the handsome clothes which her father could buy her with an "air." When she came to live in London as the wife of the young politician, William E. Gladstone, it was thought that she had made a poor match; for, with her wealth and good looks, she could have adorned a much higher station. Still Mr. Gladstone stood well politically, just as Mr. Asquith and Mr. George Curzon once stood as beginners; and in a short time it was seen that Miss Gwynne had made a very good match. Her father came to this way of thinking and gave her money so plentifully that Mr. Gladstone was maliciously accused of being supported by his wife's father.

It was only when he refused a title that Englishmen came to think that he must be somebody after all.

Mrs. Gladstone retired to Hawarden for the express purpose of raising a family. Children came fast, and she was determined that they should live and be strong, splendid specimens of English manhood and womanhood. Never senile, yet always strong; never too progressive, yet ever steady, they grew up good English people of whom England is to-day very proud. Miss Helen Gladstone, the unmarried daughter, has taught for many years in an English institution of learning which pays her an enormous sum. Besides being an excellent advertisement for the school, she is a capable instructor and in her specialty—that of English literature—she is unequaled.

Mrs. Gladstone taught her children to despise a title for themselves, though by no means to despise the nobility. She shared the opinion of her husband that the days of heraldry and titles were over, and that in the present day of civilization a man received his rewards for faithful deeds in other ways than by the title of duke or lord.

She taught her children the value of education and so capably instructed them that the Rev. Herbert Gladstone was almost ready to graduate from college at the time he first entered it. He was fully posted on all the dogmas and rituals of the church, and he knew its tenets to the finest point. He is now one of the most highly educated clergymen in England, and his works would be accepted as ecclesiastical books of reference.

When Mr. Gladstone died his wife took the matter very quietly, as something which they had both prepared for. She did not apparently mourn him; but went about her daily task with a calm which told of a peculiar resignation. She even continued to attend the little chapel at Hawarden whither they had always gone together.

Mrs. Gladstone was repeatedly urged during the life of her husband to write a biographical sketch of him—an intimate account of their daily life. It is said now that she has been prevailed upon to write about Mr. Gladstone, not for mercenary reasons, but because it is a duty which she owes to posterity. On the shady side of eighty, with keen faculties and a body slight but almost strong, she has set to work upon a most interesting task.

QUEER KIND OF SPECTACLES.

Spectacles, to enable the user to see objects near at hand or a distance, are made in a variety of forms. In a common form the glasses are in two parts, joined at the center, the upper parts being of a power suited to distance and the lower halves to reading. Sometimes a piece is cut out of the glass, and a piece of a different power is put in its place.

Sometimes the variation is made by cementing a wafer of glass over a part of the spectacle glasses. There are made also spectacles with crescent-shaped glasses, the upper part of the glass being cut out entirely; the wearer reads through the glasses and looks over them to see at a distance. There are spectacles called spectacle glasses that are like glasses with the upper halves cut off; the wearer looks down through the glasses to read, and he can see over them without effort when he looks at the congregation.

NEW MANAGER

Franklin Woodman's Busy Career at Railroading.

WORKED UP FROM THE BOTTOM.

May Move His Office to Lowell.

It is now General Manager Franklin Woodman of the Merrimack Valley division of the Massachusetts Electric Street Railway company, says the Haverhill Gazette, the company which recently absorbed the street railways in this section of the state. The appointment of Division General Manager Woodman was made by General Manager Sullivan of the Massachusetts company in Boston last Friday, a tender of the proposition having been made to Mr. Woodman last Wednesday when he was summoned to Boston by Manager Sullivan. The latter had had Mr. Woodman under consideration since he assumed control of the new company, though the new official was not an active candidate for the position. General Manager Sullivan, before assuming his new office, had charge of the Lowell and Suburban railway. There were several aspirants for the position given Mr. Woodman and it is highly complimentary to his ability that without his seeking the berth, he was selected by Manager Sullivan.

When he was tendered the position last week, he informed the general manager that he wished to consider it although he was earnestly pressed to accept it at once. On Friday he held another conference with General Manager Sullivan and it ended with his acceptance.

The news became quietly known, continues the Gazette and locally the many friends of the genial division general manager warmly congratulated him. Since coming to this city almost seven years ago, he has made many close friends and in the reconstruction of the old Haverhill and Groveland Street Railway company and the extensions of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill company he showed that he was a thorough and practical street railway man. It was under his direction that the Haverhill division of the L. L. & H. company prospered and has become one of the finest street railways in the state. He is now completing his 22d year as a street railway man. He began at the bottom of the ladder and has risen rapidly until he is now recognized among the leading street railway officials in New England.

His first service was with the Old Metropolitan Street Railway company in Boston as a starter. He next became division superintendent's clerk. Four years after he entered the Metropolitan company as a starter he was appointed superintendent of the Roxbury division of the West End street railway of Boston. This position he held for eight years until he was chosen general manager of the New Bedford street railway company. That position he accepted Sept. 19, 1889, and his work there was similar to that which he has performed since coming to Haverhill in August, 1892.

He was chosen by the L. L. & H. St. railway company to assume charge of the Haverhill division from a large list of aspirants and it was a tribute to his ability. His work in Haverhill is well known. From the old horse cars to West Newbury, under the Haverhill & Groveland system, the local division has branched out until it extends from Methuen to Newburyport, the roadbed being perfect, the equipment excellent, and the service has ever been first class and up to date. It is well known that no complaint for better service has ever passed unheeded when made to Supt. Woodman and he has always been known as an earnest, indefatigable worker, ever catering for his patrons and also carefully looking after the interest of his employes.

In his new capacity, Division Manager Woodman will for the present retain his office in Haverhill. Last evening when seen he said that he might possibly remove his office later in the year to Lowell. After receiving his appointment, he announced the list of his assistants. Succeeding him as superintendent of the Haverhill division will be Alex. McRae. N. E. Morton, who has been superintendent of the Lawrence dicision since it was formed, will retain control there and Philip T. Bagley will have charge of the Lowell division. In all, Mr. Woodman will have supervision of 140 miles of tracks. His division extends from Nashua, N. H., to Newburyport, including the Lowell and Nashua company, the Lowell and Suburban company, the Nashua N. H. St. Ry., and the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill company, with all its divisions in Andover, Methuen, North Andover, this city and Newburyport.

THE M.A.C

A BICYCLE CLUB THAT WORKS AND SAYS NOTHING.

Among the number of local cycling clubs which though hardly ever heard from through the newspapers, are the Coming Men of America, an organization now in existence for over a year and with regular runs. The club was instituted during the latter part of '98 and at once proceeded to fulfil the duties of a wheeling club, going occasionally to Silver Lake and other neighboring points of interest. There are about 75 names on the rolls and Harry Hennessey has counted the same number of caps. The caps are of vermilion and across the front is inscribed "C. M. A.," which of course means Coming Men of America. The runs of the club will continue till cold weather, with Hennessey as captain.

CARPENTERS' UNION.

Carpenters' Union No. 40 will meet this evening in Spinners' hall, 22 Middle street for the election of officers for the ensuing six month. All members are requested to attend and all others wishing to join. Having received a special dispensation from headquarters we shall keep our charter open till July 1.

BOXING GOSSIP.

Of course you knew that Jeffries was going to win. So did we all of us, but few of us bet on him.

The next great event to come off will happen on the evening of June 21, when the regular meeting of the Natone club will be held at its quarters in Middlesex street, when Patsey Hennessey of Lawrence, and Joe Flaherty of Lowell, will spar 15 rounds. Both men are in training, Hennessey at Cannoble Lake and Flaherty at Lake Quinsigamond, and the sports of the Merrimack Valley are waiting patiently for the date. A great number of them will be present from Lawrence, for beside the big go there will be an eight-round preliminary contest between Peter Brooks of Lawrence and Jimmie Stewart of Manchester, both of whom have boxed here before. Brooks' appearance guarantee is up at The Sun office, and Stewart's expected today and the men thus will surely appear. Manager Desmond adds new improvements to the place after each meeting, and without exaggeration now he has the finest little athletic club in all New England.

There is talk of a match between George Gardner and Tom Moriarty, but nothing definite has been heard concerning it.

Joe Flaherty is matched to go with Patsey Sweeney of Manchester, N. H., in that city on July 4. If the match takes place in daylight, as is expected, Flaherty ought to be a winner with ease.

Some joker has suggested to the Fourth of July committee that they offer a prize for an open air go between John Dion and Tom McLaughlin as one of the features of the celebration.

Bouts this week:

Friday.

Eddie Connolly vs. Tim Kearns, New York.

Unknown vs. Byers, Chicago.

Saturday.

Joe Fairburn vs. Kid Broad, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty vs. Charlie Miner, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty goes at it again on Saturday night. I met him a few days ago, and found him in fine condition. Let's hope he gets a square deal this time. He can't be licked any other way.

Jeffries' star is in the ascendant, and for some time to come, we hope. The result of the big mill gives the boxing premiership of the world to one who was born in the Buckeye state, and who lives with his family in Golden Gate precincts. It gives immense satisfaction to all true sport lovers to see the laurels of championship, worn by a true American boy, and one who richly won them. Jeffries proved himself the superlative artist and won on sheer merit. It comes as a good omen for the future that the picture scheme was cut out after being tried once. From the tap of the gong Fitz assumed the offensive, until his stamina had gone, and then, knowing that defeat was inevitable, his protruded jaw gave big Jim the chance of a life time, which he did not fail to accept.

Jeffries had been "tipped" on the power of Fitz's right, and never gave the Kangaroo an opportunity to "cross" by leading his right until the knockout was assured. Jeff was several shades faster than when he was prevented from sparring publicly here in February, and knew just what he had to do to defeat Fitz. He showed no sign of fear, even when Fitz was rushing and boring in for openings for that terible "solar plexus" punch. Fitz did land this famous blow, but never with the strength that he possessed at Carson City against Corbett. All the sign that Jeffries gave that the punch had hurt was by a suppressed grunt. Stamina, condition, ability and youth tell the story. Fitz had gone the pace—and a rapid one, at that—the past two years and was not as good as when he fought Corbett. Of this there is no doubt, but it does not detract from Jeffries' victory in the least.

Fitz was considered dangerous by Jeffries himself, and he best knew that point when face to face with Bob. Jeff held that right of his chained to his side and cut the old "no down with his busy left hand. It was almost entirely with the south paw that Fitz was rendered hors de combat, the finishing touches alone being given with the right. If Jeffries had used his right when Fitz was strong in the early rounds, there might be another tale to tell. But it is by results that the story is told, and Jeffries is readily received as a better man than Fitzsimmons.

Tommy Ryan, the crack Syracuse middle, announces that he is ready to meet Kid McCoy within three weeks for the middleweight championship. Ryan says he wants McCoy to come into the ring at regulation middleweight, and not lay claim to go at catchweights.

John F. Daly, the old 125-pound amateur champion of New England, and a popular member of the former Tri-mount A. C., than whom no club ever turned out a flockier lot of champion athletes in the early '90's, has gone to Asheville, N. C., for a few week's rest. A monster testimonial and reception for Mr. Daly is being planned, to take place on his return, the affair to be given by his old friends of the Tri-mount A. C., and a host throughout the city. Daly was a splendid boxer, and won the American championship at 125 pounds from Fred Schneering of New York at Music Hall in 1891.

The New York Journal says:

"Martin Flaherty, the Lowell (Mass.) lightweight, is in big demand just now. Martin is known to be in first rate shape and clubs East and West are in communication with his manager, Charley Harvey, with a view to procuring his services. The Brooklyn clubs New Haven and Baltimore, have all made bids for Flaherty and somebody else, and Harvey is considering them all. He cannot act definitely right away, however, with the out-of-town people as he has made a match for his man and Charley Miner of this city, to fight at the Pelican club next Saturday night, at 128 pounds. Miner appreciates the difficulty of the proposition he is called upon to solve in this instance and is working sincerely to get into shape."

Billy Gardiner boxes Martin Flaherty eight fast rounds daily while the latter is training for Miner. Martin says Billy is a coming world beater and thinks highly of him as a sparring partner. Martin is negotiating with the manager of Frank Zimpher of Buffalo for a match with Elly.

HAMILTON PRINT WORKS.

The Hamilton print works are shut down for a week or more, during stock taking.

There are more than 1000 operatives affected by the shut down which is semi-annual.

The North Ends in defeating the Walbrooks Saturday, no doubt are the champion juvenile team of the city. There has been great rivalry between the two teams. so Manager Callahan must give in the O'Brien Colts are his superiors.

Mr. John McCluskey of Medford visited relatives in this city Saturday and Sunday.

GIVEN MORE PAY

Employes of Boston and Maine Happy.

NEW SCHEDULE TOOK EFFECT JUNE 1.

Increase Voluntary on Part of the Road.

Employes in some of the departments of the Boston & Maine railroad have recently received an increase in their wages, says a Manchester despatch.

This increase is not general and affects only certain branches and divisions. In a sense, it cannot be considered as a raise, but an equalization. employes in all departments of the service have been receiving from 10 to 25 per cent. more on some divisions than on others. For example: The pay of way freight conductors on the North Weare branch has been thirty-five cents per day less than on the Eastern division, although the work is as exacting and the hours as long; in some cases longer.

So far, the equalization affects only conductors, brakemen and towermen. Conductors and brakemen on the Portsmouth, North Weare and Suncook valley roads are among the fortunate ones.

The conductors on these branches have been raised twenty-five cents a day. This applies to both coal and way freight conductors. Passenger conductors do not profit by the advance. Brakemen on these branches are benefited also, their pay being increased fifteen cents. The yard conductors are raised ten cents a day and the towermen, some fifteen, some twenty-five cents. The circular sent to the yard authorities in this city states that the raise shall go into effect June 1.

There will be but three crews affected by the raise in the Manchester railroad yards, but the applications are pouring into the main office by the scores from all grades of railroad employes asking for a raise to be as much in proportion as that already granted. As the recent action was entirely voluntary on the part of the Boston & Maine, the engineers, firemen and other employes hope that their turn will come soon.

A well-known local railroad man said last night that as far as he knew only the Southern division would be affected. Anyway, but few crews in New Hampshire would be benefited by the increase. In the conversation a peculiar state of things was disclosed; peculiar at least, as far as the uninitiated are concerned. Railroad employes are paid higher wages in Boston than in Manchester and Manchester railroad men receive more pay in Manchester than they do in Concord, and so on the farther north one gets. The argument used is that it costs more to live in or near Boston than in Manchester and that this cheapness of living is more apparent the farther north the line goes, and the wages are said to be smaller in proportion.

OPERATOR ADMITS

MATTHEW MURRAY CONFESSES HE WAS TO BLAME FOR THE WRECK AT AYER.

Matthew Murray, the operator in Tower 9 on the morning of the wreck on the Boston and Albany railroad company, at Rensselaer and who has tendered his resignation to the railroad company, called on Superintendent Wales of the Boston and Albany railroad today to learn if the rumor was true that Engineer Nixdorf of the passenger train had been suspended or discharged. Murray was informed that such was not the case. Murray told Superintendent Wales that he called to exonerate Nixdorf from all blame in the accident as he (Murray) was alone responsible. He then explained how the accident occurred that he made the mistake, but that the railroad company made the greater mistake when they changed the interlocking to the present system of switches. Under the former system it would be impossible for the operator in the tower to turn an "all right" signal to the passenger engineer while the Central Hudson freight train was on the cross-over. The interlocking system was in use previous to the burning down of the tower some time ago. When the tower was rebuilt, the present system was substituted.

POOR CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

A meeting of the committee on Children's Excursions was held yesterday afternoon in the Courier-Citizen office and a report was made of the work done two years ago.

The Day Nursery gave $300 and there were contributed $93 by individuals. The trip cost $152, so that a balance of $241 was left.

It was voted upon the motion of the Rev. Dr. Chambre to turn the money over to the Day Nursery with the suggestion that it be spent for the benefit of the poor children and their mothers. Thanks were also extended to all who in any way contributed to the success of the excursion.

WALTHAM, AYER AND PEPPERELL.

The Waltham, Ayer and Pepperell street railway was fully organized last night when the directors met and completed arrangements for the construction of the road. The meeting was held at Boston, and the following are the officers for the ensuing year: Frank S. Arnold of Malden, president; Arnold Blaser of Cambridge, vice-president; Warren F. Freeman of Boston, treasurer; H. F. Downs of Malden, secretary.

THE SOUTH ENDS

ARE GOING TO PLAY THE SOUTH BOSTONS ON SATURDAY.

Next Saturday afternoon the Fair Grounds will be the scene of another fine exhibition of base ball. The South Ends have booked for their opponents on that day the strong South Boston team, the finest semi-professional team in the state and which has yet to sustain a defeat.

The South Ends are determined to play none but the best teams throughout the state and the public must be assured by this time that such is the case. They will have next Saturday an opportunity to see a team play that has defeated the Newtownes, Mt. Washingtons of Everett and has played a ten-inning game with the Carters of Franklin. The South Ends will play two games next Saturday. In the morning, they play the South Bostons at the Locust street grounds in Boston and in the afternoon both teams will play at the Fair Grounds. A big guarantee had to be given this club to bring them here; in fact, the largest yet given to any team that has played in Lowell.

The morning game at South Boston will start at ten o'clock and Moore and Roach will do the pitching for the South Ends. Both teams will take the 1 o'clock train to Lowell and the game here will start at the usual time, 3 o'clock. The South Ends will put Billy Connors in the box in the afternoon game here and backed up with fine support, he will receive from the remainder of the team, he will make things interesting for the team from Boston. Hugh Farley will catch both games for the South Ends. Good fast ball playing is being given the Lowell public by the South End team and the attendance will even be larger than the usual big crowd which turns out to see the local cracks.

MR. MATHEWS

WILL BE THE ORATOR AT BOSTON —THE PROGRAM.

Mayor Quincy has named Hon. Nathan Matthews, Jr., ex-mayor, to be the orator for the city of Boston on the Fourth of July. He has also named Rev. John S. Lindsay, rector of St. Paul's church, to be chaplan of the occasion.

It is probable that the exercises will be held this year at Tremont Temple. For several years the Fourth of July oration has been given in Faneuil hall, but the reconstruction of the building which is now under way, precludes the holding of exercises there this year.

The Fourth of July committee's program for athletic sports, entertainments, boat races, fireworks, etc. is now in the hands of the mayor. His honor will probably alter the items considerably, making what he thinks will be a more equitable distribution of the $11,600 appropriated for the day.

As was the case a year ago, the mayor intends to personally take charge of the arrangements for the children's entertainments, and to that end he has appointed John Graham to carry out his ideas. Mr. Graham is well known in theatre circles as a promoter of entertainments. It is the mayor's intention to have only wholesome, refined entertainments provided for the children.

GRANITEVILLE

THE GUN CLUB WILL HOLD FORTH ON SATURDAY.

There will be lots of fun in Graniteville next Saturday afternoon and this item is published for the benefit of the nervous residents who may prefer to be out of town on this particular afternoon. On that day the Graniteville Gun club will have its first annual tournament and the red and gun clubs of North Chelmsford and Lowell have been invited. The other surrounding towns will also be well represented and it is expected that there will be several close contests in the match contests. Manager Charlie Sargent and Secretary John B. Carmichael, with the assistance of every other member of the club, are doing their utmost to make the event one of enjoyment to all who attend and a special invitation is extended to the ladies. There will be refreshments served on the grounds and all present will be invited to assist in having a general good time.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will

Ayer's Hair Vigor

melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write like doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily remedied. Address,

DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

COMMITTEE MET

Another Step in Fourth of July Celebration.

GOOD SUMS APPROPRIATED FOR FEATURES.

Parade, Muster and Fireworks Provided.

BUTLER AMES ELECTED CHIEF MARSHAL.

Headquarters Remain at City Hall.

The Fourth of July committee held its second meeting in the committee room at city hall last evening with the usual large gathering on the outside.

For a starter, President Clark announced some of his committees as follows:

On parade—Alderman Miskella, Councilmen Mullaney, Whittet, Walker and Hogan.

On fireworks—Hogan, Alderman Chapin, Alderman Miskella, Councilman Mullaney and Mr. Sturtevant.

On firemen's muster, Alderman McNulty, Councilman Lyman, and Messrs. Turcotte, Fels, and Donahue.

On printing—Mr. Donohue, Mr. Turcotte, Alderman Chapin, Alderman McNulty and Councilman Whittet.

On music—Messrs. Sturtevant, Turcotte, Fels, Donohue and Councilman Whittet.

On decorations—Mr. Fels, Mr. Sturtevant, Mr. Hogan, Alderman Miskella, and Councilman Walker.

On parachute jump—Councilmen Mullaney and Lyman, Aldermen McNulty and Chapin.

Alderman Chapin declined the fireworks committee in favor of Mr. Fels, claiming that Mr. Fels knew more about fireworks than any other member.

Mr. Mullaney dropped out of parade committee in favor of Mr. Fels but the latter declined, as he did not care to serve on too many committees.

Mr. Sturtevant produced a schedule of how much money each sub-committee should have.

Mr. Hogan suggested a novel form of children's entertainment. He stated that the number of children who generally attended children's entertainments was comparatively small while the majority of the children congregate on the common. The best place, therefore, in his judgment, would be to have a merry-go-round and flying horses with free tickets for the youngsters.

Mr. Sturtevant believed in a free children's entertainment under a tent, a continuous performance, distributing tickets with the school teachers. Alderman Miskella favored an indoor entertainment of marionettes and other juvenile features. Mr. Turcotte suggested hiring barges and taking all the children in the parade.

President Clark called attention to the fact that bids were in for the official program.

Councilman Walker suggested that a bond be furnished from the parties who got the program. Mr. Fels thought that security was necessary.

Mr. Sturtevant believed that if an official program was to be got out, it should be got out by the committee by publishing the official program in the papers and letting those who wanted to go ahead and publish their programs.

The remainder of the committee seemed to favor the idea of letting out the program to the highest bidder so as to get in as much money as possible.

Councilman Walker moved that whoever gets the contract must put up the amount he bids within three days otherwise his contract is null and void. It was carried unanimously.

The bids for the official program were then opened and an attempt to have interested parties withdraw was killed.

The bids were as follows: John W. Kennedy, $50; W. J. Clark, $51; Frank Cox, $42; Walter Whitaker and John H. Shepard, $69.

Mr. Cox, the $42 man, forgot to sign his name, but he was known and his bid appears.

Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd who bid $50 not only agreed to give surety, but also specified an edition of 10,000 copies, 1,000 for the use of the committee and the rest to be distributed by them, the program to be 16 pages, exclusive of the cover, to contain half tone cuts of prominent men and public buildings and guaranteed even a certain kind of paper, while Mr. Clark who bid $51 gave no specifications. The contract was awarded to Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd with Councilman Mullaney alone opposing in favor of Mr. Clark.

On motion of Mr. Hogan, the chairman was made a member ex-officio of all committees.

To facilitate matters Mr. Sturtevant moved that the following amounts be appropriated:

Music for parade and concerts, $900; fireworks, $600; parade, $500; tub contests and expenses, $500; children's entertainment, $200; parachute jump, $150; salutes, $150; incidentals, $400; total, $4,000.

The motion was withdrawn by Mr. Sturtevant as it was opposed.

Alderman Chapin moved that the committee on music be appropriated $900 immediately as the bands must be hired at once.

Mr. Fels moved a 15-minutes' recess.

Alderman Miskella moved an adjournment until Wednesday night in order to give the sub-committees a chance to meet.

Mr. Fels' motion prevailed and some of the sub-committees met.

It was 10.15 o'clock when the committee came to order again.

The committee on parade reported with a request for $1000, which was $410.88 less than was expended in 1897, said Alderman Miskella. Several names had been considered for chief marshal, he continued and it had been voted unanimously to recommend Lieut. Col. Butler Ames.

Mr. Sturtevant then moved, as a preliminary step in the matter of appropriations, that the children's entertainment be given up.

Mr. Fels seconded the motion, but Mr. Hogan made a plea for the children, and suggested that the saving be made somewhere else.

Alderman Miskella also spoke for the children, saying that the children took a great interest in the day, and should not be sacrificed to the parade.

"It is the children's day from early morn till night," said Mr. Sturtevant. "If the parade is made a success they will enjoy it, and their parents as well."

Mr. Hogan again spoke of free merry-go-rounds for the children, and the motion to abandon the children's entertainment was defeated.

Councilman Lyman asked whether there would be any special prize for the firemen in the parade.

Alderman McNulty said that there were special prizes for any organization, but not for them particularly.

Councilman Lyman said that he was thinking only of the success of the parade. A special prize, he believed, would result in a larger number of firemen in line, and better uniforms.

Alderman McNulty said that the firemen would have a good chance to win the prize for the best feature.

It was voted that the appropriation for the parade be $950, and it was voted unanimously that Lieut. Col Ames be the chief marshal.

The mayor was made a member, ex-officio, of the general committee.

Alderman McNulty, for the committee on firemen's muster, asked for $600 instead of $500, and said that the prizes proposed were $225, $150 and $100, leaving $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Hogan moved to amend that $525 be granted, the prizes to be $200, $125 and $75, with $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Lyman said that the firemen would be with the city all day, in the parade in the morning, and on the common in the afternoon. "Thousands of people will come to the city with them," he said. "Where can you get more for your money?"

After minor discussion it was voted to grant the $550.

The committee on fireworks asked for $900, the amount originally recommended. It was voted to grant it.

The committee on music, through Mr. Sturtevant, reported that it thought that four bands would do, and asked for $800.

The committee on parachute jump reported progress and asked for $175. It was so voted.

Mr. Fels, for the committee on decorations, reported that but little money would be needed. The citizens would be asked, through the public press, to decorate their houses and places of business.

The committee adjourned at 10.50 o'clock, to meet at 7.30 o'clock on Thursday night.

Until further notice, the headquarters of the general committee will be at city hall.

The committee on parade has prepared a fourth draft of prizes, from $150 down, but it is subject to change.

The firemen's prizes for the muster will be $200, $150 and $100.

Enough militia companies to form a regiment are expected in the parade.

CO. M. REGULAR MEETING—BOWLS AND BOWLERS.

The regular weekly drill of Company M was held last night at the armory and at its conclusion a meeting was held in the company rooms for the purpose of determining whether it would turn out on Fourth of July. No action was taken. An invitation was received from Company C to participate in the competitive drill at the Fair Grounds on the afternoon of July 4, but in view of the possibilities of taking part in the morning parade, it was thought that the men would not be in proper condition to do themselves justice in the afternoon. Hence it was voted not to accept the invitation.

In the military duck pin tournament at the armory last evening Team One of Co. C defeated Team Two of Co. G by superior work in the second string. Lieutenant Kittredge is beginning to think that there are no flies on his team as this is its second consecutive victory. The score:

A BRIDE DESERTED

She is Now Vainly Waiting His Return in a Boston Hotel—He Took $300 of Her Money and Jewelry.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 14—The police of Boston have been looking since Saturday for a man named Henry Carter. Saturday Carter is alleged to have abandoned a wife only three days wedded, and in addition is charged by his deserted bride with stealing her money and jewelry, as well as her dress suit case.

The bride is of Swedish birth. Since coming to this country she has done housework in New York and by living frugally had saved $300 which she had in a New York savings bank. In addition to this she claims to have $1000 in a bank in Sweden.

Two years ago she met Henry Carter. The man made violent love to her and she came to the conclusion that she reciprocated his affection.

As the result of the attachment the couple were married Wednesday evening at the Gustavus Adolphus church, New York. The groom was 29, the bride a few years older.

On the wedding night, by various excuses, he obtained possession of her gold watch and a ring set with gems. She had withdrawn her $300 from the bank and this he also took charge of.

The couple came to Boston Wednesday night by boat, going to an Eliot street hotel.

Saturday morning Carter went out to look for rooms, since which time he has not been seen.

The baggage of the pair had been left at the Park Square station and when the bride went to look it up she found that her husband had taken away everything but her trunk.

Carter claimed to be a reporter on a New York paper and gave as a reason for coming to Boston that he was to represent the paper in this city.

The police were notified, but up to the present time have been unable to obtain any clew of the missing man.

In the meantime the bride is penniless in a strange city but anxious to get back to New York.

POLE LOCATIONS

Opposed by Jenness Street Residents Yesterday.

Aldermen Wilder and Chapin of the committee on wires gave a hearing yesterday afternoon on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for pole locations in Jenness street, and the petitions of 24 remonstrants against granting the same. Nobody appeared to represent the company, and the remonstrants controlled the hearing.

E. J. Carter stated that the four poles at present in the street are not wanted by the residents and that they object to any more being set up.

C. F. Joyce appeared for himself and S. E. Robins, Robert Gilmore, Harry Kittredge and others. He said that one of the poles in the street at present is located nearly in his driveway. He did not know of anybody who wanted the poles.

Charles F. Richardson said that there was but one telephone on the street, and that the poles were put in before the street was accepted. He objected to any more poles as a damage to the street.

Alderman Chapin suggested that if the poles were a damage to the property, then property all over the city must be damaged, for poles were necessary where there were telphones.

Merton A. Smith, representing Mrs. Eliza Smith, said that if the people didn't want telephones on the street, they should not be obliged to have poles.

"You wouldn't object to an electric light pole?" asked Alderman Chapin.

Mr. Smith said that he would object to one in front of his front door.

"I don't want a telephone, and I don't want a telephone pole," said C. H. Howard. "The poles on the street are in such condition now that the people are obliged to walk in single file on the sidewalk."

Rev. D. A. McPhie spoke of the poles in the street at present. He said that they stood at the angle of 45 degrees, and people had run up against them to their own injury. The residents of the street did not want any more poles whether they were polished or painted, and, he said, they proposed to fight them to the end.

Charles A. Gales said that he agreed with the other remonstrants. The hearing was then declared closed.

BASE BALL

The Brooklyn batsmen, almost to a man, stand close to the plate. Many of the Bostons not only stand back, but draw back when the ball is pitched. Hamilton stands far from the plate but he always steps in to meet the ball.

Boston could not see anything in Magee a few years ago, when he pitched in Brockton, but the late "Billy" McGunnigle, then manager of the Louisville team, sized him up as a comer. Now Selee thinks he is about Boston's size and would be only too glad to grab him.

Manager Smith of Portland is very sore over the showing made by his club on the trip and it will be interesting to note the excuse he will make to the Portland papers. Manager Irwin claims that Smith and his players made a farce of the game at Manchester yesterday by senseless kicking at Umpire Duffy, the object being to make it appear that the Portlands were being roasted. Smith threatened to take his team home rather than play in Manchester today with Duffy officiating. Irwin told him to go home. Smith had the nerve to claim in Taunton that he should have won both games in Newport. The nonsense in this statement is shown by the scores of the games, 8 to 2, and 6 to 0. It looks like a bad case of rattles on Smith's part. He has signed Jim Smith and released Counihan, Clarke and Johnstone. Tighe will captain the team henceforth.

BURIAL OF ALLEN

Victim of the Billerica Drowning Accident.

The body of Charles H. Allen, who was drowned in Billerica, Mass., June 8, was received in this city late Saturday evening, and taken to the parlors of F. L. Gray, says a Manchester despatch.

The funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chapel at Pine Grove cemetery. The Rev. N. L. Colby was the officiating clergyman. The casket was draped with the Stars and Stripes. The Parker Veterans were in attendance, six of them being the bearers—Charles M. M. Whitney, George W. Williams, Charles E. Philbrook, John G. Hutchinson, F. O. McPherson and Charles L. Fuller. J. A. Jaquith was funeral director. Burial was in the Parker Veteran lot. Taps were sounded over the grave by Comrade Herman Greager.

Among the floral offerings were a mound from R. D. Moore; bouquet, Charles W. Atwood, and a bouquet from friends.

NORTH BILLERICA

BRILLIANT WEDDING OF JOHN LATHAM AND MISS NANCY WALKER.

Mr. John Latham and Miss Nancy Walker, two well known young people of the town, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Baptist church. Rev. E. E. Scates officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Bella Walker and the best man was Mr. George Latham. The wedding marches were played on the organ by Mr. Thomas Batson and the ushers at the church and house were Messrs. Louis Perry, George Colson, Albert Holt and Fred Auty. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother in Billerica street. Refreshments were served on the grounds. There were many gifts.

Mr. Latham is employed in the Talbot mills, and is a prominent member of the Baptist church and superintendent of the Sunday school and the bride is prominent in social and church circles.

Mr. Felix Clancy of Danvers Centre and Mr. Charles O'Connell of Peabody paid a visit to friends in this city Saturday and Sunday, coming on their wheels as far as Reading, thence to Lowell by rail.

Disagreement Over the Transvaal Question in the British Cabinet—Chamberlain Going Away at This Critical Period.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LONDON, June 13.—Special importance is attached to the cabinet council which took place this morning. It lasted a couple of hours and it is believed the ministers finally determined upon the policy to be adopted towards the Transvaal. The secretary of states for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, is expected to make a definite statement on the subject in the house of commons, this afternoon unless the rumors of his destination turn out to be true.

Acurious coincident was Mr. Chamberlain was absent from the house yesterday and today it was announced that he and his wife will start for Paris and Lausanne during the course of the week. It was quite unprecedented for Mr. Chamberlain to leave the country during the session.

This, in conjunction with the talk of a disagreement in the cabinet over the Transvaal, was taken to mean that Mr. Chamberlain had decided to leave office. Later, however, an authoritative denial was made of the report that Mr. Chamberlain was going to the continent.

A DEADLY CYCLONE

Hundreds and Perhaps Thousands Killed

By Associated Press to The Sun.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 13.—Scores of persons were killed—the number may reach into the thousands—and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed by a cyclone that swept across the Mississippi Valley east and slight north of this city last night, practically annihilating the village of New Richmond and causing great property loss also at Hudson, Wis., and at Hastings, Minn., and in the section of the country lying between.

How great has been the loss of life it is impossible to tell for the storm has interrupted communication with Hudson and New Richmond reports have come in a round-about way. One man who was at New Richmond when the storm struck has reached Stillwater, Minn.

New Richmond, a village of 2,000 inhabitants, according to his story, was razed by the storm and soon after it was in flames, the injured persons who were pinned in the wreckage being likely to die by fire. The town was crowded with people who had come from the surrounding country to attend a circus. All the hotels of the village were filled with guests.

Damage to railroads and telegraph and telephone lines is widespread. The running of trains has been interfered with and communication with points in the path of the storm has been cut off. Latest reports estimate the loss of life at New Richmond at 250 and some put the figures as high as 500.

Throughout the region of the storm crops have been destroyed. Grain has been torn out by the roots or beaten into the soil. Trees have been uprooted or snapped off like straws. Fields and roads have been flooded and sections of railroads on all lines passing through the storm section washed out.

Coming on the heels of a heavy rain storm of Sunday and Sunday night, the storm has turned every small stream tributary to the Mississippi in this section into a torrent. Bridges have been swept away and much property damaged by overflows.

J. A. Carroll, who arrived at Stillwater late last night was in New Richmond, Wis., when the tornado struck. He says the main street was wiped out and hundreds of people killed. He does not know how many, as he left soon after. The ruins of the town are burning, he says, cutting off all hope of escape for those pinned in the wreckage. Carroll escaped by a half's breadth and was the means of saving others in the instant that was given for flight. Every place where a building stood a few hours ago in the village is now a pit of death. Carroll was in the hotel just before 6 o'clock. It had been stifling hot and the air was breathless. A dull rumble broke the stillness, increasing to a roar.

"I ran to the door of the hotel," he says, "and there was a funnel-shaped cloud bearing down upon us. The noise of its roaring was frightful. The blackness of the sky was indescribable. I shouted that a cyclone was upon us and ran for the basement. It was hardly an instant before the building was lifted from its foundations, twisted into fragments and dashed into splinters.

"The track of the storm seemed to be half a mile wide. How far it extended, I cannot tell. The storm struck us from the southwest and its onrushing was like a tidal wave. There is not a building left on its foundation in the main part of the village. Most of them are twisted and beaten to shreds.

"To add to the horror fire in the ruins followed the storm. It was night and there were no lights. There was no means left for lighting the fire. The only thing we could do was to battle for the lives we might reach before the fire cut off escape. I must have worked two hours in the debris. A train was got together to come to Stillwater for help and I came with it."

Damages to railroads, telegraph and telephone lines and crops is widespread.

Next to New Richmond, the most severe damage done by storm was at Hudson, Wis., and also at La Crosse, Wis. In the vicinity of the first named town, a tornado and cloudburst destroyed wires, haystacks, unroofed residences, barns, outbuildings all along its path.

At La Crosse, it was the worst storm known in many years, nearly five inches of rain falling. The river rose so rapidly that 400 people living in the lower portion of the city were driven from their homes. Over 100 head of live stock were drowned. Nearly every bridge in the La Crosse valley is gone.

At Mankato, Minn., six inches of rain fell. Winona, Minn., Sparta, Wis., and other towns in the adjoining territory are partly under water and much damage has been done.

Faribault, Minn., El Roy Villa, Rockton, and Tomah, also suffered severely and have the same story to tell of flooded cellars and streets, heavy damage to crops, hundreds of heads of cattle are drowned, numerous washouts on the railroads, bridges washed away and wire communication paralyzed. The killed and injured so far as known are:

Near Stockton, Minn.—Two men killed by lightning.

Near Burkhardt, Wis.,—Mrs. Dave Hefferron, killed, and her husband, seriously injured.

At New Richmond—Dead: Dr. Wade. Injured: —— Barrett, rescued from the wreck of the Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; Dr. Epley, both legs broken; Charles McKennon, proprietor of the Nicholas Hotel; Mrs. Charles McKennon; two children of Charles McKennon, buried under wreck of Nicholas Hotel; ——— Newhall, rescued from wreck of Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; laundry girl, employed at Nicholas Hotel, fatally injured.

At Hudson, Wis.— ——— Vollman, leg broken.

100 DEAD AT NEW RICHMOND.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 13.—The list of dead caused by the storm at New Richmond, Wis., now foots up to 100, according to advices received at the Wisconsin Central office here. The ruins of the ill-fated city are being swept by fire.

Every effort is being made to stay the progress of the flames and to rescue the dead and dying from the ruins. Relief trains are en route from Chippewa Falls and Stevens' Point. Doctors and nurses are being picked up along the route.

E. W. Hall formerly a resident of this city is renewing acquaintances with his old friends. Mr. Hall 25 years ago carried on the fruit and confectionery business at the corner of Central and Prescott streets. Mr. Hall is now located in Lynn and undoubtedly is enjoying health and prosperity, as he does not look a day older than when he did business at the corner.

ROCK LEFT

BUT HE TOOK SOMETHING WITH HIM THAT DID NOT BELONG TO HIM.

Dennis Rock of Lowell was in hard straits a short time ago says the Lawrence News and John J. Hallivan a tailor employed by William Anderson of Lawrence volunteered to provide food and lodging for him until he "got on his feet". When Hallivan was quietly sleeping Saturday night, Rock "got on his feet" and left with a pair of pants and a gold watch belonging to Hallivan in his possession. Yesterday when Hallivan awoke he discovered the loss of his companion and also his watch and trousers and the police were at once notified and are hard at work on the case. It is a pretty mean thief that will bite the hand of his benefactor and if Rock is caught he should be severely dealt with.

Rock was known in Lowell by the name of George Mansworth and worked for the Black Diamond Stove Polish Co.

The only thing left behind to remember him by was his old clothes.

THE LOWELL CLUB

Raided at Nashua, N. H. on Sunday.

AND ITS PROPRIETORS TAKEN IN.

JUDGE CLYDE CALLED IT A FAKE

In Imposing a Fine on the Proprietors.

The police of Hudson, paid attention to the barrooms near the limit Sunday and as a result had complaints against two of the alleged liquor sellers in police court this morning said the Nashua Telegraph yesterday.

Superintendent Martin accompanied by Officers Smith, O'Connell and Merrill visited the Lowell club and found sufficient evidence of a liquor business to bring the alleged manager, George Cluff before Judge Clyde.

In the cellaar of the house was found a large quantity of whiskey, lager beer and Sterling ale. The largest supply was bottled lager of which there were seven barrels. There were 13 cases of ale and seven empty quarter kegs which had evidently contained ale. In the pockets of the respondent were found a quart and a pint bottle, each partially filled with whiskey. A large crowd of people were about the place during the day and the officers allege that several people were seen coming out of the place in a drunken condition.

This place has been under suspicion for a long time and it has been believed that it was a barroom conducted under the disguise of a club. Such a ruse has frequently been adopted in other places for the sale of liquor. Following the closing of the barrooms in Lowell, the Lowell named club sprung up, almost in a night. The officers did not find any bar, but there were a number of small tables around which the frequenters of the place could sit and have their refreshments served to them.

Mr. Cluff in conversation with a reporter, this morning, stated that the place was a club house, pure and simple. He declared that a number of men had organized themselves into a club for social purposes and that they engaged him as a manager to keep the place in order and take care of the property. He said that the liquor found in the place was for the refreshment of the members and maintained that it was not kept for sale and was not sold to the members but that each was allowed to have a reasonable amount, the rules of the club being that no member shall have sufficient liquor to get drunk. On this point he is the judge and when he considers a man has sufficient liquor, he has the right to deny any more being given him. He says the club has 80 members.

In addition to searching this place, the officers visited Charles T. Chartland's place and there found liquor.

In court this morning George Cluff was charged with keeping for sale both spirituous and malt liquors and with keeping open Sunday.

He pleaded not guilty and waived examination on the two first cases. On the complaint for keeping open on Sunday, he had a hearing. The officers told about visiting the place and finding a large quantity of liquor. The respondent stated that he acted as manager of the social club. They buy the liquor to drink themselves. No one but members are admitted. He claimed that no one went out in an intoxicated condition.

To Mr. Wason he stated that he hired the place the first of May. He pays $6 a month rent for it for the club, of which he is a member. He said there was no president and no board of directors of the club.

He said that the following men were members: James Cullen, Lakeview avenue; John Roarke, Cross street; Chas. Cutler, off School street; Timothy Harrigan, boards on the corporation; Thos. Kennedy, a barber in Lowell; William Kennedy, Ayer place, Hudson; Mr. McPherson, Lakeview avenue, Lowell; James Donahue and Mr. Lightburn, also of Lowell.

Mr. Cluff said that he had run a club room in Derry last summer. No Hudson or Nashua people belong to the club. The club started with forty members. It has not yet adopted a set of by-laws. The new members are not voted in but the names are talked over by the other members. Mr. McPherson was one of the recently elected members of the club. The money paid in goes to buy the beer and eatables and each member has to pay a proportionate share of the cost. There is no regular fee. The club was formed around the streets of Lowell. The members play cards on week days.

Judge Clyde stated that the club was only a fake and organized for the purpose of selling liquor and he imposed a fine of $10 and costs. The respondent took an appeal and furnished bonds in the sum of $100 for his appearance before the supreme court.

Chartland was charged with a second offence of keeping malt liquor and he also pleaded not guilty and waived examination, furnishing bonds in the sum of $300 for the supreme court.

The officers state that there was a large and very orderly crowd at the limit Sunday. They saw no drunkenness and made no arrests for this offence. They say that most of the men who came up from Lowell did not come quite to the limit and got off the cars before reaching the power station.

Selectman George S. Steele had his lunch room open Sunday and was not molested by the officers or anybody else. He sold ice cream, milk, and cakes and "other necessities of life," but had no tonics or cigars for sale. It is stated that a free fight was indulged in by a number of Lowell young men during the afternoon. The place where the fight took place was across the brook a short distance from the Ayer place. The officers were sent for to stop the combat but the crowd caught on and fled before they could reach the place.

William Kennedy, another member of the Lowell club, was fined $10 and costs for keeping malt liquors for sale, at a session of the court. The complaint against him for keeping spirituous liquors for sale was not pressed on condition that he leave the state.

GRANITE CUTTERS' STRIKE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 13.—The first strike which has taken place in this section for some years was precipitated today at Hurricane Island and Waldoboro today, when nearly 200 stonecutters quit work in response to orders from the national committee of the Granite Cutters' union.

The strike is due to no disaffection here but rather to the fact that the men are employed by the Booth Bros. and Hurricane Isle Granite company, which is furnishing stone for the government building in progress at Annapolis, the general contract for which was made by P. J. Carlin and company of Brooklyn.

Carlin & Co., in addition to this work have the contract for building the new Tombs prison and one of the East river bridge piers and the grievance against the firm arises, it is understood, because it is employing men on both jobs who belong to the new Granite Cutters' union, made up of members who have left the Granite Cutters' union for various reasons.

Miss Delia Connelly of St. Patrick's parish and Miss Annie Cassidy of Belvidere are contestants for a gold watch to be awarded at the bazaar in aid of the new convent of the Immaculate Conception school.

WORST BATTLE YET

Gen. Lawton Called Out His Entire Force, Which is Far Outnumbered by the Insurgents.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13.—The fighting at Las Pinas continued hotly all day long. General Lawton called out the whole force of 3,000 men and at three o'clock he was only able to push the insurgents back 500 yards to the Seapote river, where they are entrenched. The insurgents resisted desperately and aggressively. They attempted to turn the left flank of the American troops. The American loss is conservatively estimated at sixty. The battle continues and the fighting is the hardest the Americans have thus far met with in the Philippines.

LAWTON'S SEVERE ENGAGEMENT

By Associated Press to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 13—The following telegram has been received from General Otis:

Manila, June 13.

Adjutant-General, Washington:

Lawton's troops had severe engagement today with enemy in strong entrenchments at crossing Zapote river near Bacoor, Cavite province; has driven enemy with heavy loss; our casualties some thirty. Insurgents in this southern section not molested until threatened attack in strong force on Manila; now scattered and in retreat; doubtful if they make further stand.

LUNA ASASSINATED.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13,—3.35 p. m.—Information believed to be reliable has reached here of the assassination of General Luna and his aide de camp, Lieut. Pasco Ramon, June 8th, by Aguinaldo's guard, at the headquarters of Aguinaldo.

Luna and Ramon, it appears, went to the Filipino headquarters to confer with Aguinaldo, got into an altercation with the captain of the guard and one of them drew a revolver. The guard then killed Luna and Ramon with their bayonets.

CAVITE VEJIO BOMBARDED.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13—4.40 p. m.—At daylight today the rebels at Cavite Viejo dropped two shells from a big, smooth bore gun mounted in front of the church into the navy yard. The only damage done was splintering the top of the huge sheers on the mole. The gunboats Callao Manila and Mosquito then proceeded to dismount the gun.

After silencing the big gun at Cavite Viejo, the gunboats ran close along the shore bombarding the rebel position. The rebels replied with rifle fire and with the fire of some small pieces of artillery. So vigorous was the enemy's fire that at 9.30 a. m. the gunboat Helena joined the small gunboats mentioned and the Princeton, Monterrey and Monadnock from their anchorages dropped occasional big shells among the rebels. This, apparently only served to incite the rebels as they kept up an incessant fire of musketry and artillery near the mouth of the Zapote river, two miles north of Dakoor. The rebels were eventually forced to abandon their gun after holding out a few hours only to be confronted by General Lawton's forces on land and in their rear, where there was heavy fighting.

Beyond the destruction of several buildings along the water front, the effect of the bombardment is not known.

A LIVELY FIGHT

Both are Now Sporting Extensive "Shiners."

According to interested onlookers of affairs at the city farm, there is considerable bad feeling existing among the petty officers of that institution.

And if what the same interested parties say is true, the variance of opinion which existed between Officers McManus and Coleman came to a head yesterday morning when a pitched battle took place and soon after McManus was seen on his way to the police station. He intended to swear out a warrant for Coleman for assault and battery, and would have done so but for the peacemaking interference of Supt. Wyman, who to save the matter a publication smoothed things over to the satisfaction of all parties concerned.

The trouble, it is alleged, came about by the bucking up of a prisoner by Coleman. McManus, who came along afterward was told of this and he was heard to remark that if he had been around the prisoner would not have been punished.

Coleman apparently heard of this for without delay he went looking for McManus. Out he went, according to the story, and into the barn, of which McManus is superintendent. The men met and Coleman put his fist in the other's eye. McManus went down but came up and though bruised was full of fight. Without any ado, he went at his friend (?) Coleman. McManus sustained several bruises, it is said. When the fight was declared off by the bystanding prisoners, one of the men required the services of a physician.

Supt. Wyman, when spoken to this morning of the affair, stated that the men fought, but the results were not so serious as the outside party who gave the information would make it appear.

"Both principals were in the wrong," said Mr. Wyman, "and matters are adjusted now. The men clinched and were separated by officers. Coleman's eye is discolored and McManus may be similarly disfigured. The men are now working in the fields the same as usual. There was some talk of McManus going to get a warrant but at present he says he never had such an intention."

Mr. Coleman who then rang up The Sun, said: "There is no truth in the story. It was an ordinary happening and a story of it would only get the thoughtless to talking. I heard talk of McManus' saying that I would not look up a certain prisoner if he were around, but I paid no attention to it, however. Yesterday morning I was going across the field when McManus hollered silly names after me. I went over to him and told him to have sense and then we wrestled for awhile and that's all."

FATALLY INJURED

MISS MELVINA LAPIERRE.

Received From Collision With Scorching Bicyclists on Sunday Night—Edwin A. Lynde and Angus M. Sellers are the Riders Who Were on the Tandem—They State Their Side of the Case.

There is no longer any mystery concerning the identity of the two scorching bicyclists who ran into and fatally injured Miss Melvina Lapierre on the boulevard Sunday night.

They are Edwin A. Lynde, a plumber, employed by Scott & O'Day, plumbers, 542 Appleton street, and who boards at 39 Puffer street and Angus M. Sellers, who boards at 19 Branch street.

Both young men called at the home of the injured girl last evening and disclosed their identity. They offered to do all in their power to save the life of the young woman but at first refused to give their names. Afterward however, they gave them as above.

Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, who is attending Miss Lapierre, states that she cannot recover. She has neither opened her eyes nor spoken since the accident happened but moans constantly and in her delirium struggles in such a manner that it takes three or four to hold her in bed.

When the two men called at the Lapierre residence last evening, several relatives and friends of the injured girl were present and as soon as the former made known that they were the men who had caused the accident they were criticized severely for not having returned to the scene of the accident.

The young men in reply said that when Mr. Tobin, the young man who was in company with the women, when the accident happened, suggested that some one go for a doctor they volunteered and they claim they went with all haste to the residence of Dr. Colton, 49 Varnum avenue and asked the doctor to go to the scene of the accident.

A man whom they presumed was the doctor suggested that it would be better to call the ambulance and after hearing him call up the ambulance on the telephone they went away, feeling that they could do no more.

The night operator at the telephone exchange corroborates the statement of the two men in regard to the ambulance with the statement that there were two calls for the ambulance for the boulevard accident. The first he says came from Dr. Colton's house and later another came he thinks from the boulevard pumping station, the ambulance having gone in response to the first call before the second rang in as no one at the stable answered the call.

Lynde in telling his story to a reporter said:

"We went out to Lakeview and the Dale. Sellers going with myself by invitation, for I was tired of drifting about town, doing nothing, and I wanted company. We didn't stay a great while and we came back by way of the boulevard. It was dark and we took the right hand road down the boulevard as all cyclists and teams are supposed to do, for there are signs there saying 'Keep to the Right,' and as we got down a little distance, Sellers who was sitting behind said 'Look out! There's a buggy coming.' It was safe enough to one side for we could see the dark top far enough on our right—we were coming on the left side. As soon as we passed it we saw the wheels coming close in front of us, but it was too late to do anything, although I instinctively turned the front wheel to the right. Instantly there was a fearful crash and mixup. The head of the young lady whom we first struck took me fair over the heart and knocked me senseless for a few seconds and when I came to, I found we had also knocked the other lady (Miss Maggie McDonald) over and smashed her wheel, too.

"I don't feel that we were wholly to blame," continued Mr. Lynde. "But I only wish it had been me that was hurt instead of Miss Lapierre."

"When I swung our wheel to the right, Miss Lapierre in her excitement, turned hers to the left."

Mr. Lynde then pointed out the bent fork on the right side of Miss Lapierre's wheel to prove that this was the way the accident happened.

"If she had turned to the right instead of the left," said he, "we would have cleared all right. But she didn't and I don't want to lay any blame to her for the sad affair."

Both men offered to give themselves up to the police but the girl's father, Constable J. S. Lapierre deemed it unnecessary, as the men can be found at any time.

The police have not yet acted in the matter but owing to the serious nature of the case it is probable that the two young men will be apprehended.

JOSEPH F. CONVERY, President of the Trades and Labor Councils.

Joseph Convery, who has been elected president of the Trades and Labor Council, is one of the best known and most energetic labor men of the city. Everywhere that he is known his honesty is unquestioned and his acquaintance valued. "Joe" entered upon the cause of labor a little over a year ago and since then he has done as much good service as many who have been working earnestly for years.

Mr. Convery is at present employed in the lands and buildings workshop on Broadway where he has worked for a number of years except during Supt. Varnum's term, when he was engaged by the management of Music Hall. Mr. Convery is a carpenter by trade and has few superiors at the business in Lowell. While in the employment of the lands and buildings department, he was also stage carpenter at Huntington hall. When working at Music Hall, Mr. Convery was instrumental in bringing out the organization of the theatrical machinists' union which is now in a flourishing condition.

In the preliminary organization of the machinists, Mr. Convery's labor career began. He was also immediately appointed on committees which required considerable work and time. Mr. Convery was thus brought before the laboring people who were not slow to recognize his ability and his election to the highest office in the local labor world was the result. Ex-president Shannon, who retires in favor of Mr. Convery had been chief executive since the organization of the council.

THEY WON AGAIN

Champions Keep up the Good Work.

Pittsburg Took a Game From Cleveland.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The champion Bostons gave the giants a bad defeat here yesterday afternoon by bunching nine hits into two innings and scoring 11 runs.

The home team hit Nichols quite freely but its work was scattered through seven innings, not more than two safe ones coming in any one inning.

After Boston had scored eight runs in the third inning, with one out and two men on the bases, Coleolough relieved Carrick, and the Boston men failed to get a man around the bases thereafter. Only three hits, all singles, were made off the second pitcher, and the last 15 men at the bat for Boston went out in order.

It should have been an easy shut out for Nichols, as two men were out and the bases full when Long made a bad fumble of Gleason's grounder of the seventh, allowing two runs to cross the plate.

The playing of the teams was not so much in favor of the champions as the score might indicate. Each team got in one dozen clean drives, with a total favoring Boston two points. Each team drew three passes, and the giants reached first base 17 times, only one less than Boston.

Fourteen chances were offered the giants to send in a run from second on a safe hit and they failed. Boston lost five chances of this kind.

Boston found Carrick the most delicious morsel they have discovered this season, and were fattening up their averages in splendid style when he was sent to the stable.

Hickman and Nichols warmed up before the game. Then Nichols decided to do a little work. He was forced to let loose three or four times when a hit meant runs, and always got his man right, but the game as a whole was little more than good exercise for the old reliable.

Collins was the only Boston man who had difficult grounders to handle, and he took care of two screaming drives.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Earned runs—Boston 3. Stolen bases—Gleason, Stahl 2. Two base hits—Nichols, Gleason. Three base hit—Duffy. Double plays—Long and Tenney; Lowe, Long and Tenney; Wilson, Gleason and Doyle. First on balls, off Carrick 2, off Coleolough, off Nichols 3. Struck out—By Carrick 2, by Nichols. Passed balls—Warner, Clark. Wild pitch—Nichols. Left on bases—New York 12, Boston 3. First by errors—New York 2, Boston 2. Umpires—Lynch and Warner. Time—1h 38m. Attendance 500.

The other game played resulted as follows:

Pittsburg 5, Cleveland 3.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE.

A good way to forget the heat is to visit Lakeview theatre this week and witness the performances of Grant and Flynn's New York Stars, which while being a "hot" show will make you forget your own troubles. The charming Mayo Sisters in their songs and dances present a breezy act, while the aerial work of the Irwins reminds us that the day of flying machines is not far distant. Murphy and Willard present a pleasing musical act and the Wilsons, real coon agitators, interpret the songs of their race in a first class manner and show the latest wrinkles in cake walking. William Fields, the tramp juggler, is a wonder in his line and the whole performance is well worth attending.

WAGES ADVANCED

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 13—Nine hundred cigar makers through the instrumentality of local union 97 of that craft yesterday received an advance in their wages, running from 50 cents to 2.00 a thousand according to the style and size of the cigar. This increase in the wage scale will give the cigarmakers from $1.50 to $3.00 per week.

The pleasant relations heretofore existing between employers and the workmen is in no manner lessened by this increase the scale being agreed upon by every one of 155 cigar manufacturers in Boston.

Among the marriage licenses issued by the city clerk yesterday was one for Charles A. Whittet, superintendent of communs and Miss Lillian Lefebvre.

TOM BAKER, leader of the Baker Faction, was shot dead by one of the Howard followers while in charge of an armed escort of state troops. He makes the sixth victim of the deadly Baker-Howard feud which has become so notorious in Kentucky.

THE SIXTH VICTIM

In the Baker Feud at Manchester Ky.

DEE BAKER SHOT BY AN UNKNOWN PERSON.

Mrs. Baker to Train Her Sons for Revenge.

SAD OUTCOME OF OLD FACTIONAL STRIFE.

The Troops Called to Quell the Disturbance.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANCHESTER, Ky., June 13.—Tom Baker, the leader of the Baker faction, was killed last night. He is the sixth victim of the Baker-Howard feud.

As he was leaving the guard tent, near the court house last evening a puff of smoke was seen at the window of Sheriff White's residence, the report of a rifle followed, and Tom Baker fell into his wife's arms crying, "Oh, my God! They have killed me!" A moment later he was dead.

Several companies of state militia, which have been on guard here for a week were busy making ready to march to Barboursville with the indicted men, Colonel Williams intending to start early this morning.

With Tom Baker, when he was killed, were his wife, who is soon to be a mother, his brothers Al and Dee, and his son Jim. They were about sixty yards from the residence of Bev. P. White, the sheriff of Clay county, and brother to Will White, who was killed by Tom Baker.

Colonel Williams ordered the assembly sounded. In less time than it takes to tell every soldier was in his place, and a line was thrown across the front of the court house yard. Captain Longmire brought out his Gatling gun, a hundred cartridges were thrown into the hopper and it was ready for the attack.

Colonel Williams gave orders to charge the White residence, and the boys, with bayonets fixed, went forward at double-quick, scaling the yard fence.

Before the soldiers reached the house Sheriff White at the head of 30 men, all armed with pistols, came out to dispute the way. The soldiers halted.

Col. Williams' next order, "Charge!" caused the Howards and Whites to flee into the house. Thence they loudly threatened to shoot any man who tried to enter.

"Bring up the Gatling," ordered Colonel Williams, and that powerful persuader was trained on the house. It had a quieting effect on the men inside. After a very brief parley they surrendered. Sheriff White was arrested for resisting the guards.

Dee Baker begged the guards to give him a gun, so he could kill Bev White and Jim Baker cried for his gun. Jim swore he would kill Bev White if it took a lifetime.

There is much doubt as to who killed Tom Baker. A bystander said he saw the figure of a man to him unknown, on the porch of the White house a few seconds before the shot was fired.

In less than fifteen minutes after the shooting every business house in town was closed, and women fled to the hills. The mountaineers had made many threats as to what they would do to the troops if the latter ever fired on them. Hundreds of armed men were scattered through the streets.

The best marksmen were detailed to shoot down the soldiers who composed the Gatling gun squad. These mountaineers are armed with Winchesters and all are crack shots. The soldiers realize that little is needed to bring on a battle.

MRS. BAKER TO TRAIN HER 11 SONS FOR REVENGE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BARBOURVILLE, Ky., June 13.—The troops with Jim and Wiley Baker, charged with murder in connection with the Baker-Howard feud, arrived here at 10 a. m., from Manchester, delivering the prisoners in the county jail, and going into camp in the court house.

Mrs. Baker says she will train her 11 sons so that the height of their ambition will be to kill a White or a Howard. Jim and Wiley are quiet, and refuse to talk.

JURY DISAGREED

AFTER BEING OUT ALL NIGHT.

The Claim Was for $50,000 Damages

FOR ALIENATION OF WIFE'S AFFECTION

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 13.—All night the jury having in charge the case for alleged alienation of affection, brought by Murdoch McKenzie against Dr. and Mrs. Lougest, was out. It had been instructed on retirement yesterday afternoon to bring in a sealed verdict.

The hearing of evidence was resumed yesterday morning before Judge Sherman. Mrs. Lougest, mother of Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, told in reply to the questions of Counsel Innis how she and Dr. Lougest had commenced to be suspicious of Nellie because of her actions, and they were going to call in a physician, but she left the house.

She also repeated in detail the incidents attending the visit of herself and her husband to Lowell when they received a letter from Nellie and the circumstances in connection with Nellie's return with them.

Dr. C. A. Lougest, the defendant, testified in reply to Mr. Innis, how he came to employ Murdock McKenzie as a farmhand and how McKenzie used to drive the family from the farm to the railroad station, a distance of two or three miles. Coming down to the time that Nellie left home and went to Lowell, the witness said that when he decided to go to Lowell he declared that if Nellie and McKenzie were married, she should never darken his door again, but if they were not married he would forgive Nellie and take her home.

"What was your object?" asked Dr. Lougest's counsel.

"My object was to stop the marriage, if possible," replied the witness.

The witness told of himself and his wife, Nellie's mother, going to Lowell, and visiting Dr. Jefferson and inquiring for Nellie. They then went to McKenzie's boarding house. "I rang the bell," he continued, "and Nellie came to the door at once. She begged me to forgive her and to take her home."

"Did you believe her to be married at the time?"

"I did not, sir."

The witness continued to say that in the cab on the way to the railroad station in Lowell there was no conversation on his part. Nellie sat with her head on her mother's shoulder and cried.

Next morning, he said, Nellie came downstairs at his house on Columbus avenue, with a letter in her hand addressed to "Mrs. Nellie McKenzie" and witness told her that if she and McKenzie were married, she had better go and live with him. She answered, asking him not to send her away, saying, "I would rather be in my grave than with that man."

Dr. Lougest, in reply to specific questions, denied that he had threatened to shoot McKenzie or had made any attempt to prevent McKenzie from visiting his wife at witness's house. In cross-examination by Counsel Daggett, for McKenzie, Dr. Lougest denied that he ever had a woman employed in the case endeavoring to get evidence against McKenzie.

MRS. McKENZIE'S STORY.

Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, wife of Murdock, was then called to the witness stand. She is a trimly built little woman, with jet black hair. She said she is now 27 years old and is a daughter of Mrs. Lougest, the doctor himself being her stepfather.

"What were the relations between your father and mother and yourself?" asked Mr. Innis.

"Oh, the relations between pa and ma and myself were always most friendly."

"How did you become acquainted with Murdock McKenzie?"

"He used to drive me back and forth to the depot from the farm at Franklin a distance of about three miles. About a month or so after he became acquainted with me he told that he loved me dearly and, more talk of that kind so I listened to it all and finally I got to like him somewhat, too."

"Did you kiss each other?"

"No, I did not."

"Was this concealed from your parents?"

"It was."

Mrs. McKenzie then went on to say that the relations between Murdock and herself grew more affectionate between November and December, 1895. One day she was in the dining room of the house and Murdoch came to the door and asked, "May I come in?" She answered that he might if he wished.

"He began to speak love to me," continued Nellie, "and pulled a bottle out of his pocket. After some persuasion I took a drink from him.'

JURY DISAGREED.

BOSTON, June 13.—The jury in the case of Murdoch McKenzie vs. Dr. Lougest for the alleged alienation of the affections of plaintiff's wife, Nellie McKenzie, the defendant's stepdaughter, which went out yesterday afternoon today reported that they could not agree.

THE AMERICA

IS AS STAUNCH A CRAFT AS OF YORE.

Lieut. Col. Butler Ames has had the famous old yacht America thoroughly overhauled.

Since the famous yacht came out of Simpson's dry dock, eight days ago, and made her berth at the National dock, East Boston, she has been viewed by hundreds of people. Skipper William H. Canning has been kept busy answering questions.

Lieut. Col. Ames and Capt. Canning have superintended the thorough overhauling of the America and believe that she is faster than ever.

While having a great fondness for yachting, Mr. Ames says that business this summer will prevent him from spending as much time as he would like to aboard the boat. It is his intention, anyway, to see the International yacht race. Of course he is intensely American and all his hopes are in the Columbia. He has a new mainsail for his craft and with this spread of canvas, he hopes to keep within seeing distance of the Columbia and Shamrock.

In her new suit of canvas, her glittering coat of white paint and her brass rails and ornaments shining in the sun, and beautiful contour of her hull above the water-line, the America looks very handsome.

Capt. Canning has been the skipper of the America for over 20 years.

The Striking Shoemakers of Marlboro Are in Need of Assistance.

The Central Labor union of Boston has issued the following, addressed to all organized labor and sympathizers:

The undersigned, a committee authorized by the Central Labor union of Boston to solicit aid for the support of the strike now in progress at Marlboro, Mass., appeals for your sympathy and support. Ten local unions of shoe workers, numbering 3,000, have been on strike for the past 21 weeks, defending the right to maintain their organizations.

The employers seek to establish what they call "free shops," properly called slave pens, and insist that they treat only with individuals.

Two of the employers (Mr. Rice and Mr. Howe), at a banquet held in Boston Nov. 21, declared it to be their intention to "smash the American Federation of Labor," and likened the unions unto the Kuklux of the south.

We are led to appeal to you at this time in the hope that you will assist the men and women who are making one of the most, if not the most, heroic struggles in defense of the rights of organized labor ever made in this country, and that we may awaken your interest to the extent that you will contribute at least a sum equal to 2 cents or more per member per month from your union while the strike continues.

The strikers are so enthusiastic and confident of their ultimate success that it would be the rankest shame if organized labor failed to appreciate the sacrifices now being made by these noble men and women who are defending a principle most dear to every true trade unionist.

If you can possibly rake up a few dollars which can be contributed to this worthy cause, then do so quickly, and send returns to D. D. Driscoll, 987 Washington street, Boston.

Do not be deceived by any article that may appear in the press stating that the strike in Marlboro is settled. That is but a part of the scheme of the manufacturers to defeat the strike.

FRED J. KNEELAND.

"JACK ARMSTRONG."

His "Book of the Wanderers" Is Unlike Any Other Book Published.

About 12 years ago, when the Chicago Labor Enquirer was one of the leading papers in the field of labor journalism, there was printed in its columns a series of tramp stories, written by "Jack Armstrong," that attracted unusual attention because of the terse style in which they were written and the truth and philosophy that ran through them like threads of gold. It is a pleasure to know that William Harrison Riley—or "Jack Armstrong"—has in the hands of a publisher "The Book of the Wanderers" by "Jack Armstrong." The story is similar in character to the papers that were printed in the Chicago Enquirer, but shows the extra care that is expected in a book.

"The Book of the Wanderers" is a socialistic work, containing just enough fiction to make it attractive to readers who object to "too much solid." In the story "Jack Armstrong" tells how he was formally educated in the private seminary of the Misses Pripperton. Then he relates some of his experiences while on the tramp and philosophizes on various social, political and theological questions. He engages as an editor and has the assistance of contributions from various heterodox persons, including "Elijah the Prophet," "Impy the Hoodlum," "Saint Newman," "Lucy White" and others. The subjects range from currency to communism, from profit sharing to the Chicago tragedy which cost Parsons, Spies and others their lives. About every phase of social reform is treated of in the plainest language.

The Competition of Women.

The competition of women in the industrial world is coming to be recognized as something that must sooner or later engage the attention of social philosophers. Very few will deny that woman has the right to engage in the industrial pursuits if she sees fit to do so, and therefore the question of right or wrong cannot in good faith be argued. The New York Journal has taken a strong stand against the employment of women in the industrial world, and it bases its objections thereto upon two very novel grounds—namely: That the competition of women tends to lower wages, thereby reducing the earning capacity of the natural breadwinners; that the increased presence of women in the industrial world works a direct injury to the physical well being of the race.

The ever increasing presence of women in the industrial world is a problem pressing for solution. It cannot be settled on sentimental lines, for women's presence in the industrial world is not the result of sentiment. It is the result of a wrong industrial scheme. It is not a question of woman's right to enter into industrial competition with men. It is a question of remedying an industrial system which has forced women into industrial competition with men. The danger is grave enough to demand the attention of the wisest social economists of the nation.—Omaha World-Herald.

Bricklayers and Masons.

Thomas O'Dea, general secretary of the Bricklayers and Masons' International union, has forwarded to all subordinate unions a circular notifying them to consider the proposition of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. This is in accordance with the instructions of the convention held in Hartford last January, and the votes of the unions are to be returned in time for publication in the semiannual report in July.

MASSACHUSETTS LED.

Bulletin Showing Labor Legislation Enacted In 1898.

A bulletin issued by Horace G. Wadlin, chief of the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics, presents a number of matters of interest to members of trades unions, men in public life and students of the economic movement.

The first subject treated is labor legislation of 1898. The report states that during the year 1898 practically nothing was added to the statute books in any state relative to the hours of labor or to the employment of of women and children.

Labor legislation in 1898 was exceedingly restricted. In Vermont Labor day was established as a legal holiday. In New York the law relative to the employment of convicts was so changed as to provide that no printing could be done by convicts except such as might be required for the state penal and charitable institutions, or for reports relating thereto. The new constitution of Louisiana provides that after the expiration of the present leases convict labor shall no longer be leased, but may by authority of the legislature be employed on public works, convict farms or in manufacturing under the control or administration of the state. In Louisiana and Virginia a law was enacted enabling labor organizations to register their labels or trademarks. A bureau of labor and industrial statistics was established in Virginia.

The labor legislation of Massachusetts in 1898 exceeded in extent similar legislation in any other state. Summarized, labor legislation in this state provides for a textile school in New Bedford; amends and strengthens the law relating to the manufacture of clothing in tenements and dwelling houses; amends the act relative to the inspection of steam boilers; provides for the employment of prisoners, as far as possible, upon articles and materials to be used in the several public institutions of the commonwealth, and permits the general superintendent of prisons to employ prisoners in preparing road material by hand labor; provides that the labor of prisoners may be used in reclaiming and improving waste and unused lands not exceeding 1,000 acres in area, which may be taken in fee by the governor and council for that purpose. On such land, when thus taken, the governor may establish industrial camps for prisoners employed thereon. It also extends the operation of the law relative to the weekly payment of wages, which was previously restricted to corporations and contractors and to persons and partnerships engaged in manufacturing having more than 25 employees, so as to remove the limitation fixing the number of employees.

The law relating to the employment of children, and their schooling was also changed so as to provide that no child under 14 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment, and that no such child shall be employed in any work performed for wages or other compensation during the hours when the public schools of the town or city in which he resides are in session, or at any work before the hour of 6 in the morning or after the hour of 7 in the evening, and no child under 16 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment except under provisions as to education fixed by law, including the filing of an age certificate in terms and under such provisions as the law contains.

A statute was also enacted prohibiting deductions in the wages of women and minors employed in manufacturing or mechanical establishments for the time during which the machinery is stopped, if said women and minors were refused the privilege of leaving the mill during such time, and also providing that none of the employees shall be compelled to make up time lost through the breaking down of the machinery, unless compensated at their regular rate of wages, if said employees had been detained within their workrooms during the time of such breakdown.

In California, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, Ohio and Wisconsin the laws prohibit the employment of women and minors under 18 for more than 60 hours per week in factories and workshops.

Italian Laborers For Hawaiian Plantations.

The planters are planning to introduce a large number of Italian laborers into the cane fields of Hawaii. A meeting of the trustees of the Sugar Planters' association was held the other day, at which the groundwork for bringing the Italians was laid. It will be submitted as soon as possible to a general meeting.

Consul F. A. Schaefer has succeeded in bringing about this new and promising labor market. In the past nine months several letters have passed between him and the government at Rome respecting the matter. A few months ago Mr. Schaefer sent to the Italian government copies of the labor contract, labor laws and full descriptions of plantation accommodations. Attention was also drawn to conditions as they would be when American laws were extended over the islands and the contract system abolished.

By the last mail Consul Schaefer received a letter from Rome stating that the contract and general plan were satisfactory. The Italian government would permit the enlistment and shipment of unlimited numbers of the peasant class of labor from the northern part of the kingdom. In dealing with the laborers, both in shipment and on plantations here, the Italian government desired to follow the same plan practiced in the labor transactions between Hawaii and Portugal.—Cor. San Francisco Call.

Examine the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor; its color and gloss are being destroyed and you may see where a cake of common soap fresh from the hot water in the scrubbing bucket has been laid on it for a moment, the free alkali having eaten an impression of the cake into the bright colors.

A more careful examination will show small "pin holes" here and there where the alkali has cut through the surface to soak into and gradually weaken the whole floor covering.

This is what cheap soaps do. Use Ivory Soap, it will not injure.

False Pretenses

Misrepresenting the circulation of a newspaper to advertisers is obtaining money under false pretenses. All newspapers have a certain value as advertising mediums, but the value is determined by the number of papers printed and sold.

The Sun prints and sells more papers than any two other newspapers in Lowell. It is the cheapest of all the local papers on the basis of circulation. You should look into this matter intelligently when making your appropriation for advertising in Lowell.

When young ladies are invited to go boating, they should ascertain whether the man at the oars knows anything about rowing a boat. We have seen ladies out on a boat where they were in momentary danger of losing their lives although they did not realize the fact.

The pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church, Rev. A. E. Kenyon, is another influential personage added to the forces of sobriety and good order in this city. He is one of the clergymen who give newspapers due credit for their work in behalf of public decency and morality throughout the community.

Sam Lee is the first Chinaman who has had the audacity to enter the liquor business without a license. Sam's experience in court will probably prevent a repetition of the offense by his brother celestials. It would take a lot of washing to pay that $100, together with the costs incurred in the trial. Sam Lee will probably conclude that he had better stick to his washboard.

That was a rather comical statement which the father of Jim Jeffries, a religious minister, made on hearing of his son's victory. "I don't approve of the profession, because I believe it is bad. Nevertheless, I believe the Lord was on Jim's side." Is it not a reflection upon the Lord to charge that He would interfere in such a matter in favor of either side? If the new champion would send his parents about $10,000 of his prize money his ministerial father would more than ever be convinced that Providence had a hand in the fight.

COWARDLY SCORCHERS.

The bicycle accident on the boulevard on Sunday night as reported in yesterday's Sun, is an indication of the unprincipled character of the scorchers who endanger the lives of persons on public highways. The young woman was knocked down by two scorchers and while they returned to find her unconscious they said they would go and find a doctor. On this pretext they sneaked off without leaving their names and left the young lady to die, so far as they were concerned. That was a most cowardly deed.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

The Fourth of July committee has partly settled upon the features of the celebration and already we are assured that there will be a grand parade, a children's entertainment, parachute jump, band concerts and fireworks in the evening. If the money appropriated be expended to the best advantage, the celebration should be a good one. The committee is to be commended for dispensing with the oration feature, which has become a good deal of a chestnut. When there is any attempt to make it subservient to the canvass of any political aspirant, it is particularly desirable to abandon it altogether.

THE SMOOTH PAVING CONTRACTS

At present the people of the city are discussing the question of smooth paving, the expense, the quality and the necessity of this species of paving. It is but a short time ago since the experiment of putting in a little smooth paving was tried on Charles street. It happened that the contract for the smooth paving for Charles street was given to the Boston Paving Co., which has a patent on a certain kind of smooth paving, called "asphaltina." The next street of any importance to be smooth paved was Gorham street, in which the "asphaltina" company also got the job. Now it is Westford street that is to be smooth paved and strange as it may appear, the Boston Paving Co. has also secured the contract, but the street committee has recommended that Mammoth Road, Suffolk street and a portion of Bridge street shall also be smooth paved, though the contract for the latter has not yet been awarded.

Judging from the manner in which the various smooth paving contracts have been given to the "asphaltina," the Boston Paving Co. it would appear that there was, in reality, no other reliable concern in this business, but investigation will show that there are concerns in the business much more reliable than the Boston Paving Co., that there are companies which put in asphalt that is generally conceded to be superior to asphaltina. In point of fact, the asphalt companies give a ten year guarantee on their work, whereas the asphaltina company, which has received contracts here in Lowell, gives but a five year guarantee. This is quite a difference if the guarantee from a company that furnishes a proper bond to the city means anything, then the company which guarantees its work for ten years should have preference over one that guarantees its work for five years, especially when it figures as low or lower than the other.

There is another matter to be considered in connection with this smooth paving business and it is this: At the present time the contracts for smooth paving Westford street are awarded to the Boston Paving Co. for $2.50 per square yard, whereas when that company figured in competition with other concerns it bid as low as $2.35 per square yard, the work and material in both cases being precisely the same.

Thus, it appears, that had the company been forced into competition it would have done the work at a lower figure.

There is a provision in the city charter that for all purchases of material exceeding $300 in amount, bids shall be called for, but if the street department would follow the same rule it could save considerable money for the city.

His Honor, the mayor, has made a great deal of a fuss over the fact that Mr. Muldoon was invested with some authority in the supply department, in the absence of Agent Barrett, but if he is so zealous in guarding the city's interests, it seems strange that he permits such loose methods to be employed in awarding contracts for smooth paving. Why does he not insist that the matter be thrown open to competition? He has the veto power against any such contract presented to him.

Why does he sign a contract for the expenditure of a large amount of money in smooth paving without calling for bids while there is abundant proof that the work can be done cheaper and better for less money? It seems that if he showed half the solicitude for the city's welfare in the smooth paving business that he has done in interfering with Mr. Barrett of the supply department, he might save the city thousands of dollars.

The question now comes, whether the Boston Paving company is to have a monopoly of the business in this city or whether the city's business is to be thrown open to competition so that the best material and the best work may be obtained at the lowest figure. The fact that but one company furnishes asphaltina is no excuse for giving the contract to that company alone. There is but one company that furnishes Trinidad Lake asphalt. Why has not a contract been awarded to that company? There are other companies furnishing smooth paving that investigation will show to be superior to asphaltina. Why is not the contract given to one of these? Any of them has as strong a claim to consideration as has the asphaltina company, but it may be that some official of the last named company has a pull at city hall that settles the matter, and shuts out the other companies, even from the privilege of bidding upon the work. It is time that this particular method of awarding contracts for smooth paving or anything else should be prohibited in the interest of the city in order to prevent extravagance and the waste of public money.

Several contracts have been given to the asphaltina company. Would it not be policy now to try a company that backs its work with a guarantee twice as long as that of the asphaltina company? If the guarantee indicates the durability of the smooth paving in each case, then the company that gives a ten year guarantee has a better article than that which can venture but a five year guarantee.

Why give preference to the poorer and less durable article? Is it because of favoritism or because of a political pull with the officials who let the contract?

CURRENT COMMENT.

Providence Journal—The latest bank defalcation—up in Dover, N. H.—is plainly another case where negligence has contributed quite as much as criminal intent to the catastrophe.

Manchester Union—Now that the peace commissioners to the Philippines are about to come home, having failed to argue the Filipinos into submission, why not send over a force of our trained stump speakers and determine what success they will have?

Philadelphia Press—Judging from the present outlook the Royalists in France are in for a bad quarter of an hour. The republic is supreme, the people are with it and the conspirators against its peace in the army, in the legislature, in private life, are likely to come to grief. The world will welcome a rounding up of these enemies of law and order and will wish President Loubet and his counsellors success. This seems assured as the outbreak at Auteuil, quite as ridiculous as Deroulede's "revolution" of last February has compromised the cause of all pretenders. If the Duke of Orleans is in Paris and is wise, he will not wait on the order of his going but get out.

Philadelphia North American—In the Shakespearean field alone, criticize Mr. Daly's stage adaptations as we may, he labored with genuine reverence for the bard and the light which he has shed upon these immortal dramas in the masterly presentations they have received at his hands, through artists painstakingly trained for their tasks, amply compensates for all of the so-called liberties which he took with the original texts. Aside from his Shakespearean productions, Mr. Daly gave to lovers of the stage from his own mind and in adaptations from the best foreign dramatists, an almost countless number of plays which are brilliant examples of the acted drama. His achievements are too fresh in the public mind to render necessary a recalling of the plays and the players he has given to the public. He was one of the fathers of the American drama and through his passing away we lose a stage genius whose place will be filled with difficulty if at all.

New York Post—The state of Massachusetts continues to set an excellent example for the rest of the country by reserving large tracts of land which possess great natural beauty for the enjoyment of future generations. Greylock, the noble mountain in the northwestern corner of the Commonwealth, was threatened with the loss of its charms a few years ago by the reckless assaults of lumbermen, who saw in the extensive forests along its slopes only so much wood. Happily there were public spirited citizens who recognized the shame which it would be to their generation if these mountain sides should be swept bare, and a movement was organized which, with the co-operation of the legislature, ended in the permanent acquisition for the community of a great tract of land. Greylock being secure, Wachusett, a fine mountain near the center of the state, next invited attention and the state will soon come into possession of 10,000 acres of land there, covering not only the summit, but also its approaches on every side. The readiness of a democracy thus to spend large sums of public money in the interest of beauty and taste is one of the most hopeful things in the development of our institutions.

It is hoped that the social clubs of this city will take hold of the parade idea on July Fourth and make the parade a success. Good sized prizes will make it an object.

The Home, Alpine, Apollo, Ippo, Hereford and other prominent clubs should get in the game.

This is the feast of St. Anthony of Padua and is observed with special devotions in the local Catholic churches. St. Anthony was a native of Lisbon and was first a monk of the Augustine order but afterward became one of the most active propagators of the Order of Franciscans.

My attention has been called to a mistake which I made unintentionally recently in reporting the Barrett-Furrel wedding at which the floral decorations were among the neatest I have ever seen. The artistic decorative work was by Whittet & Co., I gave the credit to another firm. Excuse me Willie and remember me with a ticket for the fireworks.

I have never seen a spellbinder so thoroughly "gone" on a candidate as is George W. Poore, the well known bearer of the republican city committee on Curtis Guild Jr., candidate for republican nomination for lieutenant governor. "You mark my words," says George to whoever is so unfortunate to mention the fight to him, "Curtis Guild, Jr., will carry that convention with votes to spare."

While at Glen Forest Saturday night I heard a familiar voice crying "Here's just one sent for a ride man" and looking around beheld my old friend "Nick" Calnin, the genial starter and perhaps the most indispensible man in the employ of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill road. "Nick" is "starting" at Glen Forest this year and they say that he can fill a car quicker than any man in Lawrence. "Nick" has been 13 years in the employ of the L. L. & H. and is still in the "young fellows" class and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Barney Morris was 101 years old yesterday says a New York despatch, but he went to his work as usual.

He walked a mile from his home, 264 Warren street, Brooklyn to Prospect park and displayed more energy in clearing the lawns of paper and rubbish than many a man half a century younger.

Barney has been a park laborer for the last ten years. He is the oldest city employee in Greater New York.

Father Time has dealt kindly with Barney. He enjoys good health and no one would judge from his appearance that he is more than 65. His eye sight is good and he wears no spectacles. As for walking with a cane Barney says: "Pshaw! Canes are for dudes.

"I was born June 10, 1792 in County Cavan, Ireland, where they raise good people" said Barney yesterday. "My father had a farm there. When I was 36 years old I came to America and I settled in Brooklyn."

Barney said he used to be a great hand ball player, something of a boxer and a general all around athlete.

"I never used tobacco or rum" he continued "and to my abstinence and hard work, with lots of play when I got the chance, I attribute my longevity."

Barney lives with his third wife, who is about 55 years old. He gets up every morning at 5 o'clock and walks to his work in Prospect park.

SOCIAL CHAT

Sunday was an ideal day for a ride in the electrics and they were worked to their fullest capacity, the railroad company having in use every car that could possibly carry passengers. The Lakeview route was of course as usual the heaviest worked line owing to the band concert which is always a great attraction. The other suburban routes showed very heavy riding. About every car was loaded beyond comfort and of course under these conditions a person sees many interesting sights and I witnessed one myself. I took a ride as far as Willmington and on my return as the car arrived at Billerica, a woman with three small children boarded the car which at that time had about every seat occupied and it was quite a problem what would become of this woman and her three small children. Her husband escorted her as far as the car, bade her good-bye and returned probably to the village. The childrens' ages ranged from an infant of three months to a child not over three years. The woman interested me very much in her very uncomfortable position trying to get a seat as well as provide some sort of standing room for the children. The warm air would cause an adult to feel drowsy and it certainly had the same telling effect on the children, and all finally became sleepy. A lady took one in her lap carrying it all the way to the city. What struck me very forcibly was the idea of a man to allow his wife to travel burdened with three babies. It certainly was a source of annoyance to the mother and a great deal of uneasiness to the conductor. This condition of affairs happens quite frequently and it is not pleasant for the passengers, conductors or the mother of the children. I believe that the father should accompany his wife if he wants his children to have a ride. When they arrived at the square the lady who kindly volunteered to take one of the children in her lap was more excited than the mother, as an appearance of cold perspiration came over her face not knowing how she could wake the child who was in a heavy sleep. The mother got out of the car with the infant sound asleep in her arms, the little boy equally so and the little girl in the lady's lap. It seemed to waken when a gentleman took the little one and carried her to the sidewalk where he shook her gently, talking with her and after a great deal of urging managed to get her little eyes open. The mother all this time was in the most agitated state of mind, and she had the sympathy of everybody, even perhaps the conductor. This is just one incident that probably had been repeated Sunday scores of times on every line in the city and suburbs.

Another thing that I observed while out riding was a number of married men whom I have been intimately acquainted with for years, taking a ride in the electrics with their wives. I attributed that pleasing incident to the no-license condition of our city as I know that some of these men were the regular frequenters of our Sunday hotels when the city had license. If a person desired to comment on the moral influences under no-license, there would not be room enough in The Sun to publish all the beneficial results that can be witnessed every day.

TOMORROW AFTERNOON.

We have decided to break up our home, sell our residence on Wilder street, our business property on Merrimack street, travel abroad for at least one year, and upon our return reside in Boston. In compliance with the above determination, we propose on Wednesday afternoon next, June 14th, 1899, to sell to the highest bidders at public auction the WILLIAM BASCOM RESIDENCE, No. 240 Wilder street, or at the corner of Wilder and Grove streets, and the Business Estate numbered 390, 392, 396 and 400 Merrimack street, opposite City Hall.

AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

THE RESIDENCE. Elegant modern house of ten rooms, also bath room, laundry, ironing room, storage and cellar, all heated by an excellent upright steam plant. Full set of double windows, window screens and screen doors. The living room, dining room, and large hall are finished in quartered oak and rosewood the drawing room is finished in cherry and rosewood. The second floor is in white wood finished in delicate colorings; the walls and ceilings throughout the house are beautifully decorated. The lower floor has plate glass windows, open fireplaces in both living room and dining room; the house is in prime condition and is certainly, with a very few exceptions one of the highest class, handsomest finished, and most expensive houses in the Highlands and there are none so choicely situated. It occupies the prominent height of Wilder street.

THE STABLE has stalls for two horses; carriage house for four carriages; harness room for eight harnesses; wash stand, cellar, heat, light and water.

THE LOT has a frontage of 73 feet on Wilder street, 131 feet on Grove street, an area of 5709 square feet and it is a most excellent parcel of land.

This estate is a most conspicuous one among the most conspicuous estates in ward eight, is right in the heart of the most select and finest neighborhood in this fashionable portion of Lowell. The house will be open for inspection after 10 a. m. on day of sale or between 3 and 5 o'clock p. m., and for full particulars apply on application.

AT FIVE O'CLOCK.

BIJOU THEATRE PROPERTY. About 7700 square feet of land with a frontage of 88 feet on Merrimack street. On the land is a three-story frame building with basement. The ground floor has three stores and theatre entrance. Is occupied by Dr. M. E. Thompson, druggist; Fred E. Labarge, shoe store; Castes Tengos, confectionery. The second and third stories are used as a theatre. The property rents for $215 a month and until very recently has rented for $265 a month. The contents of the theatre are as follows: Scenery, asbestos curtain, folding chairs and carpets.

This property is certainly a strong investment estate and from a speculative standpoint is a very chancey realty. Situated as it is on the best business street in Lowell today, in a spot that must always be a choice business stand, opposite the municipal buildings or seat of government of our city; a particular location that has got to be passed and repassed several times a day by thousands of our citizens, as well as by strangers and visitors in coming in and going out of Lowell; it can never be worth less as long as Lowell remains a city and if the past is a criterion it is going to be worth twice as much within the next twelve or fifteen years. It is conceded by the best real estate men in Lowell that there never was a more propitious time in the history of Lowell to buy real estate than the present and that well situated real estate in Lowell will be worth more money within the next eight or ten years than ever before in the history of the city.

The purchaser of the residence must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers $1200 as soon as the property is struck off; the purchaser of the Bijou Theatre property must do the same with $2500. Other terms liberal. Sales rain or shine and on the premises.

VOTE TO WITHDRAW FROM THE ARCHDIOCESAN UNION.

The Father Mathew C.T.A.B. society of Lawrence met Sunday at its hall in that city and voted to withdraw from the archdiocesan union of Boston. The reason for this is that the society which has been paying into the union a far larger amount than any other society, feels that the benefits derived from the union are not worth the cost of membership.

VERY SENSATIONAL

Is Report of Alaska's Grand Jury.

It Denounces the General Agent of Education and Recommends That He be Removed.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

JUNEAU, Alaska, June 6.—via Seattle, Wash., June 12.—The grand jury of the United States district court for Alaska rendered a sensational report on the conduct of educational matters in Alaska. The report reads:

"In the hope that it may be able to effectually reach some remedial power of authority the grand jury desires to direct attention to the deplorable condition of educational affairs in Alaska.

"The blame cannot be justly laid at the doors of congress. Between the years 1884 and 1887, inclusive, there was appropriated for education in Alaska an aggregate of $415,000, a sum which had it been judiciously expended, ought to have given Alaska a school system fairly commensurate with the requirements of our people.

"We do not undertake to say that there has been any dishonest or direct misappropriation of any part of this large sum of money, but we do aver that a considerable portion of it has been frittered away in payment of the expenses of wholly useless summer jaunts by the general agent of education to remote parts of the establishtion to remote parts for the establishments of schools at points where but

"For the reason that it believes that a large sum of money has been uselessly expended and the truth not being manifested, will continue to be expended under the direction of the general agent of education in Alaska while yet the neglect of our educational interests is prolonged, the grand jury would hesitate to refer even casually to his extraordinary scheme for revolutionizing the mode of travel and transportation of mails and supplies in Alaska by the introduction of domesticated reindeer from Siberia. But we submit that his utter neglect of the duties for the performance of which he is paid a salary and the consequent demoralization of our educational system demands and justifies even harsher criticism than that which follows:

"We charge that this man is untruthful and he has persistently embodied in his official reports concerning educational matters in Alaska that which he knew to be absolutely false. If he has been guilty of falsehood in his official report on schools and education in Alaska, what reliance is to be placed on those he makes concerning the use of reindeer in Alaska? The plain simple truth is that each and every attempt at the use of the reindeer for transportation in Alaska has been a failure.

"The grand jury therefore earnestly protests against any further recommendation for the importation of domesticated reindeer and respectfully begs and prays on behalf of a long-suffering people that the honorable secretary of the interior may in his wisdom see fit to relieve Alaska of the incubus of an official who enjoys neither the respect nor the confidence of any considerable portion of her people, white or native, and whose days of usefulness so far as Alaska is concerned, were long since buried."

This strike is directed against the large wholesale dealers and the workers have the sympathy and support of the contractors, who complain that the dealers have reduced prices formerly paid for garments.

HIS LIFE SAVINGS

Stolen From John Williams a Finlander.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 12.—John Williams, a Finlander, who intended to sail for his native country today, reported to the police here that a fellow countryman whom he trusted had robbed him of his life savings, amounting to $995. Williams has been employed in an axe handle factory in East Douglass. He came to Boston Saturday afternoon with Victor Matson, who had been his friend. The two men went to a lodging house in Roxbury, to remain until today. Last night when they retired Williams placed his vest in which he kept his money under his pillow. At 5 o'clock this morning, Matson and the vest and the money were gone.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 12.—Gov. Dyer had a conference with Attorney General Tanner this morning, regarding the disposition of Amos D. Palmer, who the court last week decided was not responsible for his act when he killed his wife. There are some points of law to be considered and the governor decided to delay action. The friends of Mr. Palmer desire that he be sent to the McLean asylum at Somerville, Mass., and it is believed that Governor Dyer will accede to their request in this particular.

SENATOR GEORGE

The Haverhill Scholar in Town

A Most Picturesque Early Bird.

It's the early bird that catches the worm, even in politics and while Bates and Guild are off at the beach somewhere depending upon George Poore and others to look after their booms in this city, Senator Frank George, the Belan, with his name in his hat and his overcoat over his arm lest a "frost" overtake him, is in town today, booming himself mightily for the position of state auditor.

Senator George looking as charming and as picturesque as the scenery which one views from the deck of his steamer while floating down the Merrimack from Haverhill, blew into town this morning alone and unheralded, but with a purpose of which he was not ashamed.

When I saw him he was still alone in a restaurant calmly annihilating a large steak and out of respect for his appetite I did not approach him but others saw him during the day and from them I learned his purpose, namely, to boom himself for the position of state auditor next fall.

His friends want him in that position. True, as yet they have not kept us awake nights clamoring for his recognition but nevertheless they want him. all candidates have friends who want them to run and Senator George is merely taking advantage of a cool day and is helping his friends along in their laudable desire to have him nominated for the office of state auditor.

MATRIMONIAL.

About one hundred and fifty local and Boston friends of Dr. Fred Stedman Snow and Miss Amy Louise Brooks of Boston, this afternoon witnessed the ceremony which made them husband and wife.

The wedding, which was a very brilliant one, took place at the home of the bride's brother, Dr. James B. Fields, 329 Westford street. Rev. Charles A. Dickinson, D. D. of Boston, united the happy couple just at 3. Surrounded under an overhanging floral piece and there pledged their vows. The wedding march was over a route of roses, the bride and her attendants descending from her room as the groom awaited her coming. The balusters were entwined with smilax and other cut flowers.

The bride and her maid were handsomely attired in white silk with pretty trimmings.

MEMORIAL SUNDAY

Yesterday was Memorial Sunday with the local Veteran Firemen's associations which turned out in large numbers and visited their dead. The members were attired in their uniforms and at each grave they left a floral tribute, after brief service. At noon committee of the L. V. H., were decorated. Then in the afternoon the indoor service was held at the Gree church, where Rev. R. A. Greene preached the memorial sermon, and eulogized John F. Williams and James Pierce, with whom he was acquainted.

Secretary Charles W. Philbrick then read the names of members who died the past year. The list included John H. Conlain, Alvin Thompson, James Pierce, John F. Williams, Thomas McLaughlin and Bernard J. Brady. Singing followed.

General Butler Veteran firemen held memorial exercises. The members turned out in full uniform and in a special electric car visited the Catholic and Edson cemeteries, and stopped at the graves of John J. Ball, John J. Mealey and Wm. S. Knapp.

YALE CREW AT PRACTICE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

YALE QUARTERS, Gale's Ferry, Conn., June 12.—Today, for the first time during their stay here this season the Yale oarsmen experienced rough water and as a result were handicapped in their practice. The crew did not go out until 11 o'clock. Followed by the four substitutes the Varsity crew rowed over to Horton's Cove and both shells were sent over a half mile course. The Yale launch tied up to the railroad trestles and Coachers Gaullaudet and Armstrong looked after the men from there. The work of the men in the two shells was ragged on account of the rough water and at 12.30 the oarsmen were all back at the float.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 12.—Both sides in the big Consolidated Street Railway strike, were resting on their arms pending a meeting of the state board of arbitration called for 10 o'clock this morning. It was understood that no cars would be sent out this morning but at 9 o'clock three were started from the Lakeview barns. Strikers and their friends are gathered in crowds on the streets but were undemonstrative. No serious trouble is expected and much is hoped from the arbitration board meeting before which the officials and counsel of the road and a committee of the strikers are to appear.

CAPT. NICHOLS

ALL FLAGS AT HALF MAST

Officers of the Fleet Were Present.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 12.—The funeral of Captain Henry Nichols, the commander of the United States double turreted monitor Monadnock, who died from sunstroke on Saturday, took place at Cavite yesterday with appropriate naval ceremonies. The officers of the fleet were present and the flags on all the vessels were half masted.

The sudden death of Captain Nichols was particularly sad because it occurred just at the moment when the result for which he had hoped and worked for months was about to be realized, namely the capture of Paranaque and its occupation by the American forces. The Monadnock has been lying off Paranaque for two months past under fire from the rebels almost daily. The heat there has been intense and the officers and men of the Monadnock suffered greatly. The commander-in-chief offered to retire the Monadnock from this trying duty and replace her by another ship, but Captain Nichols preferred to remain, declaring that he did not want to leave his post until Paranaque fell and the coast from there to Cavite was cleared of rebels. The heat on Saturday was most severe and the monitor was engaged all day in shelling the trenches at Paranaque and the rebels fleeing south through Las Pinas and also watching the American troops closing in upon the town. Captain Nichols was overcome by the heat at noon and retired to his cabin, where he received frequent reports of the operations and gave directions for several hours. He became much worse at 3 o'clock, lost consciousness and expired at 5 in the afternoon. Several hours before his death, he expressed gratification at the way events were progressing, remarking to an officer: "We have got the rebels there at last."

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The United Labor League of this city has taken up the causes of the 3,000 seamstresses, mostly soldiers' wives, widows and daughters who complain that the government has soldiers' clothing made by contract, taking from them their means of livelihood. It is said that about $1,000,000 worth of contracts are to be given out and if so, the seamstresses will have no work at all.

POLICE PREFECT

Premier Dupuy Replies to Interpellation.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PARIS, June 12.—The Prefect of Police, M. Blanc, has ordered an inquiry into the charges of police brutality yesterday. If they are substantiated the men at fault will be severely punished.

The Chamber of Deputies was crowded today, and there was considerable suppressed excitement when M. Vaillant, socialist, interpellated the government on yesterday's "Police outrages" at the Pavillion d'Armenenville, and demanded to know the instructions the government gave the police in regard to the socialist, who, he said, defended the republic against the reactionaries. (Applause.).

The premier, M. Dupuy, replied saying he realized yesterday was a fete day for the republicans. He added there had been few incidents, and that the only instructions to the police were to maintain order. The government, he continued, had ordered an inquiry into the responsibility for the affairs at the Pavillion d'Armenenville and the Rue Montartre. At the same time, the Premier pointed out, the government acknowledged the services of the police, adding that maintenance of the government was impossible without public order (Applause from the Centre and protests from the Leftists.'

FRENCH CHAMBER

Adopts Order Against the Premier's Protest.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PARIS, June 12.—The Chamber of Deputies today adopted by a vote of 321 to 173 the order of the day proposed by M. Ruau, radical, representing the second district of St. Gaudens, which the premier refused to accept. The ministers forthwith left the house amid great excitement.

The text of M. Ruau's motion was as follows: "The chamber is determined to support only a government resolved to defend vigorously republican institutions and to secure public order and passes to the order of the day. After the vote was announced, the socialists shouted "Vive la Republique" and the ministers left the house. The chamber adjourned.

After M. Dupuy's statement, M. Clovis Hugh, socialist, and others complained of the police treatment yesterday. Finally the closure was declared and half a dozen orders of the day were moved. The premier supported the order of the day of M. Saumand, republican, approving the declaration of the government, for which priority was demanded and refused by a vote of 253 to 246.

Amidst increasing excitement other motions more or less favorable to the government were defeated and the chamber then adopted by 266 to 177, priority for M. Raau Ruaau's motion. Finally M. Dupuy declared the government would accept nothing short of M. Saumande's order of the day and the chamber promptly carried M. Ruaau's motion.

DEWEY HONORED

ARRIVED A DAY EARLIER THAN EXPECTED

But Refused the Hospitality of the Governor.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

SINGAPORE ISLAND, Malay Peninsula, June 12—Admiral Dewey surprised the colony of the Straits settlements and disturbed its Sunday siesta by arriving here at 3 p. m. yesterday, nearly a day ahead of time.

He had cabled that he would arrive this (Monday) morning and a suitable reception had been arranged by the governor and commander in chief of the Straits settlements, Lieut.-Col. Sir Charles B. H. Mitchell, the other officials of the British colony and E. Spencer Pratt, the United States consul general here. But Governor Mitchell was absent from the government house when the admiral's flagship, the Olympia, came to anchor and there was momentary consternation at the disarrangement of carefully laid plans.

The governor's aid-de-camp, Capt A. A. Duff and Consul General Pratt hurried to the pier, then out to the Olympia and paid their respects to Admiral Dewey, explaining that the governor general's absence was due to the fact that the admiral was not expected until the next morning.

The admiral expressed regret at being obliged to decline the hospitalities of the British governor and American consul general, saying that as he shall be here only three or four days he will remain quietly aboard the Olympia while she coals.

He came ashore this morning and paid an official visit at the government house, being escorted by a company of the King's Own, a great crowd of people gathering to see the American admiral and cheering him lustily, regarding this as an Anglo-American celebration.

Admiral Dewey is looking well.

The governor returned the visit this afternoon.

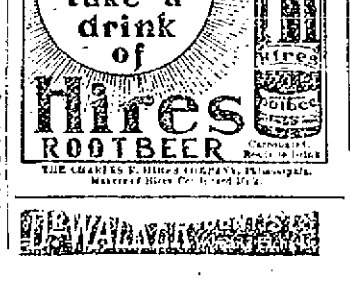

The Olympia had a fine voyage from Hong Kong, leaving that port last Tuesday afternoon, making the run of about 2000 miles in five days.

The Fall in Stocks at Flower's Death Brought Wealth to James R. Keene, Whose Career Has Been Unique.

"It's an ill wind that blows nowhere," so the French express it. The English version of the same is, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good." The day following the announced death of ex-Governor Roswell P. Flower, of New York, a line appeared in the press of the country stating that, owing to the sudden decline in stocks on Flower's death, James R. Keene had made $350,000 on Wall Street.

As little is known in some sections of the country about James R. Keene as about the most obscure of men. Greatly averse to publicity and the newspaper interview, he is more of a myth to the New Yorker than is Cecil Rhodes operating away off in Cape Town.

If you ask the Wall Street banker who Keene is he will reply with great respect, "He is one of the powers of Wall street." If you ask a broker about Keene he will tell you that he is "the most famous plunger of the day." If you ask the same question of a sporting man he will enumerate the Keene horses; yet will tell you that he has never seen James R. Keene; and knows the family only through the deeds of the son, Foxhall, the well-known sport. Even society knows the Keene family very slightly; for, from choice, they have mingled little with society people.

HIS START.

James R. Keene was born an English gentleman. The Keenes of Lincolnshire have been land owners for generations, and the boy, James R., born at the Keene Abbey in 1839, was educated by private tutors. At the age of ten he was sent to Dublin to live in the family of an old master of Trinity who took a few boys at very high price.

The elder Keene was a land owner and something of a dealer in stocks. His moneyed interests lay in London. Many Englishmen of to-day will tell you of the crash of '62, when stocks went down and fortunes were lost. The elder Keene lost his money along with the other unfortunates, and the boy James was brought back from school.

In 1863 the elder Keene with his family, including the boy, James R., "came out" to this country—as he would have told you—and settled in Shasta county, California.

At that time everybody was digging for gold. Every mountain, every plain, every canyon and every gulch was being explored for the precious metal. Young James at fourteen showed all the energy which has made him famous since, and he asked permission of his father to set out to earn his own living, a permission which was readily granted.

At the age of fifteen the boy who was afterward to make a stir in the financial world was guarding the animals at an Indian post. He was employed in the roughest capacity, but he did his work well and he saved his money industriously.

In a short time he had saved enough to buy a miner's outfit, and with this he started to the mountains, tapping the rocks and washing the streams.

A POOR MINER.

But his success was indifferent. He did not "strike gold." The work was even less remunerative than guarding animals; so he decided to make use of the education which he had received, and in early manhood he accepted a position on a newspaper where he reported, wrote editorials and did the stock markets. Here he saved his money and soon he had a nice little sum.

Upon the discovery of the Comstock lode Keene threw up his newspaper job and went to Nevada, where he bought some mining property, which he sold at a good price and soon worked along until he came in possession of California mining stocks upon which he cleared $125,000 in one year.

Very gentlemanly in manner, of fine physique, highly educated and wealthy, young Keene was considered one of the catches of the Pacific Coast. And when he courted Sara, the daughter of Colonel Leroy Dalngerfield, of Kentucky, no one wondered that he was admitted to so fine a Southern family. Miss Dalngerfield was at that time visiting her brother in California, and like many another Southern girl, she made the best match of the season, right under the noses of the wealthy Western girls.

But a plunger does not always plunge to the right direction, and the Comstock disaster brought grief to the Keene family. James R. Keene lost his entire fortune, and was, comparatively speaking, penniless. Yet with good Keene stubbornness he refused to accept a position in an office. His brother-in-law wanted to make a politician of him, but he had no taste for politics. He declared that his forte lay in the stock market and he would do nothing else.

After a year of hard luck he formed the acquaintance of Senator C. N. Felton, who conceived a strong liking for him. Felton was at the head of the Stock Exchange in California, and held a position in the State Treasury. With his friendship Mr. Keene managed to get on his feet again, and in 1875 he was one of the rich men of the West.

Although the West has long since ceased to consider Keene one of its residents, it will always remember him for his part in its building interests; for at the historic failure of the Bank of California he was one of the four men who loaned the bank $1,000,000 in cash to enable it to do business again.

Two children were born to the Keene family in these years, Foxhall, now a man of prominence in turf and social life, and Jessie, afterward the wife of Talbot J. Taylor, of Baltimore.

WITH A FORTUNE.

But making a fortune is trying work; and Mr. Keene found his health so broken that in 1877, at the age of thirty-nine, he was given up for a dead man. His physicians said that possibly, if he were to go at once to Europe for a long rest, he might recover; and Mr. Keene, alarmed at their warnings, bundled up his family and started overland for London by way of New York.

True to his long training in the stock market Mr. Keene read the newspapers, and the day of his arrival he saw that stocks were in very bad shape. In fact, as he scanned the columns of the stock market he found that a man with a little money could make a great deal in a short time. And he stepped down into Wall street to make a few purchases. Here he became interested, and by the following day he had decided not to go to Europe just yet. He remained right in New York, not even going back to California.

It is said that in the two years which followed James R. Keene cleared $9,000,000. Certainly he did well. And when he took passage for Europe two years later, for his long postponed vacation, he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had spent his time very profitably.

Upon his return he arranged his California interests in such shape that he could profitably leave them; and, buying a handsome home at Cedarhurst, Long Island, he continued his operations in Wall Street. To cement the eastern tie his son, Foxhall, married Miss Lawrence, of Long Island, of the well-known Lawrence family.

It has been charged against James R. Keene that he is gruff, even bearlike. But those who know him well say that the exterior is a mere cloak for great affability, and that underneath the quiet, studied indifference there beats one of the most philanthropic hearts.

THE SON OF AN ENGLISH GENTLEMAN, JAMES R. KEENE, HAS IDENTIFIED HIMSELF WITH THE INTERESTS OF AMERICA.

THE KEENE COLORS LEADING IN A NECK TO NECK RACE.

MRS. GLADSTONE'S LIFE OF GLADSTONE

It is Whispered That She Has at Last Set to Work Upon a Task to Which She Has Long Been Urged.

Catherine Gwynne Gladstone, better known as Mrs. William Ewarts Gladstone, is quietly said to be busy upon her recollections of her late husband. Mrs. Beecher wrote a series of articles for a magazine entitled "Mr. Beecher as I Knew Him." Mrs. Gladstone's work, if she finishes it, will be called "The Home Life of Gladstone; or, the Study of an English Gentleman."

Mrs. Gladstone, the "Lady of Hawarden," as she is called in the fewn thereabouts, is one of the most remarkable women of the day. Gladstone did not hesitate to attribute to her the major part of his success, saying that her advice and her wisdom were the foundation stones of his best deeds.

Mrs. Gladstone was a Scotch heiress whose father was the owner of extensive Scottish mills, and whose lands lay scattered over England. He owned the ground over which Hawarden stands, and one of the first gifts to his daughter was Hawarden castle, together with outlying lands. Mr. Gladstone, who had formed the habit of going to church every morning in his life, built a chapel upon the estate, and for fifty years Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone attended that chapel every morning at nine o'clock to hear the half-hour service read.

Never a great beauty, Mrs. Gladstone has what is called style. She is tall and slender, and wore the handsome clothes which her father could buy her with an "air." When she came to live in London as the wife of the young politician, William E. Gladstone, it was thought that she had made a poor match; for, with her wealth and good looks, she could have adorned a much higher station. Still Mr. Gladstone stood well politically, just as Mr. Asquith and Mr. George Curzon once stood as beginners; and in a short time it was seen that Miss Gwynne had made a very good match. Her father came to this way of thinking and gave her money so plentifully that Mr. Gladstone was maliciously accused of being supported by his wife's father.

It was only when he refused a title that Englishmen came to think that he must be somebody after all.

Mrs. Gladstone retired to Hawarden for the express purpose of raising a family. Children came fast, and she was determined that they should live and be strong, splendid specimens of English manhood and womanhood. Never verile, yet always strong; never too progressive, yet ever steady, they grew up good English people of whom England is to-day very proud. Miss Helen Gladstone, the unmarried daughter, has taught for many years in an English institution of learning which pays her an enormous sum. Besides being an excellent advertisement for the school, she is a capable instructor and in her specialty—that of English literature—she is unequaled.

Mrs. Gladstone taught her children to despise a title for themselves, though by no means to despise the nobility. She shared the opinion of her husband that the days of heraldry and titles were over, and that in the present day of civilization a man received his rewards for faithful deeds in other ways than by the title of duke or lord.

She taught her children the value of education and so capably instructed them that the Rev. Herbert Gladstone was almost ready to graduate from college at the time he first entered it. He was fully posted on all the dogmas and rituals of the church, and he knew its tenets to the finest point. He is now one of the most highly educated clergymen in England, and his works would be accepted as ecclesiastical books of reference.

When Mr. Gladstone died his wife took the matter very quietly, as something which they had both prepared for. She did not apparently mourn him; but went about her daily task with a calm which told of a peculiar resignation. She even continued to attend the little chapel at Hawarden whither they had always gone together.

Mrs. Gladstone was repeatedly urged during the life of her husband to write a biographical sketch of him—an intimate account of their daily life. It is said now that she has been prevailed upon to write about Mr. Gladstone, not for mercenary reasons, but because it is a duty which she owes to posterity. On the shady side of eighty, with keen faculties and a body slight but almost strong, she has set to work upon a most interesting task.

QUEER KIND OF SPECTACLES.

Spectacles, to enable the user to see objects near at hand or a distance, are made in a variety of forms. In a common form the glasses are in two parts, joined at the center, the upper parts being of a power suited to distance and the lower halves to reading. Sometimes a piece is cut out of the glass, and a piece of a different power is put in its place.

Sometimes the variation is made by cementing a wafer of glass over a part of the spectacle glasses. There are made also spectacles with crescent-shaped glasses, the upper part of the glass being cut out entirely; the wearer reads through the glasses and looks over them to see at a distance. There are spectacles called spectacle glasses that are like glasses with the upper halves cut off; the wearer looks down through the glasses to read, and he can see over them without effort when he looks at the congregation.

CROSSING THE EQUATOR WITH FATHER NEPTUNE.

Jolly Ceremonies Which Take Place When the Warships Pass Over The Equatorial Line.

The boys in blue manage to have good times at sea. Crossing the equator with Father Neptune is one of the events of the voyage to the Philippines.

Going through the Mediterranean the warships touch the equator in the narrow pass between the Malay Peninsula and the island of Sumatra, and at this point the fun takes place.

The day before the equator is reached the Captain announces the hour and the minute at which, by his calculations, his ship will pass over the central line of the earth. It may be midnight, or at 2 in the afternoon; but it is noticed that the Captain, if he be an obliging one, is careful to select a time when all will be awake.

At the hour all of the crew not otherwise engaged, and all of the passengers, if there be any, come on deck, dressed in fanciful clothes. They are waiting for Father Neptune.

And they do not have long to wait. Soon there is a scrambling up the outside of the boat, and the old fellow clambers over the rail, all dripping with water.

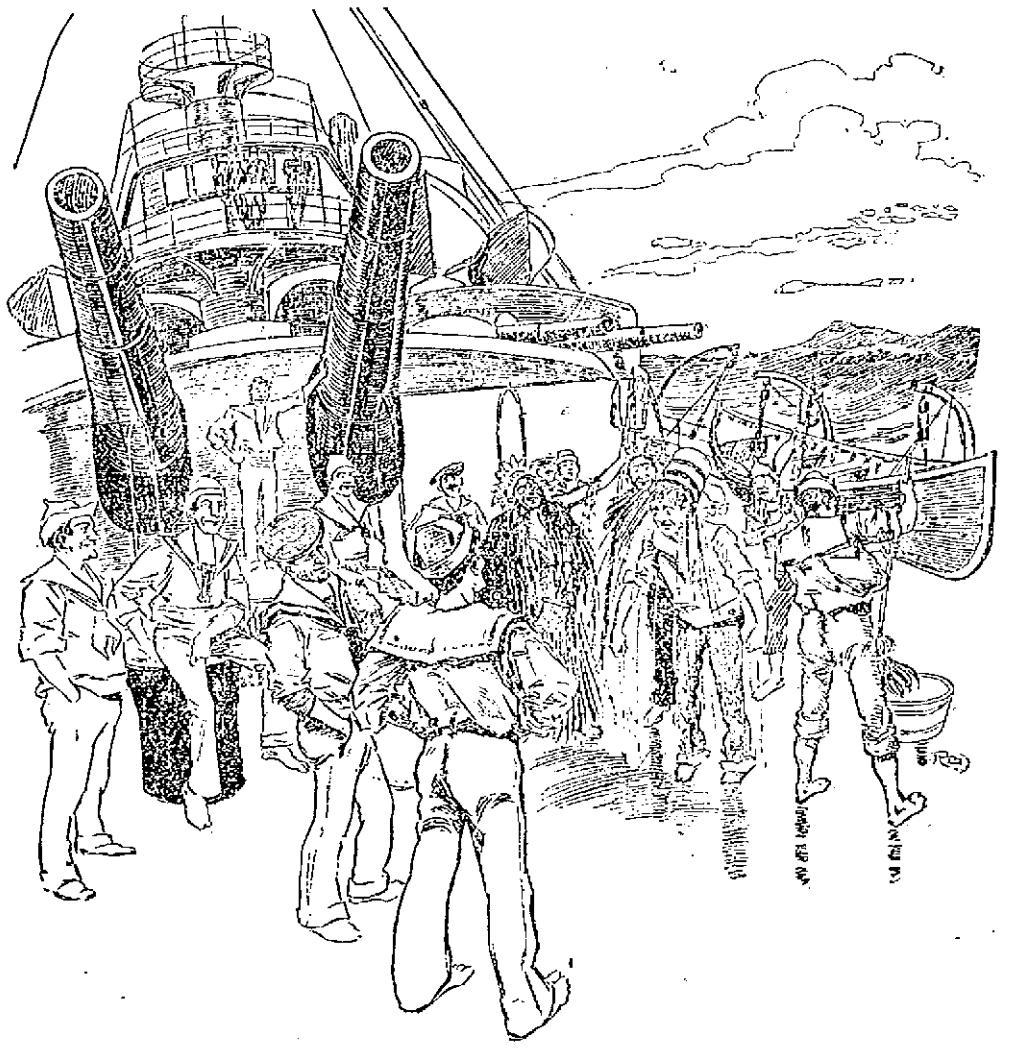

He assumes one of many guises. Maybe he is an Indian, in paint and feathers. Perhaps he is a fat John Bull or again a Father Knickerbocker. No one can tell what shape Father Neptune will assume.

Once on deck, the old fellow begins to play pranks. He pours water over his guests, paints their faces, orders them to do strange things, which they cannot disobey, and cuts up at a terrific rate. Finally he selects one of the crew, orders out a chair and a razor and shaves him. It is a great honor to be shaved by Father Neptune, though the bloodcurdling feats of the old fellow would scare a landlubber.

He sharpens his razor upon the sole of his shoe and leaps wildly in the air, with many war cries, before attacking his victim.

In going to the Philippines 'around Cape Horn the equator is crossed twice, with elaborate ceremonies that rob the long voyage of its tediousness.

This custom, which originated on the English high seas, prevails all over the world. The English sailors on their way to India indulge in the wildest pranks in the Indian Ocean, and colonists going out to Australia never forget the ceremony of crossing the equator with Father Neptune.

AT THE EQUATOR FATHER NEPTUNE COMES ON BOARD AND PLAYS TRICKS UPON THE PASSENGERS AND CREW.

THIS IS ONE OF THE SPORTS THAT ENLIVEN THE LONG JOURNEY TO OUR NEW POSSESSIONS; THE EQUATOR IS CROSSED AMID THE WILDEST FUN.

A DAY ABOARD THE NEW COLUMBIA.

The Perfect Equipments of the New Yacht From Kitchen to Cabin.

C. Oliver Iselin has from the first declared that he saw no reason why the new yacht should not be launched June 8. There was to him an association about the number 8 which made him anxious to get the yacht afloat on that day.

Very few people will have an opportunity of spending a day on the Columbia; but those who do will find themselves in a great, graceful boat stretched out in long lines that lie upon the water like a Cleopatra on her couch.

The yacht, even at anchor, is perpetually moving and courtesying to the great white buoy which holds her fast.

When you come along-side the boat you will go up a companionway which leads from the water to the deck of the Columbia. Captain Charles Barr always stands at the head of the companionway, his cap in his hand, to welcome visitors. The captain is particularly glad to see ladies, and invites them to carry anything away with them they may see; and in this respect the captain has been known to rob a yacht of its silk curtains and in other ways deprive it of its furniture.

Captain Charley Barr is reputed to be the most skillful yachting skipper in America. Barr is not thirty-five years old. He is inclined to be genial; and he will tell you how he was born of Scotch parentage in 1864, and how he will be thirty-five years old July 11. He will add that he became an American citizen many years ago. His parents wanted him to be a grocer, but he ran away and went to sea. He sailed all kinds of coasting boats until he got employment on a yacht. Since then he has sailed the forty-foot cutter Minerva, and the forty-six footer Oweene; he also sailed the Navahoe for Royal Phelps Carroll; he brought the Vigilant back from England for George Gould in '95, and raced the Vigilant in the fall, when she acted as a trial horse for the Defender.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin will be aboard nearly all the time, and if you are lucky enough to be invited aboard the Columbia you will also be Mrs. Iselin's guest.

THE KITCHEN.

You will sit on deck for a few minutes and then Captain Barr will invite you to go down into the kitchen; for no one is ever contented with the outside appearance of a house. As you go toward the kitchen you will notice that there is not a speck of dust about the Columbia. Even the most careful dust hunter will not find the faintest trace of anything dead or living that ought not to be aboard.

They will want you to visit the kitchen the first thing because the cook will soon be getting ready for dinner, and then all visitors will be kept out of the kitchen. The kitchen is not a very big one for the work it turns out. It is only a fair sized one in a moderate sized flat, but there is a big range, with its pots and pans, all dazzlingly bright, and two men cooks in neat white aprons and big cooking caps, busily at work. A big dresser is filled with everything needed to flavor or prepare any kind of soup, fish or meat; canned goods in abundance and a great array of edibles to tempt dainty palates.

In another corner is the pantry where the china is kept. This service is not in keeping with the rest of the menage. It is a plain blue and white china set of the kind that may easily be bought in sets large enough for an ordinary family at from $10 to $15. Very little silverware is used on board, and what there is is of a plain pattern. The officers and men use aluminum teaspoons, which are so light that they almost float. A good sized carving table that can be folded against the partition completes the kitchen furnishings. The kitchen force consists of two cooks and two stewards.

ORDERING DINNER.

The cooks are kept busy, for there are six meals to prepare each day. First there is the officers' breakfast at 7 a. m., then the owners' and guests' at 9. Dinner for the officers is at noon and lunch for the after cabin is at 1 p. m., while supper for the former is served at 6 p. m., and dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Iselin and their friends at 8 p. m. This makes lots of work, but the stewards are glad to do it, for the people they cater to are very appreciative.

If you are there time enough in the morning—for when you go to spend a day upon a yacht you arrive as early as possible—you can go up with the cook to Mr. Iselin and hear him get his orders for dinner and the day, for every-thing is run just like a house.

Mr. Iselin orders a dinner which consists of six courses, soup, fish and entree, roast, game, dessert and coffee. Then there is a little wine also, but a greater demand is for cold mineral waters. The cook's favorite dish is a frozen pudding, which is served up every day on board. The crew generally eat on board the tender, except on race days, when they eat aboard the ship.

You will notice that particular attention is paid to the culinary department, for the crew that is fed well will work well. It is said that this is one of the causes for the failure to take the Cup away from America. The American sailors have the best of food, and therefore they do their best every day in the week. Perhaps you will be invited into Mrs. Iselin's cabin, and undoubtedly you will. It is in the stern of the ship. Her stateroom is a marvel of neatness and economy of space. It is shut off from the dining room by a studded frame, hung with rich scarlet silk, while the back walls, which curve outward and in, are lined with white cretonne, figured in a lovely design of cream and pale pink roses. Two berths with lockers beneath them have space therein, each cushioned with thick mattresses and mounted on woven wire springs. A bureau with a good-sized mirror and large drawers is tucked away in a convenient corner. The bureau is of white enamel and natural mahogany. All the fixtures in the cosy little dressing room that adjoins are of aluminum.

You will notice that there are lamps burned aboard the boat instead of electricity or gas, which would add too much to the weight of the fleet racer. The rooms are also partitioned off, you will observe, with silk curtains or with canvas; for wooden partitions would be a serious handicap to the boat. The canvas partitions answer very nicely for making rooms aboard the boat, and you would scarcely notice that they are not of wood.

Mrs. Iselin's stateroom has port-holes and sky-lights. There is a handsome rug on the floor; pretty furniture sets around the room, and there is room to store all the wearing apparel needed. A cosy little dressing room adjoins the sleeping room, so that if Mrs. Iselin decides to accompany the yacht she can be very comfortable aboard. Everything possible is made of aluminum, even to the wash stand, the hot and cold water faucets. This is also to save the weight.

A PLEASANT DAY.

The woodwork throughout the boat is yellow, and looks very clean and cool.

The dining room has four sides beautifully paneled in silk. The floor has a rug in the center on which stands the dining table, which is large enough to accommodate a number of guests. Big wicker chairs stand about the room, which, between meals, is used for the saloon.

The Columbia's buffet will be in this saloon, and will be a veritable storehouse for a small number of fine wines and choice edibles. The officers' quarters are models of neatness. Captain Barr's stateroom is next to the mate's room; then comes the stateroom for Mr. Iselin's valet. On the other side are staterooms for visitors. In the center of the cabin is the dining table of the officers; and in the door there is a big trap door which can be lifted up to disclose an ice box big enough for a hotel.

The crew sleep in hammocks which are stretched upon iron frames painted white. These hammocks are so arranged that they contain very comfortable beds, and the red, white and blue mattresses and blankets look very tempting upon them.

If you are invited to spend a day aboard the Columbia by all means accept, for you will have the red-letter day of your life.

ROYALTY AT THE PLAY.

The Emperor of Austria is the greatest theatregoer among royalties of the day. He loves the play, and his kindly applause has often saved a piece from failure.

The Czar and the Prince of Wales are of the "good public" class. The Prince follows the play with interest, laughs at the comic scenes, shows emotion at the tragic parts.

The Czar and Czarina are interested both in the play and the players, but in a more subdued fashion. William of Germany is the "enlightened" spectator, who criticises in technical terms the actors, the piece and the scenery.

NEW MANAGER

Franklin Woodman's Busy Career at Railroading.

WORKED UP FROM THE BOTTOM.

May Move His Office to Lowell.

It is now General Manager Franklin Woodman of the Merrimack Valley division of the Massachusetts Electric Street Railway company, says the Haverhill Gazette, the company which recently absorbed the street railways in this section of the state. The appointment of Division General Manager Woodman was made by General Manager Sullivan of the Massachusetts company in Boston last Friday, a tender of the proposition having been made to Mr. Woodman last Wednesday when he was summoned to Boston by Manager Sullivan. The latter had had Mr. Woodman under consideration since he assumed control of the new company, though the new official was not an active candidate for the position. General Manager Sullivan, before assuming his new office, had charge of the Lowell and Suburban railway. There were several aspirants for the position given Mr. Woodman and it is highly complimentary to his ability that without his seeking the berth, he was selected by Manager Sullivan.

When he was tendered the position last week, he informed the general manager that he wished to consider it although he was earnestly pressed to accept it at once. On Friday he held another conference with General Manager Sullivan and it ended with his acceptance.

The news became quietly known, continues the Gazette and locally the many friends of the genial division general manager warmly congratulated him. Since coming to this city almost seven years ago, he has made many close friends and in the reconstruction of the old Haverhill and Groveland Street Railway company and the extensions of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill company he showed that he was a thorough and practical street railway man. It was under his direction that the Haverhill division of the L. L. & H. company prospered and has become one of the finest street railways in the state. He is now completing his 22d year as a street railway man. He began at the bottom of the ladder and has risen rapidly until he is now recognized among the leading street railway officials in New England.

His first service was with the Old Metropolitan Street Railway company in Boston as a starter. He next became division superintendent's clerk. Four years after he entered the Metropolitan company as a starter he was appointed superintendent of the Roxbury division of the West End street railway of Boston. This position he held for eight years until he was chosen general manager of the New Bedford street railway company. That position he accepted Sept. 19, 1859, and his work there was similar to that which he has performed since coming to Haverhill in August, 1892.

He was chosen by the L. L. & H. St. railway company to assume charge of the Haverhill division from a large list of aspirants and it was a tribute to his ability. His work in Haverhill is well known. From the old horse cars to West Newbury, under the Haverhill & Groveland system, the local division has branched out until it extends from Methuen to Newburyport, the roadbed being perfect, the equipment excellent, and the service has ever been first class and up to date. It is well known that no complaint for better service has ever passed unheeded when made to Supt. Woodman and he has always been known as an earnest, indefatigable worker, ever catering for his patrons and also carefully looking after the interest of his employes.

In his new capacity, Division Manager Woodman will for the present retain his office in Haverhill. Last evening when seen he said that he might possibly remove his office later in the year to Lowell. After receiving his appointment, he announced the list of his assistants. Succeeding him as superintendent of the Haverhill division will be Alex. McRae. N. E. Morton, who has been superintendent of the Lawrence division since it was formed, will retain control there and Philip T. Bagley will have charge of the Lowell division. In all, Mr. Woodman will have supervision of 110 miles of tracks. His division extends from Nashua, N. H., to Newburyport, including the Lowell and Nashua company, the Lowell and Suburban company, the Nashua N. H. St. Ry., and the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill company, with all its divisions in Andover, Methuen, North Andover, this city and Newburyport.

A BICYCLE CLUB THAT WORKS AND SAYS NOTHING.

Among the number of local cycling clubs which though hardly ever heard from through the newspapers, are the Coming Men of America, an organization now in existence for over a year and with regular runs. The club was instituted during the latter part of '98 and at once proceeded to fulfill the duties of a wheeling club, going occasionally to Silver Lake and other neighboring points of interest. There are about 75 names on the rolls and Harry Hennessey has counted the same number of caps. The caps are of vermilion and across the front is inscribed "C. M. A.," which of course means Coming Men of America. The runs of the club will continue till cold weather, with Hennessey as captain.

CARPENTERS' UNION.

Carpenters' Union No. 40 will meet this evening in Spinners' hall, 22 Middle street for the election of officers for the ensuing six month. All members are requested to attend and all others wishing to join. Having received a special dispensation from headquarters we shall keep our charter open till July 1.

BOXING GOSSIP.

Of course you knew that Jeffries was going to win. So did, we all of us, but few of us bet on him.

The next great event to come off will happen on the evening of June 21, when the regular meeting of the Nutone club will be held at its apartments in Middlesex street, when Patsey Hennessey of Lawrence, and Joe Flaherty of Lowell, will spar 15 rounds. Both men are in training, Hennessey at Canobie Lake and Flaherty at Lake Quinsigamond, and the sports of the Merrimack Valley are waiting patiently for the date. A great number of them will be present from Lawrence, for beside the big go there will be an eight-round preliminary contest between Peter Brooks of Lawrence and Jimmie Stewart of Manchester, both of whom have boxed here before. Brooks' appearance guarantee is up at The Sun office, and Stewart's expected today and the men thus will surely appear. Manager Desmond adds new improvements to the place after each meeting, and without exaggeration now he has the finest little athletic club in all New England.

There is talk of a match between George Gardner and Tom Moriarty, but nothing definite has been heard concerning it.

Joe Flaherty is matched to go with Patsey Sweeney of Manchester, N. H., in that city on July 4. If the match takes place in daylight, as is expected, Flaherty ought to be a winner with ease.

Some joker has suggested to the Fourth of July committee that they offer a prize for an open air go between John Dion and Tom McLaughlin as one of the features of the celebration.

Bouts this week:

Friday.

Eddie Connolly vs. Tim Kearns, New York.

Unknown vs. Byers, Chicago.

Saturday.

Joe Fairburn vs. Kid Broad, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty vs. Charlie Miner, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty goes at it again on Saturday night. I met him a few days ago, and found him in fine condition. Let's hope he gets a square deal this time. He can't be licked any other way.

Jeffries' star is in the ascendant, and for some time to come, we hope. The result of the big mill gives the boxing premiership of the world to one who was born in the Buckeye state, and who lives with his family in Golden Gate precincts. It gives immense satisfaction to all true sport lovers to see the laurels of championship, worn by a true American boy, and one who richly won them. Jeffries proved himself the superlative artist and won on sheer merit. It comes as a good omen for the future that the picture scheme was cut out after being tried once. From the tap of the gong Fitz assumed the offensive, until his stamina had gone, and then, knowing that defeat was inevitable, his protruded jaw gave big Jim the chance of a life time, which he did not fail to accept.

Jeffries had been "tipped" on the power of Fitz's right, and never gave the Kangaroo an opportunity to "cross" by leading his right until the knockout was assured. Jeff was several shades faster than when he was prevented from sparring publicly here in February, and knew just what he had to do to defeat Fitz. He showed no sign of fear, even when Fitz was rushing and boring in for openings for that terrible "solar plexus" punch. Fitz did land this famous blow, but never with the strength that he possessed at Carson City against Corbett. All the sign that Jeffries gave that the punch had hurt was by a suppressed grunt. Stamina, condition, ability and youth tell the story. Fitz had gone the pace and a rapid one, at that—the past two years and was not as good as when he fought Corbett. Of this there is no doubt, but it does not detract from Jeffries' victory in the least.

Fitz was considered dangerous by Jeffries himself, and he best knew that point when face to face with Rob. Jeff held that right of his chained to his side and cut the old 'un down with his busy left hand. It was almost entirely with the south paw that Fitz was rendered hors de combat, the finishing touches alone being given with the right. If Jeffries had used his right when Fitz was strong in the early rounds, there might be another tale to tell. But it is by results that the story is told, and Jeffries is readily received as a better man than Fitzsimmons.

Tommy Ryan, the crack Syracuse middle, announces that he is ready to meet Kid McCoy within three weeks for the middleweight championship. Ryan says he wants McCoy to come into the ring at regulation middleweight, and not lay claim to go at catchweights.

John F. Daly, the old 125-pound amateur champion of New England, and a popular member of the former Tri-mount A. C., than whom no club ever turned out a likelier lot of champion athletes in the early '90's, has gone to Asheville, N. C., for a few week's rest. A monster testimonial and reception for Mr. Daly is being planned to take place on his return, the affair to be given by his old friends of the Tri-mount A. C., and a host throughout the city. Daly was a splendid boxer, and won the American championship at 125 pounds from Fred Schneering of New York at Music Hall in 1891.

The New York Journal says:

"Martin Flaherty, the Lowell (Mass.) lightweight, is in big demand just now. Martin is known to be in first rate shape and clubs East and West are in communication with his manager, Charley Harvey, with a view to procuring his services. The Brooklyn clubs New Haven and Baltimore, have all made bids for Flaherty and somebody else, and Harvey is considering them all. He cannot act definitely right away, however, with the out-of-town people as he has made a match for his man and Charley Miner of this city, to fight at the Pelican club next Saturday night, at 128 pounds. Miner appreciates the difficulty of the proposition he is called upon to solve in this instance and is working sincerely to get into shape."

Billy Gardiner boxes Martin Flaherty eight four rounds daily while the latter is training for Miner. Martin says Billy is a coming world beater and thinks highly of him as a sparring partner. Martin is negotiating with the manager of Frank Zimmer of Buffalo for a match with Billy.

HAMILTON PRINT WORKS.

The Hamilton print works are shut down for a week or more, during stock taking.

There are more than 1000 operatives affected by the shut down which is semi-annual.

The North Ends in defeating the Wallbrooks Saturday, no doubt are the champion juvenile team of the city. There has been great rivalry between the two teams, so Manager Callahan must give in the O'Brien Colts are his superiors.

Mr. John McCluskey of Medford visited relatives in this city Saturday and Sunday.

Employes of Boston and Maine Happy.

NEW SCHEDULE TOOK EFFECT JUNE 1.

Increase Voluntary on Part of the Road.

Employes in some of the departments of the Boston & Maine railroad have recently received an increase in their wages, says a Manchester despatch.

This increase is not general and affects only certain branches and divisions. In a sense, it cannot be considered as a raise, but an equalization. employes in all departments of the service have been receiving from 10 to 25 per cent. more on some divisions than on others. For example: The pay of way freight conductors on the North Weare branch has been thirty-five cents per day less than on the Eastern division, although the work is as exacting and the hours as long; in some cases longer.

So far, the equalization affects only conductors, brakemen and towermen. Conductors and brakemen on the Portsmouth, North Weare and Suncook valley roads are among the fortunate ones.

The conductors on these branches have been raised twenty-five cents a day. This applies to both coal and way freight conductors. Passenger conductors do not profit by the advance. Brakemen on these branches are benefited also, their pay being increased fifteen cents. The yard conductors are raised ten cents a day and the towermen, some fifteen, some twenty-five cents. The circular sent to the yard authorities in this city states that the raise shall go into effect June 1.

There will be but three crews affected by the raise in the Manchester railroad yards, but the applications are pouring into the main office by the scores from all grades of railroad employes asking for a raise to be as much in proportion as that already granted. As the recent action was entirely voluntary on the part of the Boston & Maine, the engineers, firemen and other employes hope that their turn will come soon.

A well-known local railroad man said last night that as far as he knew only the Southern division would be affected. Anyway, but few crews in New Hampshire would be benefited by the increase. In the conversation a peculiar state of things was disclosed; peculiar at least, as far as the uninitiated are concerned. Railroad employes are paid higher wages in Boston than in Manchester and Manchester railroad men receive more pay in Manchester than they do in Concord, and so on the farther north one gets. The argument used is that it costs more to live in or near Boston than in Manchester and that this cheapness of living is more apparent the farther north the line goes, and the wages are said to be smaller in proportion.

OPERATOR ADMITS

MATTHEW MURRAY CONFESSES HE WAS TO BLAME FOR THE WRECK AT AYER.

Matthew Murray, the operator in Tower 9 on the morning of the wreck on the Boston and Albany railroad company, at Reinsaaker and who has tendered his resignation to the railroad company, called on Superintendent Wales of the Boston and Albany railroad today to learn if the rumor was true that Engineer Nixdorf of the passenger train had been suspended or discharged. Murray was informed that such was not the case. Murray told Superintendent Wales that he called to exonerate Nixdorf from all blame in the accident as he (Murray) was alone responsible. He then explained how the accident occurred that he made the mistake, but that the railroad company made the greater mistake when they changed the interlocking to the present system of switches. Under the former system it would be impossible for the operator in the tower to turn an "all right" signal to the passenger engineer while the Central Hudson freight train was on the cross-over. The interlocking system was in use previous to the burning down of the tower some time ago. When the tower was rebuilt, the present system was substituted.

POOR CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

A meeting of the committee on Children's Excursions was held yesterday afternoon in the Courier-Citizen office and a report was made of the work done two years ago.

The Day Nursery gave $300 and there were contributed $83 by individuals. The trip cost $152, so that a balance of $231 was left.

It was voted upon the motion of the Rev. Dr. Chambre to turn the money over to the Day Nursery with the suggestion that it be spent for the benefit of the poor children and their mothers. Thanks were also extended to all who in any way contributed to the success of the excursion.

THE SOUTH ENDS

ARE GOING TO PLAY THE SOUTH BOSTONS ON SATURDAY.

Next Saturday afternoon the Fair Grounds will be the scene of another fine exhibition of base ball. The South Ends have booked for their opponents on that day the strong South Boston team, the finest semi-professional team in the state and which has yet to sustain a defeat.

The South Ends are determined to play none but the best teams throughout the state and the public must be assured by this time that such is the case. They will have next Saturday an opportunity to see a team play that has defeated the Newtownes, Mt. Washingtons of Everett and has played a ten-inning game with the Cutlers of Franklin. The South Ends will play two games next Saturday. In the morning they play the South Bostons at the Locust street grounds in Boston and in the afternoon both teams will play at the Fair Grounds. A big guarantee had to be given this club to bring them here; in fact, the largest yet given to any team that has played in Lowell.

The morning game at South Boston will start at ten o'clock and Moore and Roach will do the pitching for the South Ends. Both teams will take the 1 o'clock train to Lowell and the game here will start at the usual time, 3 o'clock. The South Ends will put Billy Connors in the box in the afternoon game here and backed up with fine support, he will receive from the remainder of the team, he will make things interesting for the team from Boston. Hugh Farley will catch both games for the South Ends. Good fast ball playing is being given the Lowell public by the South End team and the attendance will even be larger than the usual big crowd which turns out to see the local cracks.

WILL BE THE ORATOR AT BOSTON —THE PROGRAM.

Mayor Quincy has named Hon. Nathan Matthews, Jr., ex-mayor, to be the orator for the city of Boston on the Fourth of July. He has also named Rev. John S. Lindsay, rector of St. Paul's church, to be chaplain of the occasion.

It is probable that the exercises will be held this year at Tremont Temple. For several years the Fourth of July oration has been given in Faneuil hall, but the reconstruction of the building which is now under way, precludes the holding of exercises there this year.

The Fourth of July committee's program for athletic sports, [illegible] entertainments, boat races, fireworks, etc. is now in the hands of the mayor. His honor will probably alter the items considerably, making what he thinks will be a more equitable distribution of the $11,000 appropriated for the day.

As was the case a year ago, the mayor intends to personally take charge of the arrangements for the children's entertainments, and to that end he has appointed John Graham to carry out his ideas. Mr. Graham is well known in theatre circles as a promoter of entertainments. It is the mayor's intention to have only wholesome, refined, entertainments provided for the children.

GRANITEVILLE

THE GUN CLUB WILL HOLD FORTH ON SATURDAY.

There will be lots of fun in Graniteville next Saturday afternoon and the item is published for the benefit of the nervous residents who may prefer to be out of town on this particular afternoon. On that day the Graniteville Gun club will have its first annual tournament and the rod and gun clubs of North Chelmsford and Lowell have been invited. The other surrounding towns will also be well represented and it is expected that there will be several close contests in the match contests. Manager Charlie Sargent and Secretary John B. Carmichael, with the assistance of every other member of the club, are doing their utmost to make the event one of enjoyment to all who attend and a special invitation is extended to the ladies. There will be refreshments served on the grounds and all present will be invited to assist in having a general good time.

Dr. Coburn DENTIST 81 MERK ST.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will

Ayer's Hair Vigor

melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Possibly there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address,

DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

COMMITTEE MET

Another Step in Fourth of July Celebration.

GOOD SUMS APPROPRIATED FOR FEATURES.

Parade, Muster and Fireworks Provided.

BUTLER AMES ELECTED CHIEF MARSHAL.

Headquarters Remain at City Hall.

The Fourth of July committee held its second meeting in the committee room at city hall last evening with the usual large gathering on the outside.

For a starter, President Clark announced some of his committees as follows:

On parade—Alderman Miskella, Councilmen Mullaney, Whittet, Walker and Hogan.

On decorations—Mr. Fels, Mr. Sturtevant, Mr. Hogan, Alderman Miskella, and Councilman Walker.

On parachute jump—Councilmen Mullaney and Lyman, Aldermen McNulty and Chapin.

Alderman Chapin declined the fireworks committee in favor of Mr. Fels, claiming that Mr. Fels knew more about fireworks than any other member.

Mr. Mullaney dropped out of parade committee in favor of Mr. Fels but the latter declined, as he did not care to serve on too many committees.

Mr. Sturtevant produced a schedule of how much money each sub-committee should have.

Mr. Hogan suggested a novel form of children's entertainment. He stated that the number of children who generally attended children's entertainments was comparatively small while the majority of the children congregate on the common. The best place, therefore, in his judgment, would be to have a merry-go-round and flying horses with free tickets for the youngsters.

Mr. Sturtevant believed in a free children's entertainment under a tent, a continuous performance, distributing tickets with the school teachers. Alderman Miskella favored an indoor entertainment of marionettes and other juvenile features. Mr. Turcotte suggested hiring barges and taking all the children in the parade.

President Clark called attention to the fact that bids were in for the official program.

Councilman Walker suggested that a bond be furnished from the parties who got the program. Mr. Fels thought that security was necessary.

Mr. Sturtevant believed that if an official program was to be got out, it should be got out by the committee by publishing the official program in the papers and letting those who wanted to go ahead and publish their programs.

The remainder of the committee seemed to favor the idea of letting out the program to the highest bidder so as to get in as much money as possible.

Councilman Walker moved that whoever gets the contract must put up the amount he bids within three days otherwise his contract is null and void. It was carried unanimously.

The bids for the official program were then opened and an attempt to have interested parties withdraw was killed.

The bids were as follows: John W. Kennedy, $50; W. J. Clark, $51; Frank Cox, $42; Walter Whitaker and John H. Shepard, $50.

Mr. Cox, the $42 man, forgot to sign his name, but he was known and his bid appears.

Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd who bid $50 not only agreed to give surety, but also specified an edition of 10,000 copies, 1,000 for the use of the committee and the rest to be distributed by them, the program to be 16 pages, exclusive of the covers, to contain half tone cuts of prominent men and public buildings and guaranteed even a certain kind of paper, while Mr. Clark who bid $51 gave no specifications. The contract was awarded to Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd with Councilman Mullaney alone opposing in favor of Mr. Clark.

On motion of Mr. Hogan, the chairman was made a member ex-officio of all committees.

To facilitate matters Mr. Sturtevant moved that the following amounts be appropriated:

Music for parade and concerts, $500; fireworks, $700; parade, $850; tub contests and expenses, $500; children's entertainment, $200; parachute jump, $150; salutes, $150; incidentals, $100; total, $4,000.

The motion was withdrawn by Mr. Sturtevant as it was opposed.

Alderman Chapin moved that the committee on music be appropriated $900 immediately as the bands must be hired at once.

Mr. Fels moved a 15-minutes' recess.

Alderman Miskella moved an adjournment until Wednesday night in order to give the sub-committees a chance to meet.

Mr. Fels' motion prevailed and some of the sub-committees met.

It was 10.15 o'clock when the committee came to order again.

The committee on parade reported with a request for $1000, which was $440.58 less than was expended in 1897, said Alderman Miskella. Several names had been considered for chief marshal, he continued and it had been voted unanimously to recommend Lieut. Col. Butler Ames.

Mr. Sturtevant then moved, as a preliminary step in the matter of appropriations, that the children's entertainment be given up.

Mr. Fels seconded the motion, but Mr. Hogan made a plea for the children, and suggested that the saving be made somewhere else.

Alderman Miskella also spoke for the children, saying that the children took a great interest in the day, and should not be sacrificed to the parade.

"It is the children's day from early morn till night," said Mr. Sturtevant. "If the parade is made a success they will enjoy it, and their parents as well."

Mr. Hogan again spoke of free merry-go-rounds for the children, and the motion to abandon the children's entertainment was defeated.

Councilman Lyman asked whether there would be any special prize for the firemen in the parade.

Alderman McNulty said that there were special prizes for any organization, but not for them particularly.

Councilman Lyman said that he was thinking only of the success of the parade. A special prize, he believed, would result in a larger number of firemen in line, and better uniforms.

Alderman McNulty said that the firemen would have a good chance to win the prize for the best feature.

It was voted that the appropriation for the parade be $950, and it was voted unanimously that Lieut. Col Ames be the chief marshal.

The mayor was made a member, ex-officio, of the general committee.

Alderman McNulty, for the committee on firemen's muster, asked for $500 instead of $500, and said that the prizes proposed were $225, $150 and $100, leaving $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Hogan moved to amend that $525 be granted, the prizes to be $200, $125 and $75, with $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Lyman said that the firemen would be with the city all day, in the parade in the morning, and on the common in the afternoon. "Thousands of people will come to the city with them," he said. "Where can you get more for your money?"

After minor discussion it was voted to grant the $550.

The committee on fireworks asked for $900, the amount originally recommended. It was voted to grant it.

The committee on music, through Mr. Sturtevant, reported that it thought that four bands would do, and asked for $500.

The committee on parachute jump reported progress and asked for $175. It was so voted.

Mr. Fels, for the committee on decorations, reported that but little money would be needed. The citizens would be asked, through the public press, to decorate their houses and places of business.

The committee adjourned at 10.50 o'clock, to meet at 7.30 o'clock on Thursday night.

Until further notice, the headquarters of the general committee will be at city hall.

The committee on parade has prepared a rough draft of prizes, from $150 down, but it is subject to change.

The firemen's prizes for the muster will be $200, $150 and $100.

Enough militia companies to form a regiment are expected in the parade.

CO. M. REGULAR MEETING—BOWLS AND BOWLERS.

The regular weekly drill of Company M was held last night at the armory and at its conclusion a meeting was held in the company rooms for the purpose of determining whether it would turn out on Fourth of July. No action was taken. An invitation was received from Company C to participate in the competitive drill at the Fair Grounds on the afternoon of July 4, but in view of the possibilities of taking part in the morning parade, it was thought that the men would not be in proper condition to do themselves justice in the afternoon. Hence it was voted not to accept the invitation.

In the military duck pin tournament at the armory last evening Team One of Co. C defeated Team Two of Co. G by superior work in the second string. Lieutenant Kittredge is beginning to think that there are no flies on his team as [illegible] is its second consecutive victory. The score:

A BRIDE DESERTED

She is Now Vainly Waiting His Return in a Boston Hotel—He Took $300 of Her Money and Jewelry.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 14—The police of Boston have been looking since Saturday for a man named Henry Carter. Saturday Carter is alleged to have abandoned a wife only three days wedded, and in addition is charged by his deserted bride with stealing her money and jewelry, as well as her dress suit case.

The bride is of Swedish birth. Since coming to this country she has done housework in New York and by living frugally had saved $300 which she had in a New York savings bank. In addition to this she claims to have $1000 in a bank in Sweden.

Two years ago she met Henry Carter. The man made violent love to her and she came to the conclusion that she reciprocated his affection.

As the result of the attachment the couple were married Wednesday evening at the Gustavus Adolphus church, New York. The groom was 30, the bride a few years older.

On the wedding night, by various excuses, he obtained possession of her gold watch and a ring set with gems. She had withdrawn her $300 from the bank and this he also took charge of.

The couple came to Boston Wednesday night by boat, going to an Elliot street hotel.

Saturday morning Carter went out to look for rooms, since which time he has not been seen.

The baggage of the pair had been left at the Park Square station and when the bride went to look it up she found that her husband had taken away everything but her trunk.

Carter claimed to be a reporter on a New York paper and gave as a reason for coming to Boston that he was to represent the paper in this city.

The police were notified, but up to the present time have been unable to obtain any clew of the missing man.

In the meantime the bride is penniless in a strange city but anxious to get back to New York.

The casket was draped with the Stars and Stripes. The Parker Veterans were in attendance, six of them being the bearers—Charles M. M. Whitney, George W. Williams, Charles E. Philbrook, John G. Hutchinson, F. O. McPherson and Charles L. Fuller. J. A. Jaquith was funeral director. Burial was in the Parker Veteran lot. Taps were sounded over the grave by Comrade Herman Greager.

Among the floral offerings were a mound from R. D. Moore; bouquet, Charles W. Atwood, and a bouquet from friends.

POLE LOCATIONS

Opposed by Jenness Street Residents Yesterday.

Aldermen Wilder and Chapin of the committee on wires gave a hearing yesterday afternoon on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for pole locations in Jenness street, and the petitions of 24 remonstrants against granting the same. Nobody appeared to represent the company, and the remonstrants controlled the hearing.

E. J. Carter stated that the four poles at present in the street are not wanted by the residents and that they object to any more being set up.

C. F. Joyce appeared for himself and S. E. Robins, Robert Gilmore, Harry Kittredge and others. He said that one of the poles in the street at present is located nearly in his driveway. He did not know of anybody who wanted the poles.

Charles F. Richardson said that there was but one telephone on the street, and that the poles were put in before the street was accepted. He objected to any more poles as a damage to the street.

Alderman Chapin suggested that if the poles were a damage to the property, then property all over the city must be damaged, for poles were necessary where there were telphones.

Merton A. Smith, representing Mrs. Eliza Smith, said that if the people didn't want telephones on the street, they should not be obliged to have poles.

"You wouldn't object to an electric light pole?" asked Alderman Chapin.

Mr. Smith said that he would object to one in front of his front door.

"I don't want a telephone, and I don't want a telephone pole," said C. H. Howard. The poles on the street are in such condition now that the people are obliged to walk in single file on the sidewalk."

Rev. D. A. McPhie spoke of the poles in the street at present. He said that they stood at the angle of 45 degrees, and people had run up against them to their own injury. The residents of the street did not want any more poles whether they were polished or painted, and, he said, they proposed to fight them to the end.

Charles A. Gales said that he agreed with the other remonstrants. The hearing was then declared closed.

BASE BALL

The Brooklyn batsmen, almost to a man, stand close to the plate. Many of the Bostons not only stand back, but draw back when the ball is pitched. Hamilton stands far from the plate but he always steps in to meet the ball.

Boston could not see anything in Magee a few years ago, when he pitched in Brockton, but the late "Billy" McGunnigle, then manager of the Louisville team, sized him up as a comer. Now Selee thinks he is about Boston's size and would be only too glad to grab him.

Manager Smith of Portland is very sore over the showing made by his club on the trip and it will be interesting to note the excuse he will make to the Portland papers. Manager Irwin claims that Smith and his players made a farce of the game at Manchester yesterday by senseless kicking at Umpire Duffy, the object being to make it appear that the Portlands were being roasted. Smith threatened to take his team home rather than play in Manchester today with Duffy officiating. Irwin told him to go home. Smith had the nerve to claim in Taunton that he should have won both games in Newport. The nonsense in this statement is shown by the scores of the games, 8 to 2, and 6 to 0. It looks like a bad case of rattles on Smith's part. He has signed Jim Smith and released Counihan. Clarke and Johnstone. Tighe will captain the team henceforth.

NIGHT EDITION

SIX O'CLOCK.

A TERRIFIC FIRE

Opened by the Rebels on Our Men.

Even the Friendly Filipinos Shot Into Our Ranks—Gen. Lawton Shouldered a Rifle—Lieut. Donovan's Brave Action.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13.—General Lawton unexpectedly stirred up one of the liveliest engagements of the war, south of Las Pinas this morning on which occasion American field guns were engaged in first artillery duel against a Filipino battery concealed in the jungle. Companies F and I, of the 21st Infantry, were nearly surrounded by a large body of insurgents but the Americans cut their way out with heavy loss. The United States turret ship Monadnock and the gunboats Helena and Zafiro, trained their batteries on Bakoor, and the rebel trenches near Las Pinas all the morning. Bakoor was once on fire but the natives stopped the spread of the flames.

During the night an insurgent cannon was fired three times at the Americans on the outskirts of Las Pinas.

General Lawton this morning took a battalion of 14th regiment and companies of the 21st regiment to locate the rebel battery and then two guns of the Sixth artillery and four mounted guns were planted at six hundred yards distance. The rebels had a large gun from which they were firing homecannister, loaded with nails.

Their shooting was most accurate. The first lot of canister burst directly in front of Scotts' guns and another shattered the legs of a private in the 14th infantry. Several shots struck the edge of the town. The country traversed was as bad as it is possible to imagine, being mainly lagoons, bud and water fringed with bamboos.

As soon as the fighting opened, the Americans were attacked by hidden riflemen on all sides even the "Amigos," or "Friendly" natives in the houses of the town shooting into their rear.

The companies of the 21st regiment, skirmishing along the beach with Amigo guides, found, apparently a handful of rebels, who retreated. The men of the 21st followed, and suddenly, the rebels opened a terrible fire on the troops from the sides and rear. The soldiers withdrew to the water's edge, finding what shelter they could and were picked off rapidly. After their ammunition was nearly exhausted, the companies of the 21st retreated, but General Lawton dashed down and rallied the men.

A little group made a desperate stand General Lawton, Major Starr and Lieuts. Donovan and Connolly taking rifles from the wounded men and firing at the enemy, the general bringing down some of the rebel sharpshooters from a tree. Finally their cartridges were all gone and they were forced to break through the enemy's flank, bearing the wounded to the main body of the troops.

Lieut. Donovan, whose leg was broken, floundered for a mile through a bog, leading his men in the face of a greatly superior force. General Lawton ceased fighting until re-inforcements could be brought up. Two battalions of the 14th regiment, and one battalion of the 9th were hurried to the front and in the afternoon the battle was resumed.

The Monadnock anchored close to the shore and her heavy guns pounded the rebels continuously, while the small warship steaming along the shore, poured the bullets from its rapid fire guns at the rebels.

The Filipino force engaged appeared to have been the largest and best organized body of men which has met our troops.

The American troops were compelled to advance along narrow broads and bridges and attack works ten feet thick.

A FIERCE BATTLE.
By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13.—The fighting at Las Pinas continued hotly all day long. General Lawton called out the whole force of 3,000 men and at three o'clock he was only able to push the insurgents back 500 yards to the Feapote river, where they are entrenched. The insurgents resisted desperately and aggressively. They attempted to turn the left flank of the American troops. The American loss is conservatively estimated at sixty. The battle continues and the fighting is the hardest the Americans have thus far met with in the Philippines.

LAWTON'S SEVERE ENGAGEMENT
By Associated Press to The Sun.

Manila, June 13.

Adjutant-General, Washington:

Lawton's troops had severe engagement today with enemy in strong entrenchments at crossing Zapote river near Bacoor, Cavite province; has driven enemy with heavy loss; our casualties same thirty. Insurgents in this southern section not molested until threatened attack in strong force on Manila; now scattered and in retreat; doubtful if they make further stand.

LUNA ASASSINATED.
By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13.—3.35 p. m.—Information believed to be reliable has reached here of the assassination of General Luna and his aide de camp, Lieut. Pasco Ramon, June 8th, by Aguinaldo's guard, at the headquarters of Aguinaldo.

Luna and Ramon, it appears, went to the Filipino headquarters to confer with Aguinaldo, got into an altercation with the captain of the guard and one of them drew a revolver. The guard then killed Luna and Ramon with their bayonets.

CAVITE VEJIO BOMBARDED.
By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANILA, June 13—1.40 p. m.—At daylight today the rebels at Cavite Viejo dropped two shells from a big, smooth bore gun mounted in front of the church into the navy yard. The only damage done was splintering the top of the huge shears on the mole. The gunboats Calino Manila and Mosquito then proceeded to dismount the gun.

After silencing the big gun at Cavite Viejo, the gunboats ran close along the shore bombarding the rebel position. The rebels replied with rifle fire and with the fire of some small pieces of artillery. So vigorous was the enemy's fire that at 9.20 a .m. the gunboat Helena joined the small gunboats mentioned and the Princeton, Monterrey and Monadnock from their anchorages dropped occasional big shells among the rebels. This, apparently only served to incite the rebels as they kept up an incessant fire of musketry and artillery near the mouth of the Zapote river, two miles north of Dakoor. The rebels were eventually forced to abandon their gun after holding out a few hours only to be confronted by General Lawton's forces on land and in their rear, where there was heavy fighting.

Beyond the destruction of several buildings along the water front, the effect of the bombardment is not known.

Weavers Returned to Their Work.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

CENTREVILLE, R. I., June 13.—The Weavers' strike at the Warwick cotton mills here, was declared off this morning when 120 of the 140 strikers returned to work. The weavers went out June 1, demanded a ten per cent. increase in wages, but yesterday some of the men weakened and returned at the old schedule. This action broke the spirit of the others and believing that no concession could be secured from the manufacturers by holding out longer, it was decided to declare the strike off and return to work at the old wages.

PARKS MURDER CASE.
By Associated Press to The Sun.

ALFRED, Me., June 3.—A jury in the Parks murder trial was secured within ten minutes after the court opened this morning. George W. Clough and Frank Russell of Alfred being selected to complete the panel. The other ten were chosen yesterday. Mr. Russell was made foreman of the jury. NEW WAR VESSELS.
By Associated Press to The Sun.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 13.—A Seattle special says: A well authenticated story comes from Japan to the effect that all the men-of-war captured from the Chinese in the later war between the two countries are to be returned to the Chinese government. This is part of the policy decided on by Japan to protect her neighbor from the inroads of the powers. It is said that the only requirements to be made is that China invest so many millions in new war vessels to be built under Japanese direction.

Eye-sight by Absorption. Dr. Taylor,

THE GIROIS GIRL

Was Seen in Lakeview Avenue Yesterday

HER BROTHER LOOKING FOR HER.

She Came Here on a Nashua Car.

Miss Cordelia Girois, the pretty Nashua girl who left her home in that city on Friday morning, has not as yet returned to her folks in that city.

Late yesterday afternoon she was seen on Lakeview avenue in company with two little girls with whom she went into a block known as the Desmarais building. A Sun reporter traced her that far, and then lost trace of her.

Miss Cordelia Girois is a French-American girl. She is twenty years old, and more than ordinarily attractive. She is light complected, with light blue eyes, medium height, and rather inclined to stoutness. When she left home she was neatly dressed in black, and carried a Bible. She is slightly demented, but would pass unnoticed by many.

She left home on Friday morning with her aged mother. The two went to church together, and after the service the girl left the old lady's side, and hasn't been seen by her relatives since. At once the Nashua police were notified and after much search it was learned that the girl had taken the road to Tyngsboro. Then Tyngsboro was notified, but the answer received was that a young girl answering to that description was seen to pass through there on her way to Lowell a few hours before.

Dan McAloon, a conductor, says that the girl came to this city and got off in Merrimack Square. On the trip down, the conductor's attention was repeatedly called to the young lady whom he at first believed to be intoxicated. She had a Bible and answered the description exactly. Other men who were on the car, when seen by a Sun reporter said that in conversation with the girl, who first spoke to them, she said that she was from Nashua, and was going to Haverhill.

This morning the first Nashua car in to Lowell had the girl's brother for a passenger and he lost no time coming to The Sun to learn something of his sister's whereabouts.

A Sun reporter and Mr. Girois went over to the Desmairais block on Lakeview avenue and learned from neighbors that a young girl answering the description of Miss Girois was seen coming out of the block.

Then the reporter saw one of the men who rode down in the Tyngsboro car which brought the missing girl to this city and he said that while riding on Lakeview avenue yesterday afternoon he saw her in the neighborhood of Desmairais' block. He was sure it was she for he kept looking at her for some little time.

Every tenant in the block denied any knowledge of the girl but it was learned that she was seen in company with a young man at Lakeview on Saturday night.

The brother fears that his sister has been kidnapped and is now being detained in some house against her will.

PLEA OF INSANITY

MAY BE ENTERED BY GEORGE BARROW.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 13.—When the final trial of George Barrow comes up in New York on the charge of kidnapping Baby Clark a plea of insanity will probably be entered. Strong statements have been prepared in Little Rock tending to show that Barrows is mentally irresponsible. These statements, made by the parents and brother of the prisoner, aver that Barrows suffered a very severe attack of typhoid fever when a boy, and his mind has never been right afterwards.

THE ASCOT RACES

Were Opened Today Under Brilliant Auspices.

SLOAN GETS THE COVENTRY STAKES.

Ascot Stakes Won by Rosebery's Horse.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LONDON, June 13.—The racing at Ascot opened today under brilliant auspices although deprived of the semi-state procession of royalty, due to the fact that the court was in mourning for Prince Alfred of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and the Queen of Denmark. Among those present were the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Connaught; the grand Duke Michael of Russia, the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough, the Duke and Duchess of Portland, and the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. In addition big crowds of society people and a large assemblage of the general public attended.

The biennial stakes resulted in a dead heat between the Duke of Westminster's colt Goblet and Lord Rosebery's colt Epsom Lad. Sloan rode Lord William Beresford's gelding Yumboo, but was replaced. The betting was 3 to 1 against Yumboo.

Sloan finished first on Lord William Beresford's chestnut gelding Democrat in the Coventry stakes. Vain Duchess was second, and Lucie II was third. Ten horses ran. The betting was 5 to 1 against Democrat.

The Ascot stakes were won by Lord Rosebery's Tom Cringle. Lord Farquhar's Nouveau Riche, ridden by Tod Sloan, was second, and Mr. Fairele Cubb, third. Eleven horses ran. The Triel stakes were won by the Duke of Westminster's colt Good Luck. P. Lorillard's filly Chinook, ridden by Sloan, was unplaced. Mr. Fairele Cubb's horse was third. The betting was 5 to 2 against Chinook.

An attempt will be made to increase the salary of Dr. Hicks, chief of the board, because of extra duties.

GEN. ST. JOSEPH

ARRESTED AT NICE WITH PLANS OF FORTIFICATIONS.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

PARIS, June 13.—The Italian general arrested at Nice is General Gillette St. Joseph. He was examining the fortifications on the frontier and a number of plans of fortifications were found on him. The general, who owns a villa on the French Rivera, has been suspended, and having been engaged in an espionage, says the plans were merely those of a tourist and that they had no secret character.

FATALLY INJURED

MISS MELVINA LAPIERRE.

Received From Collision With Scorching Bicyclists on Sunday Night—Edwin A. Lynde and Angus M. Sellers are the Riders Who Were on the Tandem—They State Their Side of the Case.

There is no longer any mystery concerning the identity of the two scorching bicyclists who ran into and fatally injured Miss Melvina Lapierre on the boulevard Sunday night.

They are Edwin A. Lynde, a plumber, employed by Scott & O'Day, plumbers, 542 Appleton street, and who boards at 39 Puffer street and Angus M. Sellers, who boards at 11 Branch street.

Both young men called at the home of the injured girl last evening and disclosed their identity. They offered to do all in their power to save the life of the young woman but at first refused to give their names. Afterward however, they gave them as above.

Dr. J. E. Lamoureux, who is attending Miss Lapierre, states that she cannot recover. She has neither opened her eyes nor spoken since the accident happened but moans constantly and in her delirium struggles in such a manner that it takes three or four to hold her in bed.

When the two men called at the Lapierre residence last evening, several relatives and friends of the injured girl were present and as soon as the former made known that they were the men who had caused the accident they were criticized severely for not having returned to the scene of the accident.

The young men in reply said that when Mr. Tobin, the young man who was in company with the women, when the accident happened, suggested that some one go for a doctor they volunteered and they claim they went with all haste to the residence of Dr. Colton, 49 Varnum avenue and asked the doctor to go to the scene of the accident.

A man whom they presumed was the doctor suggested that it would be better to call the ambulance and after hearing him call up the ambulance on the telephone they went away, feeling that they could do no more.

The night operator at the telephone exchange corroborates the statement of the two men in regard to the ambulance with the statement that there were two calls for the ambulance for the boulevard accident. The first he says came from Dr. Colton's house and later another came he thinks from the boulevard pumping station, the ambulance having gone in response to the first call before the second rang in as no one at the stable answered the call.

Lynde in telling his story to a reporter said:

"We went out to Lakeview and the Dale, Sellers going with me at my invitation, for I was tired of drifting about town, doing nothing, and I wanted company. We didn't stay a great while and we came back by way of the boulevard. It was dark and we took the right hand road down the boulevard as all cyclists and teams are supposed to do, for there are signs there saying 'Keep to the Right,' and as we got down a little distance, Sellers who was riding behind said 'Look out! There's a buggy coming.' It was safe enough to one side for we could see the dark top far enough on our right—we were coming on the left side. As soon as we passed it we saw the wheels coming dead in front of us, but it was too late to do anything, although I instinctively turned the front wheel to the right. Instantly there was a fearful crash and smash. The head of the young lady whom we first struck took me fair over the heart and knocked me senseless for a few seconds and when I came to, I found we had also knocked the other lady (Miss Maggie McDonald) over and smashed her wheel, too.

"I don't feel that we were wholly to blame," continued Mr. Lynde. "But I only wish it had been me that was hurt instead of Miss Lapierre."

"When I swung our wheel to the right, Miss Lapierre in her excitement, turned hers to the left."

Mr. Lynde then pointed out the bent fork on the right side of Miss Lapierre's wheel to prove that this was the way the accident happened.

"If she had turned to the right instead of the left," said he, "we would have cleared all right. But she didn't and I don't want to lay any blame to her for the sad affair."

Both men offered to give themselves up to the police but the girl's father, Constable J. S. Lapierre deemed it unnecessary, as the men can be found at any time.

The police have not yet acted in the matter but owing to the serious nature of the case it is probable that the two young men will be apprehended.

JOSEPH F. CONVERY, President of the Trades and Labor Councils.

Joseph Convery, who has been elected president of the Trades and Labor Council, is one of the best known and most energetic labor men of the city. Everywhere that he is known his honesty is unquestioned and his acquaintance valued. "Joe" entered upon the cause of labor a little over a year ago and since then he has done as much good service as many who have been working earnestly for years.

Mr. Convery is at present employed in the lands and buildings workshop on Broadway where he has worked for a number of years except during Supt. Varnum's term, when he was engaged by the management of Music Hall. Mr. Convery is a carpenter by trade and has few superiors at this business in Lowell. While in the employment of the lands and buildings department, he was also stage carpenter at Huntington hall. When working at Music Hall, Mr. Convery was instrumental in bringing out the organization of the theatrical machinists' union which is now in a flourishing condition.

In the preliminary organization of the machinists, Mr. Convery's labor career began. He was also immediately appointed on committees which required considerable work and time. Mr. Convery was thus brought before the laboring people who were not slow to recognize his ability and his election to the highest office in the local labor world was the result. Ex-president Shannon, who retires in favor of Mr. Convery had been chief executive since the organization of the council.

THEY WON AGAIN

Champions Keep up the Good Work.

Pittsburg Took a Game From Cleveland.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

NEW YORK, June 13.—The champion Bostons gave the giants a bad defeat here yesterday afternoon by bunching nine hits into two innings and scoring 11 runs.

The home team hit Nichols quite freely but its work was scattered through seven innings, not more than two safe ones coming in any one inning.

After Boston had scored eight runs in the third inning, with one out and two men on the bases, Calculough relieved Carrick, and the Boston men failed to get a man around the bases thereafter. Only three hits, all singles, were made off the second pitcher, and the last 15 men at the bat for Boston went out in order.

It should have been an easy shut out for Nichols, as two men were out and the bases full when Long made a bad fumble of Gleason's grounder in the seventh, allowing two runs to cross the plate.

The playing of the teams was not so much in favor of the champions as the score might indicate. Each team got in one dozen clean drives, with a total favoring Boston two points. Each team drew three passes, and the giants reached first base 17 times, only one less than Boston.

Fourteen chances were offered the giants to send in a run from second on a safe hit and they failed. Boston lost five chances of this kind.

Boston found Carrick the most delicious morsel they have discovered this season, and were fattening up their averages in splendid style when he was sent to the stable.

Hickman and Nichols warmed up before the game. Then Nichols decided to do a little work. He was forced to let loose three or four times when a hit meant runs, and always got his man right, but the game as a whole was little more than good exercise for the old reliable.

Collins was the only Boston man who had difficult grounders to handle, and he took care of two screaming drives.

The score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9

Earned runs—Boston 3. Stolen bases—Gleason, Stahl 2. Two base hits—Nichols, Gleason. Three base hit—Duffy. Double plays—Long and Tenney; Lowe, Long and Tenney; Wilson, Gleason and Doyle. First on balls, off Carrick 2, off Calculough, off Nichols 3. Struck out—By Carrick 2, by Nichols. Passed balls—Warner, Clark. Wild pitch—Nichols. Left on bases—New York 12, Boston 2. First by errors—New York 2, Boston 2. Umpires—Lynch and Warner. Time—1h, 55m. Attendance 500.

The other game played resulted as follows:

Pittsburg 5, Cleveland 3.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MANCHESTER, Ky., June 13.—Tom Baker, the leader of the Baker faction, was killed last night. He is the sixth victim of the Baker-Howard feud.

As he was leaving the guard tent, near the court house last evening a puff of smoke was seen at the window of Sheriff White's residence; the report of a rifle followed, and Tom Baker fell into his wife's arms crying, "Oh, my God! They have killed me!" A moment later he was dead.

Several companies of state militia, which have been on guard here for a week were busy making ready to march to Barboursville with the indicted men, Colonel Williams intending to start early this morning.

With Tom Baker, when he was killed, were his wife, who is soon to be a mother, his brothers Al and Dee, and his son Jim. They were about sixty yards from the residence of Rev. P. White, the sheriff of Clay county, and brother to Will White, who was killed by Tom Baker.

Colonel Williams ordered the assembly sounded. In less time than it takes to tell every soldier was in his place, and a line was thrown across the front of the court house yard. Captain Longmire brought out his Gatling gun, a hundred cartridges were thrown into the hopper and it was ready for the attack.

Colonel Williams gave orders to charge the White residence, and the boys, with bayonets fixed, went forward at double-quick, scaling the yard fence.

Before the soldiers reached the house Sheriff White at the head of 50 men, all armed with pistols, came out to dispute the way. The soldiers halted.

Col. Williams' next order, "Charge!" caused the Howards and Whites to flee into the house Thence they loudly threatened to shoot any man who tried to enter.

"Bring up the Gatling," ordered Colonel Williams, and that powerful persuader was trained on the house. It had a quieting effect on the men inside. After a very brief parley they surrendered. Sheriff White was arrested for resisting the guards.

Dee Baker begged the guards to give him a gun, so he could kill Bev White and Jim Baker cried for his gun. Jim swore he would kill Bev White if it took a lifetime.

There is much doubt as to who killed Tom Baker. A bystander said he saw the figure of a man to him unknown, on the porch of the White house a few seconds before the shot was fired.

In less than fifteen minutes after the shooting every business house in town was closed, and women fled to the hills. The mountaineers had made many threats as to what they would do to the troops if the latter ever fired on them. Hundreds of armed men were scattered through the streets.

The best marksmen were detailed to shoot down the soldiers who composed the Gatling gun squad. These mountaineers are armed with Winchesters and all are crack shots. The soldiers realize that little is needed to bring on a battle.

JURY DISAGREED

AFTER BEING OUT ALL NIGHT.

The Claim Was for $50,000 Damages

FOR ALIENATION OF WIFE'S AFFECTION

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 13.—All night the jury having in charge the case for alleged alienation of affection, brought by Murdoch McKenzie against Dr. and Mrs. Lougest, was out. It had been instructed on retirement yesterday afternoon to bring in a sealed verdict.

The hearing of evidence was resumed yesterday morning before Judge Sherman. Mrs. Lougest, mother of Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, told in reply to the questions of Counsel Innis how she and Dr. Lougest had commenced to be suspicious of Nellie because of her actions, and they were going to call in a physician, but she left the house.

She also repeated in detail the incidents attending the visit of herself and her husband to Lowell when they received a letter from Nellie and the circumstances in connection with Nellie's return with them.

Dr. C. A. Lougest, the defendant, testified in reply to Mr. Innis, how he came to employ Murdock McKenzie as a farmhand and how McKenzie used to drive the family from the farm to the railroad station, a distance of two or three miles. Coming down to the time that Nellie left home and went to Lowell, the witness said that when he decided to go to Lowell he declared that if Nellie and McKenzie were married, she should never darken his door again, but if they were not married he would forgive Nellie and take her home.

"What was your object?" asked Dr. Lougest's counsel.

"My object was to stop the marriage, if possible," replied the witness.

The witness told of himself and his wife, Nellie's mother, going to Lowell, and visiting Dr. Jefferson and inquiring for Nellie. They then went to McKenzie's boarding house. "I rang the bell," he continued, "and Nellie came to the door at once. She begged me to forgive her and to take her home."

"Did you believe her to be married at the time?"

"I did not, sir."

The witness continued to say that in the cab on the way to the railroad station in Lowell there was no conversation on his part. Nellie sat with her head on her mother's shoulder and cried.

Next morning, he said, Nellie came downstairs at his house on Columbus avenue, with a letter in her hand addressed to "Mrs. Nellie McKenzie" and witness told her that if she and McKenzie were married, she had better go and live with him. She answered, asking him not to send her away, saying, "I would rather be in my grave than with that man."

Dr. Lougest, in reply to specific questions, denied that he had threatened to shoot McKenzie or had made any attempt to prevent McKenzie from visiting his wife at witness's house. In cross-examination by Counsel Daggett, for McKenzie, Dr. Lougest denied that he ever had a woman employed in the case endeavoring to get evidence against McKenzie.

MRS. McKENZIE'S STORY.

Mrs. Nellie McKenzie, wife of Murdoch, was then called to the witness stand. She is a trimly built little woman, with jet black hair. She said she is now 27 years old and is a daughter of Mrs. Lougest, the doctor himself being her stepfather.

"What were the relations between your father and mother and yourself?" asked Mr. Innis.

"Oh, the relations between pa and ma and myself were always most friendly."

"How did you become acquainted with Murdock McKenzie?"

"He used to drive me back and forth to the depot from the farm at Franklin a distance of about three miles. About a month or so after he became acquainted with me he told that he loved me dearly and more talk of that kind so I listened to it all and finally I got to like him somewhat, too."

"Did you kiss each other?"

"No, I did not."

"Was this concealed from your parents?"

"It was."

Mrs. McKenzie then went on to say that the relations between Murdoch and herself grew more affectionate between November and December, 1895. One day she was in the dining room of the house and Murdoch came to the door and asked, "May I come in?" She answered that he might if he wished.

"He began to speak love to me," continued Nellie, "and pulled a bottle out of his pocket. After some persuasion I took a drink from him.'

JURY DISAGREED.

BOSTON, June 13.—The jury in the case of Murdoch McKenzie vs. Dr. Lougest for the alleged alienation of the affections of plaintiff's wife, Nellie McKenzie, the defendant's stepdaughter, which went out yesterday afternoon today reported that they could not agree.

THE AMERICA

IS AS STAUNCH A CRAFT AS OF YORE.

Lieut. Col. Butler Ames has had the famous old yacht America thoroughly overhauled.

Since the famous yacht came out of Simpson's dry dock, eight days ago, and made her berth at the National dock, East Boston, she has been viewed by hundreds of people. Skipper William H. Canning has been kept busy answering questions.

Lieut. Col. Ames and Capt. Canning have superintended the thorough overhauling of the America and believe that she is faster than ever.

While having a great fondness for yachting, Mr. Ames says that business this summer will prevent him from spending as much time as he would like to aboard the boat. It is his intention, anyway, to see the international yacht race. Of course he is intensely American and all his hopes are in the Columbia. He has a new mainsail for his craft and with this spread of canvas, he hopes to keep within seeing distance of the Columbia and Shamrock.

In her new suit of canvas, her glittering coat of white paint and her brass rails and ornaments shining in the sun, and beautiful contour of her hull above the water-line, the America looks very handsome.

Capt. Canning has been the skipper of the America for over 20 years.

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

The Striking Shoemakers of Marlboro Are In Need of Assistance.

The Central Labor union of Boston has issued the following, addressed to all organized labor and sympathizers:

The undersigned, a committee authorized by the Central Labor union of Boston to solicit aid for the support of the strike now in progress at Marlboro, Mass., appeals for your sympathy and support. Ten local unions of shoe workers, numbering 3,000, have been on strike for the past 21 weeks, defending the right to maintain their organizations.

The employers seek to establish what they call "free shops," properly called slave pens, and insist that they treat only with individuals.

Two of the employers (Mr. Rice and Mr. Howe), at a banquet held in Boston Nov. 21, declared it to be their intention to "smash the American Federation of Labor," and likened the unions unto the Kuklux of the south.

We are led to appeal to you at this time in the hope that you will assist the men and women who are making one of the most, if not the most, heroic struggles in defense of the rights of organized labor ever made in this country, and that we may awaken your interest to the extent that you will contribute at least a sum equal to 2 cents or more per member per month from your union while the strike continues.

The strikers are so enthusiastic and confident of their ultimate success that it would be the rankest shame if organized labor failed to appreciate the sacrifices now being made by these noble men and women who are defending a principle most dear to every true trade unionist.

If you can possibly rake up a few dollars which can be contributed to this worthy cause, then do so quickly, and send returns to D. D. Driscoll, 987 Washington street, Boston.

Do not be deceived by any article that may appear in the press stating that the strike in Marlboro is settled. That is but a part of the scheme of the manufacturers to defeat the strike.

"JACK ARMSTRONG."

His "Book of the Wanderers" Is Unlike Any Other Book Published.

About 12 years ago, when the Chicago Labor Enquirer was one of the leading papers in the field of labor journalism, there was printed in its columns a series of tramp stories, written by "Jack Armstrong," that attracted unusual attention because of the terse style in which they were written and the truth and philosophy that ran through them like threads of gold. It is a pleasure to know that William Harrison Riley—or "Jack Armstrong"—has in the hands of a publisher "The Book of the Wanderers" by "Jack Armstrong." The story is similar in character to the papers that were printed in the Chicago Enquirer, but shows the extra care that is expected in a book.

"The Book of the Wanderers" is a socialistic work, containing just enough fiction to make it attractive to readers who object to "too much solid." In the story "Jack Armstrong" tells how he was formally educated in the private seminary, of the Misses Pripperton. Then he relates some of his experiences while on the tramp and philosophizes on various social, political and theological questions. He engages as an editor and has the assistance of contributions from various heterodox persons, including "Elijah the Prophet," "Impy the Hoodlum," "Saint Newman," "Lucy White" and others. The subjects range from currency to communism, from profit sharing to the Chicago tragedy which cost Parsons, Spies and others their lives. About every phase of social reform is treated of in the plainest language.

The Competition of Women.

The competition of women in the industrial world is coming to be recognized as something that must sooner or later engage the attention of social philosophers. Very few will deny that woman has the right to engage in the industrial pursuits if she sees fit to do so, and therefore the question of right or wrong cannot in good faith be argued. The New York Journal has taken a strong stand against the employment of women in the industrial world, and it bases its objections thereto upon two very novel grounds—namely: That the competition of women tends to lower wages, thereby reducing the earning capacity of the natural breadwinners; that the increased presence of women in the industrial world works a direct injury to the physical well being of the race.

The ever increasing presence of women in the industrial world is a problem pressing for solution. It cannot be settled on sentimental lines, for women's presence in the industrial world is not the result of sentiment. It is the result of a wrong industrial scheme. It is not a question of woman's right to enter into industrial competition with men. It is a question of remedying an industrial system which has forced women into industrial competition with men. The danger is grave enough to demand the attention of the wisest social economists of the nation.—Omaha World-Herald.

Bricklayers and Masons.

Thomas O'Dea, general secretary of the Bricklayers and Masons' International union, has forwarded to all subordinate unions a circular notifying them to consider the proposition of affiliating with the American Federation of Labor. This is in accordance with the instructions of the convention held in Hartford last January, and the votes of the unions are to be returned in time for publication in the semiannual report in July.

MASSACHUSETTS LED.

Bulletin Showing Labor Legislation Enacted in 1898.

A bulletin issued by Horace G. Wadlin, chief of the Massachusetts bureau of labor statistics, presents a number of matters of interest to members of trades unions, men in public life and students of the economic movement.

The first subject treated is labor legislation of 1898. The report states that during the year 1898 practically nothing was added to the statute books in any state relative to the hours of labor or to the employment of of women and children.

Labor legislation in 1898 was exceedingly restricted. In Vermont Labor day was established as a legal holiday. In New York the law relative to the employment of convicts was so changed as to provide that no printing could be done by convicts except such as might be required for the state penal and charitable institutions, or for reports relating thereto. The new constitution of Louisiana provides that after the expiration of the present leases convict labor shall no longer be leased, but may by authority of the legislature be employed on public works, convict farms or in manufacturing under the control or administration of the state. In Louisiana and Virginia a law was enacted prohibiting labor organizations to register their labels or trademarks. A bureau of labor and industrial statistics was established in Virginia.

The labor legislation of Massachusetts in 1898 exceeded in extent similar legislation in any other state. Summarized, labor legislation in this state provides for a textile school in New Bedford; amends and strengthens the law relating to the manufacture of clothing in tenements and dwelling houses; amends the act relative to the inspection of steam boilers; provides for the employment of prisoners, as far as possible, upon articles and materials to be used in the several public institutions of the commonwealth, and permits the general superintendent of prisons to employ prisoners in preparing road material by hand labor; provides that the labor of prisoners may be used in reclaiming and improving waste and unused lands not exceeding 1,000 acres in area, which may be taken in fee by the governor and council for that purpose. On such land, when thus taken, the governor may establish industrial camps for prisoners employed thereon. It also extends the operation of the law relative to the weekly payment of wages, which was previously restricted to corporations and contractors and to persons and partnerships engaged in manufacturing having more than 25 employees, so as to remove the limitation fixing the number of employees.

The law relating to the employment of children and their schooling was also changed so as to provide that no child under 14 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment, and that no such child shall be employed in any work performed for wages or other compensation during the hours when the public schools of the town or city in which he resides are in session, or at any work before the hour of 6 in the morning or after the hour of 7 in the evening, and no child under 16 years of age shall be employed in any factory, workshop or mercantile establishment except under provisions as to education fixed by law, including the filing of an age certificate in terms and under such provisions as the law contains.

A statute was also enacted prohibiting deductions in the wages of women and minors employed in manufacturing or mechanical establishments for the time during which the machinery is stopped, if said women and minors were refused the privilege of leaving the mill during such time, and also providing that none of the employees shall be compelled to make up time lost through the breaking down of the machinery, unless compensated at their regular rate of wages, if said employees had been detained within their workrooms during the time of such breakdown.

In California, New Jersey, Louisiana, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, Ohio and Wisconsin the laws prohibit the employment of women and minors under 18 for more than 60 hours per week in factories and workshops.

Italian Laborers For Hawaiian Plantations.

The planters are planning to introduce a large number of Italian laborers into the canefields of Hawaii. A meeting of the trustees of the Sugar Planters' association was held the other day, at which the groundwork for bringing the Italians was laid. It will be submitted as soon as possible to a general meeting.

Consul F. A. Schaefer has succeeded in bringing about this new and promising labor market. In the past nine months several letters have passed between him and the government at Rome respecting the matter. A few months ago Mr. Schaefer sent to the Italian government copies of the labor contract, labor laws and full descriptions of plantation accommodations. Attention was also drawn to conditions as they would be when American laws were extended over the islands and the contract system abolished.

By the last mail Consul Schaefer received a letter from Rome stating that the contract and general plan were satisfactory. The Italian government would permit the enlistment and shipment of unlimited numbers of the peasant class of labor from the northern part of the kingdom. In dealing with the laborers, both in shipment and on plantations here, the Italian government desired to follow the same plan practiced in the labor transactions between Hawaii and Portugal.—Cor. San Francisco Call.

Examine the new oil cloth on the kitchen floor; its color and gloss are being destroyed and you may see where a cake of common soap fresh from the hot water in the scrubbing bucket has been laid on it for a moment, the free alkali having eaten an impression of the cake into the bright colors.

A more careful examination will show small "pin holes" here and there where the alkali has cut through the surface to soak into and gradually weaken the whole floor covering.

This is what cheap soaps do. Use Ivory Soap, it will not injure.

False Pretenses

Misrepresenting the circulation of a newspaper to advertisers is obtaining money under false pretenses. All newspapers have a certain value as advertising mediums, but the value is determined by the number of papers printed and sold.

The Sun prints and sells more papers than any two other newspapers in Lowell. It is the cheapest of all the local papers on the basis of circulation. You should look into this matter intelligently when making your appropriation for advertising in Lowell.

When young ladies are invited to go boating, they should ascertain whether the man at the oars knows anything about rowing a boat. We have seen ladies out on a boat where they were in momentary danger of losing their lives although they did not realize the fact.

The pastor of the Chelmsford Street Free Baptist church, Rev. A. P. Kenyon, is another influential personage added to the forces of sobriety and good order in this city. He is one of the clergymen who give newspapers due credit for their work in behalf of public decency and morality throughout the community.

Sam Lee is the first Chinaman who has had the audacity to enter the liquor business without a license. Sam's experience in court will probably prevent a repetition of the offense by his brother celestials. It would take a lot of washing to pay that $100, together with the costs incurred in the trial. Sam Lee will probably conclude that he had better stick to his washboard.

That was a rather comical statement which the father of Jim Jeffries, a religious minister, made on hearing of his son's victory. "I don't approve of the profession, because I believe it is bad. Nevertheless, I believe the Lord was on Jim's side." Is it not a reflection upon the Lord to charge that He would interfere in such a matter in favor of either side? If the new champion would send his parents about $10,000 of his prize money his ministerial father would more than ever be convinced that Providence had a hand in the fight.

COWARDLY SCORCHERS.

The bicycle accident on the boulevard on Sunday night as reported in yesterday's Sun, is an indication of the unprincipled character of the scorchers who endanger the lives of persons on public highways. The young woman was knocked down by two scorchers and while they returned to find her unconscious they said they would go and find a doctor. On this pretext they sneaked off without leaving their names and left the young lady to die, so far as they were concerned. That was a most cowardly deed.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH.

The Fourth of July committee has partly settled upon the features of the celebration and already we are assured that there will be a grand parade, a children's entertainment, parachute jump, band concerts and fireworks in the evening. If the money appropriated be expended to the best advantage, the celebration should be a good one. The committee is to be commended for dispensing with the oration feature, which has become a good deal of a chestnut. When there is any attempt to make it subservient to the canvass of any political aspirant, it is particularly desirable to abandon it altogether.

THE SMOOTH PAVING CONTRACTS

At present the people of the city are discussing the question of smooth paving, the expense, the quality and the necessity of this species of paving. It is but a short time ago since the experiment of putting in a little smooth paving was tried on Charles street. It happened that the contract for the smooth paving for Charles street was given to the Boston Paving Co., which has a patent on a certain kind of smooth paving, called "asphaltina." The next street of any importance to be smooth paved was Gorham street, in which the "asphaltina" company also got the job. Now it is Westford street that is to be smooth paved and strange as it may appear, the Boston Paving Co. has also secured the contract, but the street committee has recommended that Mammoth Road, Suffolk street and a portion of Bridge street shall also be smooth paved, though the contract for the latter has not yet been awarded.

Judging from the manner in which the various smooth paving contracts have been given to the "asphaltina," or Boston Paving Co., it would appear that there was, in reality, no other reliable concern in this business, but investigation will show that there are concerns in the business much more reliable than the Boston Paving Co., that there are companies which put in asphalt that is generally conceded to be superior to asphaltina. In point of fact, the asphalt companies give a ten year guarantee on their work, whereas the asphaltina company, which has received contracts here in Lowell, gives but a five year guarantee. This is quite a difference if the guarantee from a company that furnishes a proper bond to the city means anything, then the company which guarantees its work for ten years should have preference over one that guarantees its work for five years, especially when it figures as low or lower than the other.

There is another matter to be considered in connection with this smooth paving business and it is this: At the present time the contracts for smooth paving Westford street are awarded to the Boston Paving Co. for $2.50 per square yard, whereas when that company figured in competition with other concerns it bid as low as $2.35 per square yard, the work and material in both cases being precisely the same.

Thus, it appears, that had the company been forced into competition it would have done the work at a lower figure.

There is a provision in the city charter that for all purchases of material exceeding $300 in amount, bids shall be called for, but if the street department would follow the same rule it could save considerable money for the city.

His Honor, the mayor, has made a great deal of a fuss over the fact that Mr. Muldoon was invested with some authority in the supply department, in the absence of Agent Barrett, but if he is so zealous in guarding the city's interests, it seems strange that he permits such loose methods to be employed in awarding contracts for smooth paving. Why does he not insist that the matter be thrown open to competition? He has the veto power against any such contract presented to him.

Why does he sign a contract for the expenditure of a large amount of money in smooth paving without calling for bids while there is abundant proof that the work can be done cheaper and better for less money? It seems that if he showed half the solicitude for the city's welfare in the smooth paving business that he has done in interfering with Mr. Barrett of the supply department, he might save the city thousands of dollars.

The question now comes, whether the Boston Paving company is to have a monopoly of the business in this city or whether the city's business is to be thrown open to competition so that the best material and the best work may be obtained at the lowest figure. The fact that but one company furnishes asphaltina is no excuse for giving the contract to that company alone. There is but one company that furnishes Trinidad Lake asphalt. Why has not a contract been awarded to that company? There are other companies furnishing smooth paving that investigation will show to be superior to asphaltina. Why is not the contract given to one of these? Any of them has as strong a claim to consideration as has the asphaltina company, but it may be that some official of the last named company has a pull at city hall that settles the matter, and shuts out the other companies, even from the privilege of bidding upon the work. It is time that this particular method of awarding contracts for smooth paving or anything else should be prohibited in the interest of the city in order to prevent extravagance and the waste of public money.

Several contracts have been given to the asphaltina company. Would it not be policy now to try a company that backs its work with a guarantee twice as long as that of the asphaltina company? If the guarantee indicates the durability of the smooth paving in each case, then the company that gives a ten year guarantee has a better article than that which can venture but a five year guarantee.

Why give preference to the poorer and less durable article? Is it because of favoritism or because of a political pull with the officials who let the contract?

Manchester Union—Now that the peace commissioners to the Philippines are about to come home, having failed to argue the Filipinos into submission, why not send over a force of our trained stump speakers and determine what success they will have?

Philadelphia Press — Judging from the present outlook the Royalists in France are in for a bad quarter of an hour. The republic is supreme, the people are with it and the conspirators against its peace in the army, in the legislature, in private life, are likely to come to grief. The world will welcome a rounding up of these enemies of law and order and will wish President Loubet and his counsellors success. This seems assured as the outbreak at Auteuil, quite as ridiculous as Deroulede's "revolution" of last February has compromised the cause of all pretenders. If the Duke of Orleans is in Paris and is wise, he will not wait on the order of his going but get out.

Philadelphia North American — In the Shakespearean field alone, criticize Mr. Daly's stage adaptations as we may, he labored with genuine reverence for the bard and the light which he has shed upon these immortal dramas in the masterly presentations they have received at his hands, through artists painstakingly trained for their tasks, amply compensates for all of the so-called liberties which he took with the original texts. Aside from his Shakespearean productions, Mr. Daly gave to lovers of the stage from his own mind and in adaptations from the best foreign dramatists, an almost countless number of plays which are brilliant examples of the acted drama. His achievements are too fresh in the public mind to render necessary a recalling of the plays and the players he has given to the public. He was one of the fathers of the American drama and through his passing away we lose a stage genius whose place will be filled with difficulty if at all.

New York Post—The state of Massachusetts continues to set an excellent example for the rest of the country by reserving large tracts of land which possess great natural beauty for the enjoyment of future generations. Greylock, the noble mountain in the northwestern corner of the Commonwealth, was threatened with the loss of its charms a few years ago by the reckless assaults of lumbermen, who saw in the extensive forests along its slopes only so much wood. Happily there were public spirited citizens who recognized the shame which it would be to their generation if these mountain sides should be swept bare, and a movement was organized which, with the co-operation of the legislature, ended in the permanent acquisition for the community of a great tract of land, Greylock being secure, Wachusett, a fine mountain near the center of the state, next invited attention and the state will soon come into possession of 10,000 acres of land there, covering not only the summit, but also its approaches on every side. The readiness of a democracy thus to spend large sums of public money in the interest of beauty and taste is one of the most hopeful things in the development of our institutions.

Ere the late Sheriff Cushing was cold it is said there was a scramble for the position left vacant by his death.

These long trained skirts which the ladies are wearing would look much better in a city where the streets are kept somewhat clean.

That most delightful of summer outings, the annual outing of the Builders' Exchange will take place at Mountain Rock on June 29 next.

The fact that Jim Jeffries, the champion pugilist of the world is a total abstainer, good Christian and the favorite son of a preacher has done much toward removing the popular ban of self-defense.

It is hoped that the social clubs of this city will take hold of the parade idea on July Fourth and make the parade a success. Good sized prizes will make it an object.

The Home, Alpine, Apollo, Ippo, Horsford and other prominent clubs should get in the game.

This is the feast of St. Anthony of Padua and is observed with special devotions in the local Catholic churches. St. Anthony was a native of Lisbon and was first a monk of the Augustine order but afterward became one of the most active propagators of the Order of Franciscans.

My attention has been called to a mistake which I made unintentionally recently in reporting the Barrett—Farrel wedding at which the floral decorations were among the greatest I have ever seen. The artistic decorative work was by Whittet & Co.. I gave the credit to another firm. Excuse me Willie, and remember me with a ticket for the fireworks.

I have never seen a spellbinder so thoroughly "gone" on a candidate as is George W. Moore, the well known burden bearer of the republican city committee on Curtis Guild Jr., candidate for republican nomination for lieutenant governor. "You mark my words," says George to whoever is so unfortunate to mention the fight to him, "Curtis Guild, Jr., will carry that convention with votes to spare."

While at Glen Forest Saturday night I heard a familiar voice crying "Here's just one seat for a thin man" and looking around beheld my old friend "Nick" Calvin, the genial starter and perhaps the most indispensible man in the employ of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill road. "Nick" is "starting" at Glen Forest this year and they say that he can fill a car quicker than any man in Lawrence. "Nick" has been 13 years in the employ of the L. L. & H. and is still in the "young fellows" class and what he doesn't know about the business isn't worth knowing.

Barney Morris was 107 years old yesterday says a New York despatch, but he went to his work as usual.

He walked a mile from his home, 364 Warren street, Brooklyn to Prospect park and displayed more energy in clearing the lawns of paper and rubbish than many a man half a century younger.

Barney has been a park laborer for the last ten years. He is the oldest city employee in Greater New York.

Father Time has dealt kindly with Barney. He enjoys good health and no one would judge from his appearance that he is more than 65. His eye sight is good and he wears no spectacles. As for walking with a cane Barney says: "Pshaw! Canes are for dudes.

"I was born June 10, 1792 in County Cavan, Ireland, where they raise good people" said Barney yesterday. "My father had a farm there. When I was 26 years old I came to America and I settled in Brooklyn."

Barney said he used to be a great hand ball player, something of a boxer and a general all around athlete.

"I never used tobacco or rum" he continued "and to my abstinence and hard work, with lots of play when I got the chance, I attribute my longevity."

Barney lives with his third wife, who is about 55 years old. He gets up every morning at 5 o'clock and walks to his work in Prospect park.

SOCIAL CHAT

Sunday was an ideal day for a ride in the electrics and they were worked to their fullest capacity, the railroad company having in use every car that could possibly carry passengers. The Lakeview route was of course as usual the heaviest worked line owing to the band concert which is always a great attraction. The other suburban routes showed very heavy riding. About every car was loaded beyond comfort and of course under these conditions a person sees many interesting sights and I witnessed one myself. I took a ride as far as Willmington and on my return as the car arrived at Billerica, a woman with three small children boarded the car which at that time had about every seat occupied and it was quite a problem what would become of this woman and her three small children. Her husband escorted her as far as the car, bade her good-bye and returned probably to the village. The childrens' ages ranged from an infant of three months to a child not over three years. The woman interested me very much in her very uncomfortable position trying to get a seat as well as provide some seat or standing room for the children. The warm air would cause an adult to feel drowsy and it certainly had the same telling effect on the children, and all finally becaming sleepy, a lady took one in her lap carrying it all the way to the city. What struck me very forcibly was the idea of a man to allow his wife to travel burdened with three babies. It certainly was a source of annoyance to the mother and a great deal of uneasiness to the conductor. This condition of affairs happens quite frequently and it is not pleasant for the passengers, conductors or the mother of the children. I believe that the father should accompany his wife if he wants his children to have a ride. When they arrived at the square the lady who kindly volunteered to take one of the children in her lap was more excited than the mother, as an appearance of cold perspiration came over her face not knowing how she could wake the child who was in a heavy sleep. The mother got out of the car with the infant sound asleep in her arms, the little boy equally so and the little girl in the lady's lap. It seemed to waken when a gentleman took the little one and carried her to the sidewalk where he shook her gently, talking with her and after a great deal of urging managed to get her little eyes open. The mother all this time was in the most agitated state of mind, and she had the sympathy of everybody, even perhaps the conductor. This is just one incident that probably had been repeated Sunday scores of times on every line in the city and suburbs.

Another thing that I observed while out riding was a number of married men whom I have been intimately acquainted with for years, taking a ride in the electrics with their wives. I attributed that pleasing incident to the no-license condition of our city as I know that some of these men were the regular frequenters of our Sunday hotels when the city had license. If a person desired to comment on the moral influences under no-license, there would not be room enough in The Sun to publish all the beneficial results that can be witnessed every day.

TOMORROW AFTEROON.

We have decided to break up our home, sell our residence on Wilder street, our business property on Merrimack street, travel abroad for at least one year, and upon our return reside in Boston. In compliance with the above determination, we propose on Wednesday afternoon next, June 14th, 1899, to sell to the highest bidders at public auction the WILLIAM BASCOM RESIDENCE, No. 340 Wilder street, or at the corner of Wilder and Grove streets, and the Business Estate numbered 393, 395, 396 and 400 Merrimack street, opposite City Hall.

AT FOUR O'CLOCK.

THE RESIDENCE. Elegant modern house of ten rooms, also bath room, laundry, ironing room, storage and cellar, all heated by an excellent upright steam plant. Full set of double windows, window screens and screen doors. The living room, dining room, and large hall are finished in quartered oak and rosewood the drawing room is finished in cherry and rosewood. The second floor is in white wood finished in delicate colorings; the walls and ceilings throughout the house are beautifully decorated. The lower floor has plate glass windows, open fireplaces in both living room and dining room; the house is in prime condition and is certainly, with a very few exceptions one of the highest class, handsomest finished, and most expensive houses in the Highlands and there are none so choicely situated. It occupies the prominent height of Wilder street.

THE STABLE has stalls for two horses; carriage house for four carriages; harness room for eight harnesses; wash stand, cellar, heat, light and water.

THE LOT has a frontage of 78 feet on Wilder street, 131 feet on Grove street, an area of 8500 square feet and it is a most excellent parcel of land.

This estate is a most conspicuous one among the most conspicuous estates in ward eight, is right in the heart of the most select and finest neighborhood in this fashionable portion of Lowell. The house will be open for inspection after 10 a. m. on day of sale or between 3 and 5 o'clock p. m., each afternoon on application.

AT FIVE O'CLOCK.

BIJOU THEATRE PROPERTY. About 5200 square feet of land with a frontage of 63 feet on Merrimack street. On the land is a three-story frame building with basement. The ground floor has three stores and theatre entrance. Is occupied by Dr. M. E. Thompson, druggist; Fred E. Labarge, shoe store; Casios Tengos, confectionery. The second and third stories are used as a theatre. The property rents for $215 a month and until very recently has rented for $265 a month. The contents of the theatre are as follows: Scenery, asbestos curtain, folding chairs and carpets.

This property is certainly a strong investment estate and from a speculative standpoint is a very chancey realty. Situated as it is on the best business street in Lowell today, in a spot that must always be a choice business stand, opposite the municipal buildings or seat of government of our city; a particular location that has got to be passed and repassed several times a day by thousands of our citizens, as well as by strangers and visitors in coming in and going out of Lowell; it can never be worth less as long as Lowell remains a city and if the past is a criterion, it is going to be worth twice as much within the next twelve or fifteen years. It is conceded by the best real estate men in Lowell that there never was a more propitious time in the history of Lowell to buy real estate than the present and that well situated real estate in Lowell will be worth more money within the next eight or ten years than ever before in the history of the city.

The purchaser of the residence must deposit with or secure to the auctioneers $1200 as soon as the property is struck off; the purchaser of the Bijou Theatre property must do the same with $2500. Other terms liberal. Sales rain or shine and on the premises.

VOTE TO WITHDRAW FROM THE ARCHDIOCESAN UNION.

The Father Mathew C.T.A.B. society of Lawrence met Sunday at its hall in that city and voted to withdraw from the archdiocesan union of Boston. The reason for this is that the society which has been paying into the union a far larger amount than any other society, feels that the benefits derived from the union are not worth the cost of membership.

JOS. CHAMBERLAIN

Will Probably Resign His Position of Secretary.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

LONDON, June 13.—Special importance is attached to the cabinet council which took place this morning. It lasted a couple of hours and it is believed the ministers finally determined upon the policy to be adopted towards the Transvaal. The secretary of states for the Colonies, Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, is expected to make a definite statement on the subject in the house of commons, this afternoon unless the rumors of his destination turn out to be true.

A curious coincident was Mr. Chamberlain was absent from the house yesterday and today it was announced that he and his wife will start for Paris and Lausenne during the course of the week. It was quite unprecedented for Mr. Chamberlain to leave the country during the session.

This, in conjunction with the talk of a disagreement in the cabinet over the Transvaal, was taken to mean that Mr. Chamberlain had decided to leave office. Later, however, an authoritative denial was made of the report that Mr. Chamberlain was going to the continent.

A DEADLY CYCLONE

Hundreds and Perhaps Thousands Killed

By Associated Press to The Sun.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 13.—Scores of persons were killed—the number may reach into the thousands—and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed by a cyclone that swept across the Mississippi Valley east and slight north of this city last night, practically annihilating the village of New Richmond and causing great property loss also at Hudson, Wis., and at Hastings, Minn., and in the section of the country lying between.

How great has been the loss of life it is impossible to tell for the storm has interrupted communication with Hudson and New Richmond reports have come in a round-about way. One man who was at New Richmond when the storm struck has reached Stillwater, Minn.

New Richmond, a village of 2,000 inhabitants, according to his story, was razed by the storm and soon after it was in flames, the injured persons who were pinned in the wreckage being likely to die by fire. The town was crowded with people who had come from the surrounding country to attend a circus. All the hotels of the village were filled with guests.

Damage to railroads and telegraph and telephone lines is widespread. The running of trains has been interfered with and communication with points in the path of the storm has been cut off. Latest reports estimate the loss of life at New Richmond at 250 and some put the figures as high as 500.

Throughout the region of the storm crops have been destroyed. Grain has been torn out by the roots or beaten into the soil. Trees have been uprooted or snapped off like straws. Fields and roads have been flooded and sections of railroads on all lines passing through the storm section washed out.

Coming on the heels of a heavy rain storm of Sunday and Sunday night, the storm has turned every small stream tributary to the Mississippi in this section into a torrent. Bridges have been swept away and much property damaged by overflows.

J. A. Carroll, who arrived at Stillwater late last night was in New Richmond, Wis., when the tornado struck. He says the main street was wiped out and hundreds of people killed. He does not know how many, as he left soon after. The ruins of the town are burning, he says, cutting off all hope of escape for those pinned in the wreckage. Carroll escaped by a hair's breadth and was the means of saving others in the instant that was given for flight. Every place where a building stood a few hours ago in the village is now a pit of death. Carroll was in the hotel just before 6 o'clock. It had been stifling hot and the air was breathless. A dull rumble broke the stillness, increasing to a roar.

"I ran to the door of the hotel," he says, "and there was a funnel-shaped cloud bearing down upon us. The noise of its roaring was frightful. The blackness of the sky was indescribable. I shouted that a cyclone was upon us and ran for the basement. It was hardly an instant before the building was lifted from its foundations, twisted into fragments and dashed into splinters.

"The track of the storm seemed to be half a mile wide. How far it extended, I cannot tell. The storm struck us from the southwest and its onrushing was like a tidal wave. There is not a building left on its foundation in the main part of the village. Most of them are twisted and beaten to shreds.

"To add to the horror fire in the ruins followed the storm. It was night and there were no lights. There was no means left for fighting the fire. The only thing we could do was to battle for the lives we might reach before the fire cut off escape. I must have worked two hours in the debris. A train was got together to come to Stillwater for help and I came with it."

Damages to railroads, telegraph and telephone lines and crops is widespread.

Next to New Richmond, the most severe damage done by storm was at Hudson, Wis., and also at La Crosse, Wis. In the vicinity of the first named town, a tornado and cloudburst destroyed wires, haystacks, unroofed residences, barns, outbuildings all along its path.

At La Crosse, it was the worst storm known in many years, nearly five inches of rain falling. The river rose so rapidly that 400 people living in the lower portion of the city were driven from their homes. Over 100 head of live stock were drowned. Nearly every bridge in the La Crosse valley is gone.

At Mankato, Minn., six inches of rain fell. Winona, Minn., Sparta, Wis., and other towns in the adjoining territory are partly under water and much damage has been done.

Faribault, Minn., El Roy Villa, Rockton, and Tomah, also suffered severely and have the same story to tell of flooded cellars and streets, heavy damage to crops, hundreds of heads of cattle are drowned, numerous washouts on the railroads, bridges washed away and wire communication paralyzed. The killed and injured so far as known are:

Near Stockton, Minn.—Two men killed by lightning.

Near Burkhardt, Wis.—Mrs. Dave Hefferon, killed, and her husband, seriously injured.

At New Richmond—Dead: Dr. Wade. Injured: —— Harrett, rescued from the wreck of the Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; Dr. Epley, both legs broken; Charles McKennon, proprietor of the Nicholas Hotel; Mrs. Charles McKennon; two children of Charles McKennon, buried under wreck of Nicholas Hotel; —— Newhall, rescued from wreck of Nicholas Hotel, severely injured; laundry girl, employed at Nicholas Hotel, fatally injured.

At Hudson, Wis.— —— Vollman, leg broken.

160 DEAD AT NEW RICHMOND.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 13.—The list of dead caused by the storm at New Richmond, Wis., now foots up to 160, according to advices received at the Wisconsin Central office here. The ruins of the ill-fated city are being swept by fire.

Every effort is being made to stay the progress of the flames and to rescue the dead and dying from the ruins. Relief trains are en route from Chippewa Falls and Stevens' Point. Doctors and nurses are being picked up along the route.

E. W. Hall formerly a resident of this city is renewing acquaintances with his old friends. Mr. Hall 25 years ago carried on the fruit and confectionery business at the corner of Central and Prescott streets. Mr. Hall is now located in Lynn and undoubtedly is enjoying health and prosperity, as he does not look a day older than when he did business at the corner.

ROCK LEFT

BUT HE TOOK SOMETHING WITH HIM THAT DID NOT BELONG TO HIM.

Dennis Rock of Lowell was in hard straits a short time ago says the Lawrence News and John J. Hallivan a tailor employed by William Anderson of Lawrence volunteered to provide food and lodging for him until he "got on his feet". When Hallivan was quietly sleeping Saturday night, Rock "got on his feet" and left with a pair of pants and a gold watch belonging to Hallivan in his posession. Yesterday when Hallivan awoke he discovered the loss of his companion and also his watch and trousers and the police were at once notified and are hard at work on the case. It is a pretty mean thief that will bite the hand of his benefactor and if Rock is caught he should be severely dealt with.

Rock was known in Lowell by the name of George Mansworth and worked for the Black Diamond Stove Polish Co.

The only thing left behind to remember him by was his old clothes.

Mr. Hallivan rooms over the Home Dining rooms on Essex street.

CITY HALL NOTES

There will be a regular meeting of the board of aldermen tonight.

The sewer committee met in the civil engineer's office at 10 o'clock this morning and went through considerable business.

Joseph Laroux, jack-of-all-trades, for several years, later a showman and now a balloonist of long and first class record, was in to see the city messenger this morning in regard to the job of going from the North comon on the Fourth. Mr. Fagan referred him to the Fourth of July committee.

MOVED HIS OFFICE.

Inspector of Wires James F. McElhelm has moved his office from the eaves of the city hall to the first floor and will hereafter occupy the room which was used by Architect Gardner. It adjoins the assessors' office. The office on the roof was pleasant on cool days and when the wind was from the north but at other times it was terribly hot.

LOTS HAVE BEEN LET.

Nearly all of the lots on the lower part of the South common have already been let and this will greatly interfere with the firemen's squirt if it does not prevent it entirely on the South common. This is the best place in the city for a squirt. As nothing was said to Supt. Whittet about the squirt, he let all the lots he could.

Shine pleaded guilty and was held in $200 for sentence tomorrow. Dennis F. Kelley, a well known ball player of Marlboro, and other fishermen who were with Shine ran away. The constable fired at Kelley and two shots struck him. He was able to walk to his home and no serious results are apprehended.

THE LOWELL CLUB

AND ITS PROPRIETORS TAKEN IN.

JUDGE CLYDE CALLED IT A FAKE

In Imposing a Fine on the Proprietors.

The police of Hudson paid attention to the barrooms near the limit Sunday and as a result had complaints against two of the alleged liquor sellers in police court this morning said the Nashua Telegraph yesterday.

Superintendent Martin accompanied by Officers Smith, O'Connell and Merrill visited the Lowell club and found sufficient evidence of a liquor business to bring the alleged manager, George Cluff before Judge Clyde.

In the cellar of the house was found a large quantity of whiskey, lager beer and Sterling ale. The largest supply was bottled lager of which there were seven barrels. There were 12 cases of ale and seven empty quarter kegs which had evidently contained ale. In the pockets of the respondent were found a quart and a pint bottle, each partially filled with whiskey. A large crowd of people were about the place during the day and the officers allege that several people were seen coming out of the place in a drunken condition.

This place has been under suspicion for a long time and it has been believed that it was a barroom conducted under the disguise of a club. Such a ruse has frequently been adopted in other places for the sale of liquor. Following the closing of the barrooms in Lowell, the Lowell named club sprung up, almost in a night. The officers did not find any bar, but there were a number of small tables around which the frequenters of the place could sit and have their refreshments served to them.

Mr. Cluff in conversation with a reporter, this morning, stated that the place was a club house, pure and simple. He declared that a number of men had organized themselves into a club for social purposes and that they engaged him as a manager to keep the place in order and take care of the property. He said that the liquor found in the place was for the refreshment of the members and maintained that it was not kept for sale and was not sold to the members but that each was allowed to have a reasonable amount, the rules of the club being that no member shall have sufficient liquor to get drunk. On this point he is the judge and when he considers a man has sufficient liquor, he has the right to deny any more being given him. He says the club has 80 members.

In addition to searching this place, the officers visited Charles T. Chartland's place and there found liquor.

In court this morning George Cluff was charged with keeping for sale both spirituous and malt liquors and with keeping open Sunday.

He pleaded not guilty and waived examination on the two first cases. On the complaint for keeping open on Sunday, he had a hearing. The officers told about visiting the place and finding a large quantity of liquor. The respondent stated that he acted as manager of the social club. They buy the liquor to drink themselves. No one but members are admitted. He claimed that no one went out in an intoxicated condition.

To Mr. Wason he stated that he hired the place the first of May. He pays $5 a month rent for it for the club, of which he is a member. He said there was no president and no board of directors of the club.

He said that the following men were members: James Cullen, Lakeview avenue; John Roarke, Cross street; Chas. Cutler, off School street; Timothy Harrigan, boards on the corporation; Thos. Kennedy, a barber in Lowell; William Kennedy, Ayer place, Hudson; Mr. McPherson, Lakeview avenue, Lowell; James Donahue and Mr. Lightburn, also of Lowell.

Mr. Cluff said that he had run a club room in Derry last summer. No Hudson or Nashua people belong to the club. The club started with forty members. It has not yet adopted a set of by-laws. The new members are not voted in but the names are talked over by the other members. Mr. McPherson was one of the recently elected members of the club. The money paid in goes to buy the beer and eatables and each member has to pay a proportionate share of the cost. There is no regular fee. The club was formed around the streets of Lowell. The members play cards on week days.

Judge Clyde stated that the club was only a fake and organized for the purpose of selling liquor and he imposed a fine of $10 and costs. The respondent took an appeal and furnished bonds in the sum of $100 for his appearance before the supreme court.

Chartland was charged with a second offence of keeping malt liquor and he also pleaded not guilty and waived examination, furnishing bonds in the sum of $300 for the supreme court.

The officers state that there was a large and very orderly crowd at the limit Sunday. They saw no drunkenness and made no arrests for this offence. They say that most of the men who came up from Lowell did not come quite to the limit and got off the cars before reaching the power station.

Selectman George S. Steele had his lunch room open Sunday and was not molested by the officers or anybody else. He sold ice cream, milk, and cakes and "other necessities of life," but had no tonics or cigars for sale. It is stated that a free fight was indulged in by a number of Lowell young men during the afternoon. The place where the fight took place was across the brook a short distance from the Ayer place. The officers were sent for to stop the combat but the crowd caught on and fled before they could reach the place.

William Kennedy, another member of the Lowell club, was fined $10 and costs for keeping malt liquors for sale, at a session of the court. The complaint against him for keeping spirituous liquors for sale was not pressed on condition that he leave the state.

GRANITE CUTTERS' STRIKE.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 13.—The first strike which has taken place in this section for some years was precipitated today at Hurricane Island and Waldoboro today, when nearly 200 stonecutters quit work in response to orders from the national committee of the Granite Cutters' union.

The strike is due to no disaffection here but rather to the fact that the men are employed by the Booth Bros. and Hurricane Isle Granite company, which is furnishing stone for the government building in progress at Annapolis, the general contract for which was made by P. J. Carlin and company of Brooklyn.

Carlin & Co., in addition to this work have the contract for building the new Tombs prison and one of the East river bridge piers and the grievance against the firm arises, it is understood, because it is employing men on both jobs who belong to the new Granite Cutters' union, made up of members who have left the Granite Cutters' union for various reasons.

A LIVELY FIGHT

Both are Now Sporting Extensive "Shiners."

According to interested onlookers of affairs at the city farm, there is considerable bad feeling existing among the petty officers of that institution.

And if what the same interested parties say is true, the variance of opinion which existed between Officers McManus and Coleman came to a head yesterday morning when a pitched battle took place and soon after McManus was seen on his way to the police station. He intended to swear out a warrant for Coleman for assault and battery, and would have done so but for the peacemaking interference of Supt. Wyman, who to save the matter a publication smoothed things over to the satisfaction of all parties concerned.

The trouble, it is alleged, came about by the locking up of a prisoner by Coleman. McManus, who came along afterward was told of this and he was heard to remark that if he had been around the prisoner would not have been punished.

Coleman apparently heard of this for without delay he went looking for McManus. Out he went, according to the story, and into the barn, of which McManus is superintendent. The men met and Coleman put his fist in the other's eye. McManus went down but came up and though bruised was full of fight. Without any ado, he went at his friend (?) Coleman. McManus sustained several bruises, it is said. When the fight was declared off by the bystanding prisoners, one of the men required the services of a physician.

Supt. Wyman, when spoken to this morning of the affair, stated that the men fought, but the results were not so serious as the outside party who gave the information would make it appear.

"Both principals were in the wrong," said Mr. Wyman, "and matters are adjusted now. The men clinched and were separated by officers. Coleman's eye is discolored and McManus may be similarly disfigured. The men are now working in the fields the same as usual. There was some talk of McManus going to get a warrant but at present he says he never had such an intention."

Mr. Coleman who then rang up The Sun, said: "There is no truth in the story. It was an ordinary happening and a story of it would only get the thoughtless to talking. I heard talk of McManus' saying that I would not lock up a certain prisoner if he were around, but I paid no attention to it, however. Yesterday morning I was going across the field when McManus hollered silly names after me. I went over to him and told him to have sense and then we wrestled for awhile and that's all."

Love tickled the young man's ribs one day;
He scratched and scratched, but the tickle would stay;
Little he thought the young lady's heart
Had the same trouble as his from the start.
He had to drink GLORIA in order to see,
How to get out of the difficulty;
Young lady's answer, I'll surely be with you,
My mother and sisters will come along too.
He drank more Gloria and counted his cash,
Now thinks he will have to scratch gravel for hash.
Then all drink GLORIA before it's too late,
And look out well for this ticklish state.

The Fall in Stocks at Flower's Death Brought Wealth to James R. Keene, Whose Career Has Been Unique.

"It's an ill wind that blows nowhere," so the French express it. The English version of the same is, "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good." The day following the lamented death of ex-Governor Roswell P. Flower, of New York, a line appeared in the press of the country stating that, owing to the sudden decline in stocks on Flower's death, James R. Keene had made $350,000 on Wall Street.

As little is known in some sections of the country about James R. Keene as about the most obscure of men. Greatly averse to publicity and the newspaper interview, he is more of a myth to the New Yorker than is Cecil Rhodes operating away off in Cape Town.

If you ask the Wall Street banker who Keene is he will reply with great respect, "He is one of the powers of Wall street." If you ask a broker about Keene he will tell you that he is "the most famous plunger of the day." If you ask the same question of a sporting man he will enumerate the Keene horses; yet will tell you that he has never seen James R. Keene; and knows the family only through the deeds of the son, Foxhall, the well-known sport. Even society knows the Keene family very slightly; for, from choice, they have mingled little with society people.

HIS START.

James R. Keene was born an English gentleman. The Keenes of Lincolnshire have been land owners for generations, and the boy, James R., born at the Keene Abbey in 1838, was educated by private tutors. At the age of ten he was sent to Dublin to live in the family of an old master of Trinity who took a few boys at very high price.

The elder Keene was a land owner and something of a dealer in stocks. His moneyed interests lay in London. Many Englishmen of to-day will tell you of the crash of '52, when stocks went down and fortunes were lost. The elder Keene lost his money along with the other unfortunates, and the boy James was brought back from school.

In 1853 the elder Keene with his family, including the boy, James R., "came out" to this country—as he would have told you—and settled in Shasta county, California.

At that time everybody was digging for gold. Every mountain, every plain, every canyon and every gulch was being explored for the precious metal. Young James at fourteen showed all the energy which has made him famous since, and he asked permission of his father to set out to earn his own living, a permission which was readily granted.

At the age of fifteen the boy who was afterward to make a stir in the financial world was guarding the animals at an Indian post. He was employed in the roughest capacity, but he did his work well and he saved his money industriously.

In a short time he had saved enough to buy a miner's outfit, and with this he started to the mountains, tapping the rocks and washing the streams.

A POOR MINER.

But his success was indifferent. He did not "strike gold." The work was even less remunerative than guarding animals; so he decided to make use of the education which he had received, and in early manhood he accepted a position on a newspaper where he reported, wrote editorials and did the stock markets. Here he saved his money and soon he had a nice little sum.

Upon the discovery of the Comstock lode Keene threw up his newspaper job and went to Nevada, where he bought some mining property, which he sold at a good price and soon worked along until he came in possession of California mining stocks upon which he cleared $125,000 in one year.

Very gentlemanly in manner, of fine physique, highly educated and wealthy, young Keene was considered one of the catches of the Pacific Coast. And when he courted Sara, the daughter of Colonel Leroy Daingerfield, of Kentucky, no one wondered that he was admitted to so fine a Southern family. Miss Daingerfield was at that time visiting her brother in California, and like many another Southern girl, she made the best match of the season, right under the noses of the wealthy Western girls.

But a plunger does not always plunge in the right direction, and the Comstock disaster brought grief to the Keene family. James R. Keene lost his entire fortune, and was, comparatively speaking, penniless. Yet with good Keene stubbornness he refused to accept a position in an office. His brother-in-law wanted to make a politician of him, but he had no taste for politics. He declared that his forte lay in the stock market and he would do nothing else.

After a year of hard luck he formed the acquaintance of Senator C. N. Felton, who conceived a strong liking for him. Felton was at the head of the Stock Exchange in California, and held a position in the State Treasury. With his friendship Mr. Keene managed to get on his feet again, and in 1876 he was one of the rich men of the West.

Although the West has long since ceased to consider Keene one of its residents, it will always remember him for his part in its banking interests; for at the historic failure of the Bank of California he was one of the four men who loaned the bank $1,000,000 in cash to enable it to do business again.

Two children were born to the Keene family in these years, Foxhall, now a man of prominence in turf and social life, and Jessie, afterward the wife of Talbot J. Taylor, of Baltimore.

WITH A FORTUNE.

But making a fortune is trying work; and Mr. Keene found his health so broken that in 1877, at the age of thirty-nine, he was given up for a dead man. His physicians said that possibly, if he were to go at once to Europe for a long rest, he might recover; and Mr. Keene, alarmed at their warnings, bundled up his family and started overland for London by way of New York.

True to his long training in the stock market Mr. Keene read the newspapers, and the day of his arrival he saw that stocks were in very bad shape. In fact, as he scanned the columns of the stock market he found that a man with a little money could make a great deal in a short time. And he stepped down into Wall street to make a few purchases. Here he became interested, and by the following day he had decided not to go to Europe just yet. He remained right in New York, not even going back to California.

It is said that in the two years which followed James R. Keene cleared $9,000,000. Certainly he did well. And when he took passage for Europe two years later, for his long postponed vacation, he had the satisfaction of knowing that he had spent his time very profitably.

Upon his return he arranged his California interests in such shape that he could profitably leave them; and, buying a handsome home at Cedarhurst, Long Island, he continued his operations in Wall Street. To cement the eastern tie his son, Foxhall, married Miss Lawrence, of Long Island, of the well-known Lawrence family.

It has been charged against James R. Keene that he is gruff, even bearlike. But those who know him well say that the exterior is a mere cloak for great affability, and that underneath the quiet, studied indifference there beats one of the most philanthropic hearts.

THE KEENE COLORS LEADING IN A NECK TO NECK RACE.

MRS. GLADSTONE'S LIFE OF GLADSTONE

It is Whispered That She Has at Last Set to Work Upon a Task to Which She Has Long Been Urged.

Catherine Gwynne Gladstone, better known as Mrs. William Ewarts Gladstone, is quietly said to be busy upon her recollections of her late husband. Mrs. Beecher wrote a series of articles for a magazine entitled "Mr. Beecher as I Knew Him." Mrs. Gladstone's work, if she finishes it, will be called "The Home Life of Gladstone; or, the Study of an English Gentleman."

Mrs. Gladstone, the "Lady of Hawarden," as she is called in the town thereabouts, is one of the most remarkable women of the day. Gladstone did not hesitate to attribute to her the major part of his success, saying that her advice and her wisdom were the foundation stones of his best deeds.

Mrs. Gladstone was a Scotch heiress whose father was the owner of extensive Scottish mills, and whose lands lay scattered over England. He owned the ground over which Hawarden stands, and one of the first gifts to his daughter was Hawarden castle, together with outlying lands. Mr. Gladstone, who had formed the habit of going to church every morning in his life, built a chapel upon the estate, and for fifty years Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone attended that chapel every morning at nine o'clock to hear the half-hour service read.

Never a great beauty, Mrs. Gladstone has what is called style. She is tall and slender, and wore the handsome clothes which her father could buy her with an "air." When she came to live in London as the wife of the young politician, William E. Gladstone, it was thought that she had made a poor match; for, with her wealth and good looks, she could have adorned a much higher station. Still Mr. Gladstone stood well politically, just as Mr. Asquith and Mr. George Curzon once stood as beginners; and in a short time it was seen that Miss Gwynne had made a very good match. Her father came to this way of thinking and gave her money so plentifully that Mr. Gladstone was maliciously accused of being supported by his wife's father.

It was only when he refused a title that Englishmen came to think that he must be somebody after all.

Mrs. Gladstone retired to Hawarden for the express purpose of raising a family. Children came fast, and she was determined that they should live and be strong, splendid specimens of English manhood and womanhood. Never virile, yet always strong; never too progressive, yet ever steady, they grew up good English people of whom England is to-day very proud. Miss Helen Gladstone, the unmarried daughter, has taught for many years in an English institution of learning which pays her an enormous sum. Besides being an excellent advertisement for the school, she is a capable instructor and in her specialty—that of English literature—she is unequaled.

Mrs. Gladstone taught her children to despise a title for themselves, though by no means to despise the nobility. She shared the opinion of her husband that the days of heraldry and titles were over, and that in the present day of civilization a man received his rewards for faithful deeds in other ways than by the title of duke or lord.

She taught her children the value of education and so capably instructed them that the Rev. Herbert Gladstone was almost ready to graduate from college at the time he first entered it. He was fully posted on all the dogmas and rituals of the church, and he knew its tenets to the finest point. He is now one of the most highly educated clergymen in England, and his works would be accepted as ecclesiastical books of reference.

When Mr. Gladstone died his wife took the matter very quietly, as something which they had both prepared for. She did not apparently mourn him; but went about her daily task with a calm which told of a peculiar resignation. She even continued to attend the little chapel at Hawarden whither they had always gone together.

Mrs. Gladstone was repeatedly urged during the life of her husband to write a biographical sketch of him—an intimate account of their daily life. It is said now that she has been prevailed upon to write about Mr. Gladstone, not for mercenary reasons, but because it is a duty which she owes to posterity. On the shady side of eighty, with keen faculties and a body slight but almost strong, she has set to work upon a most interesting task.

QUEER KIND OF SPECTACLES.

Spectacles, to enable the user to see objects near at hand or a distance, are made in a variety of forms. In a common form the glasses are in two parts, joined at the center, the upper parts being of a power suited to distance and the lower halves to reading. Sometimes a piece is cut out of the glass, and a piece of a different power is put in its place.

Sometimes the variation is made by cementing a wafer of glass over a part of the spectacle glasses. There are made also spectacles with crescent-shaped glasses, the upper part of the glass being cut out entirely; the wearer reads through the glasses and looks over them to see at a distance. There are spectacles called spectacle glasses that are like glasses with the upper halves cut off; the wearer looks down through the glasses to read, and he can see over them without effort when he looks at the congregation.

CROSSING THE EQUATOR WITH FATHER NEPTUNE.

Jolly Ceremonies Which Take Place When the Warships Pass Over The Equatorial Line.

The boys in blue manage to have good times at sea. Crossing the equator with Father Neptune is one of the events of the voyage to the Philippines.

Going through the Mediterranean the warships touch the equator in the narrow pass between the Malay Peninsula and the island of Sumatra, and at this point the fun takes place.

The day before the equator is reached the Captain announces the hour and the minute at which, by his calculations, his ship will pass over the central line of the earth. It may be midnight, or at 3 in the afternoon; but it is noticed that the Captain, if he be an obliging one, is careful to select a time when all will be awake.

At the hour all of the crew not otherwise engaged, and all of the passengers, if there be any, come on deck, dressed in fanciful clothes. They are waiting for Father Neptune.

And they do not have long to wait. Soon there is a scrambling up the outside of the boat, and the old fellow clambers over the rail, all dripping with water.

He assumes one of many guises. Maybe he is an Indian, in paint and feathers. Perhaps he is a fat John Bull or again a Father Knickerbocker. No one can tell what shape Father Neptune will assume.

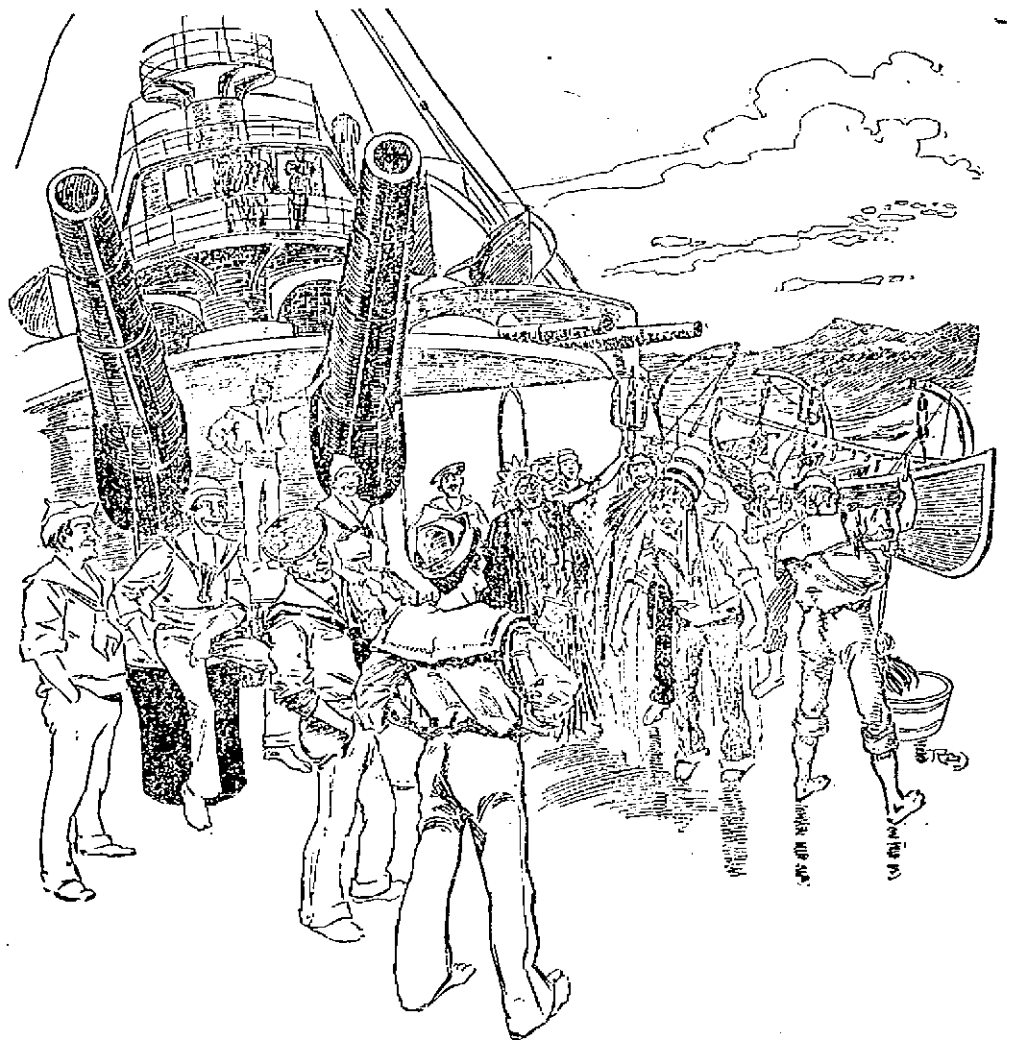

Once on deck, the old fellow begins to play pranks. He pours water over his guests, paints their faces, orders them to do strange things, which they cannot disobey, and cuts up at a terrific rate. Finally he selects one of the crew, orders out a chair and a razor and shaves him. It is a great honor to be shaved by Father Neptune, though the blood-curdling feats of the old fellow would scare a landlubber.

He sharpens his razor upon the sole of his shoe and leaps wildly in the air, with many war cries, before attacking his victim.

In going to the Philippines around Cape Horn the equator is crossed twice, with elaborate ceremonies that rob the long voyage of its tediousness.

This custom, which originated on the English high seas, prevails all over the world. The English sailors on their way to India indulge in the wildest pranks in the Indian Ocean, and colonists going out to Australia never forget the ceremony of crossing the equator with Father Neptune.

THIS IS ONE OF THE SPORTS THAT ENLIVEN THE LONG JOURNEY TO OUR NEW POSSESSIONS; THE EQUATOR IS CROSSED AMID THE WILDEST FUN.

A DAY ABOARD THE NEW COLUMBIA.

The Perfect Equipments of the New Yacht From Kitchen to Cabin.

C. Oliver Iselin has from the first declared that he saw no reason why the new yacht should not be launched June 8. There was to him an association about the number 8 which made him anxious to get the yacht afloat on that day.

Very few people will have an opportunity of spending a day on the Columbia; but those who do will find themselves in a great, graceful boat stretched out in long lines that lie upon the water like a Cleopatra on her couch.

The yacht, even at anchor, is perpetually moving and courtesying to the great white buoy which holds her fast.

When you come along-side the boat you will go up a companionway which leads from the water to the deck of the Columbia. Captain Charles Barr always stands at the head of the companionway, his cap in his hand, to welcome visitors. The captain is particularly glad to see ladies, and invites them to carry anything away with them they may see; and in this respect the captain has been known to rob a yacht of its silk curtains and in other ways deprive it of its furniture.

Captain Charley Barr is reputed to be the most skillful yachting skipper in America. Barr is not thirty-five years old. He is inclined to be genial; and he will tell you how he was born of Scotch parentage in 1864, and how he will be thirty-five years old July 11. He will add that he became an American citizen many years ago. His parents wanted him to be a grocer, but he ran away and went to sea. He sailed all kinds of coasting boats until he got employment on a yacht. Since then he has sailed the forty-foot cutter Minerva, and the forty-six footer Oweenee; he also sailed the Navahoe for Royal Phelps Carroll; he brought the Vigilant back from England for George Gould in '95, and raced the Vigilant in the fall, when she acted as a trial horse for the Defender.

Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin will be aboard nearly all the time, and if you are lucky enough to be invited aboard the Columbia you will also be Mrs. Iselin's guest.

THE KITCHEN.

You will sit on deck for a few minutes and then Captain Barr will invite you to go down into the kitchen; for no one is ever contented with the outside appearance of a house. As you go toward the kitchen you will notice that there is not a speck of dust about the Columbia. Even the most careful dust hunter will not find the faintest trace of anything dead or living that ought not to be aboard.

They will want you to visit the kitchen the first thing because the cook will soon be getting ready for dinner, and then all visitors will be kept out of the kitchen. The kitchen is not a very big one for the work it turns out. It is only a fair sized one in a moderate sized flat, but there is a big range, with its pots and pans, all dazzlingly bright, and two men cooks in neat white aprons and big cooking caps, busily at work. A big dresser is filled with everything needed to flavor or prepare any kind of soup, fish or meat; canned goods in abundance and a great array of edibles to tempt dainty palates.

In another corner is the pantry where the china is kept. This service is not in keeping with the rest of the menage. It is a plain blue and white china set of the kind that may easily be bought in sets large enough for an ordinary family at from $10 to $15. Very little silverware is used on board, and what there is is of a plain pattern. The officers and men use aluminum teaspoons, which are so light that they almost float. A good sized carving table that can be folded against the partition completes the kitchen furnishings. The kitchen force consists of two cooks and two stewards.

ORDERING DINNER.

The cooks are kept busy, for there are six meals to prepare each day. First there is the officers' breakfast at 7 a. m., then the owners' and guests' at 9. Dinner for the officers is at noon and lunch for the after cabin is at 1 p. m., while supper for the former is served at 6 p. m., and dinner for Mr. and Mrs. Iselin and their friends at 8 p. m. This makes lots of work, but the stewards are glad to do it, for the people they cater to are very appreciative.

If you are there time enough in the morning—for when you go to spend a day upon a yacht you arrive as early as possible—you can go up with the cook to Mr. Iselin and hear him get his orders for dinner and the day, for everything is run just like a house.

Mr. Iselin orders a dinner which consists of six courses, soup, fish and entree, roast, game, dessert and coffee. Then there is a little wine also, but a greater demand is for cold mineral waters. The cook's favorite dish is a frozen pudding, which is served up every day on board. The crew generally eat on board the tender, except on race days, when they eat aboard the ship.

You will notice that particular attention is paid to the culinary department, for the crew that is fed well will work well. It is said that this is one of the causes for the failure to take the Cup away from America. The American sailors have the best of food, and therefore they do their best every day in the week. Perhaps you will be invited into Mrs. Iselin's cabin, and undoubtedly you will. It is in the stern of the ship. Her stateroom is a marvel of neatness and economy of space. It is shut off from the dining room by a studded frame, hung with rich scarlet silk, while the back walls, which curve upward and in, are lined with white cretonne, figured in a lovely design of cream and pale pink roses. Two berths with lockers beneath them have space therein, each cushioned with thick mattresses and mounted on woven wire springs. A bureau with a good-sized mirror and large drawers is tucked away in a convenient corner. The bureau is of white enamel and natural mahogany. All the fixtures in the cosy little dressing room that adjoins are of aluminum.

You will notice that there are lamps burned aboard the boat instead of electricity or gas, which would add too much to the weight of the fleet racer. The rooms are also partitioned off, you will observe, with silk curtains or with canvas; for wooden partitions would be a serious handicap to the boat. The canvas partitions answer very nicely for making rooms aboard the boat, and you would scarcely notice that they are not of wood.

Mrs. Iselin's stateroom has port-holes and sky-lights. There is a handsome rug on the floor; pretty furniture sets around the room, and there is room to store all the wearing apparel needed. A cosy little dressing room adjoins the sleeping room, so that if Mrs. Iselin decides to accompany the yacht she can be very comfortable aboard. Everything possible is made of aluminum, even to the wash stand, the hot and cold water faucets. This is also to save the weight.

A PLEASANT DAY.

The woodwork throughout the boat is yellow, and looks very clean and cool.

The dining room has four sides beautifully paneled in silk. The floor has a rug in the center on which stands the dining table, which is large enough to accommodate a number of guests. Big wicker chairs stand about the room, which, between meals, is used for the saloon.

The Columbia's buffet will be in this saloon, and will be a veritable storehouse for a small number of fine wines and choice edibles. The officers' quarters are models of neatness. Captain Barr's stateroom is next to the mate's room; then comes the stateroom for Mr. Iselin's valet. On the other side are staterooms for visitors. In the center of the cabin is the dining table of the officers; and in the floor there is a big trap door which can be lifted up to disclose an ice box big enough for a hotel.

The crew sleep in hammocks which are stretched upon iron frames painted white. These hammocks are so arranged that they contain very comfortable beds, and the red, white and blue mattresses and blankets look very tempting upon them.

If you are invited to spend a day aboard the Columbia by all means accept, for you will have the red-letter day of your life.

ROYALTY AT THE PLAY.

The Emperor of Austria is the greatest theatregoer among royalties of the day. He loves the play, and his kindly applause has often saved a piece from failure.

The Czar and the Prince of Wales are of the "good public" class. The Prince follows the play with interest, laughs at the comic scenes, shows emotion at the tragic parts.

The Czar and Czarina are interested both in the play and the players, but in a more subdued fashion. William of Germany is the "enlightened" spectator, who criticises in technical terms the actors, the piece and the scenery.

NEW MANAGER

Franklin Woodman's Busy Career at Railroading.

WORKED UP FROM THE BOTTOM.

May Move His Office to Lowell.

It is now General Manager Franklin Woodman of the Merrimack Valley division of the Massachusetts Electric Street Railway company, says the Haverhill Gazette, the company which recently absorbed the street railways in this section of the state. The appointment of Division General Manager Woodman was made by General Manager Sullivan of the Massachusetts company in Boston last Friday, a tender of the proposition having been made to Mr. Woodman last Wednesday when he was summoned to Boston by Manager Sullivan. The latter had had Mr. Woodman under consideration since he assumed control of the new company, though the new official was not an active candidate for the position. General Manager Sullivan, before assuming his new office, had charge of the Lowell and Suburban railway. There were several aspirants for the position given Mr. Woodman and it is highly complimentary to his ability that without his seeking the berth, he was selected by Manager Sullivan.

When he was tendered the position last week, he informed the general manager that he wished to consider it although he was earnestly pressed to accept it at once. On Friday he held another conference with General Manager Sullivan and it ended with his acceptance.

The news became quietly known, continues the Gazette and locally the many friends of the genial division general manager warmly congratulated him. Since coming to this city almost seven years ago, he has made many close friends and in the reconstruction of the old Haverhill and Groveland Street Railway company and the extensions of the Lowell, Lawrence and Haverhill company he showed that he was a thorough and practical street railway man. It was under his direction that the Haverhill division of the L. L. & H. company prospered and has become one of the finest street railways in the state. He is now completing his 22d year as a street railway man. He began at the bottom of the ladder and has risen rapidly until he is now recognized among the leading street railway officials in New England.

His first service was with the Old Metropolitan Street Railway company in Boston as a starter. He next became division superintendent's clerk. Four years after he entered the Metropolitan company as a starter he was appointed superintendent of the Roxbury division of the West End street railway of Boston. This position he held for eight years until he was chosen general manager of the New Bedford street railway company. That position he accepted Sept. 19, 1889, and his work there was similar to that which he has performed since coming to Haverhill in August, 1892.

He was chosen by the L. L. & H. St. railway company to assume charge of the Haverhill division from a large list of aspirants and it was a tribute to his ability. His work in Haverhill is well known. From the old horse cars to West Newbury, under the Haverhill & Groveland system, the local division has branched out until it extends from Methuen to Newburyport, the roadbed being perfect, the equipment excellent, and the service has ever been first class and up to date. It is well known that no complaint for better service has ever passed unheeded when made to Supt. Woodman and he has always been known as an earnest, indefatigable worker, ever catering for his patrons and also carefully looking after the interest of his employes.

In his new capacity, Division Manager Woodman will for the present retain his office in Haverhill. Last evening when seen he said that he might possibly remove his office later in the year to Lowell. After receiving his appointment, he announced the list of his assistants. Succeeding him as superintendent of the Haverhill division will be Alex. McRae. N. E. Morton, who has been superintendent of the Lawrence division since it was formed, will retain control there and Philip T. Bagley will have charge of the Lowell division. In all, Mr. Woodman will have supervision of 140 miles of tracks. His division extends from Nashua, N. H., to Newburyport, including the Lowell and Nashua company, the Lowell and Suburban company, the Nashua N. H. St. Ry., and the Lowell, Lawrence & Haverhill company, with all its divisions in Andover, Methuen, North Andover, this city and Newburyport.

A BICYCLE CLUB THAT WORKS AND SAYS NOTHING.

Among the number of local cycling clubs which though hardly ever heard from through the newspapers, are the Coming Men of America, an organization now in existence for over a year and with regular runs. The club was instituted during the latter part of '98 and at once proceeded to fulfill the duties of a wheeling club, going occasionally to Silver Lake and other neighboring points of interest. There are about 75 names on the rolls and Harry Hennessey has counted the same number of caps. The caps are of vermilion and across the front is inscribed "C. M. A.," which of course means Coming Men of America. The runs of the club will continue till cold weather, with Hennessey as captain.

BOXING GOSSIP.

Of course you knew that Jeffries was going to win. So did we all of us, but few of us bet on him.

The next great event to come off will happen on the evening of June 21, when the regular meeting of the Nutone club will be held at its apartments in Middlesex street, when Patsey Hennessey of Lawrence, and Joe Flaherty of Lowell, will spar 15 rounds. Both men are in training, Hennessey at Canoble Lake and Flaherty at Lake Quinsigamond, and the sports of the Merrimack Valley are waiting patiently for the date. A great number of them will be present from Lawrence, for beside the big go there will be an eight-round preliminary contest between Peter Brooks of Lawrence and Jimmie Stewart of Manchester, both of whom have boxed here before. Brooks' appearance guarantee is up at The Sun office, and Stewart's expected today and the men thus will surely appear. Manager Desmond adds new improvements to the place after each meeting, and without exaggeration now he has the finest little athletic club in all New England.

There is talk of a match between George Gardner and Tom Moriarty, but nothing definite has been heard concerning it.

Joe Flaherty is matched to go with Patsey Sweeney of Manchester, N. H., in that city on July 4. If the match takes place in daylight, as is expected, Flaherty ought to be a winner with ease.

Some joker has suggested to the Fourth of July committee that they offer a prize for an open air go between John Dion and Tom McLaughlin as one of the features of the celebration.

Bouts this week:

Friday.

Eddie Connolly vs. Tim Kearns, New York.

Unknown vs. Byers, Chicago.

Saturday.

Joe Fairburn vs. Kid Broad, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty vs. Charlie Miner, Brooklyn.

Martin Flaherty goes at it again on Saturday night. I met him a few days ago, and found him in fine condition. Let's hope he gets a square deal this time. He can't be licked any other way.

Jeffries' star is in the ascendant, and for some time to come, we hope. The result of the big mill gives the boxing premiership of the world to one who was born in the Buckeye state, and who lives with his family in Golden Gate precincts. It gives immense satisfaction to all true sport lovers to see the laurels of championship, worn by a true American boy, and one who richly won them. Jeffries proved himself the superlative artist and won on sheer merit. It comes as a good omen for the future that the picture scheme was cut out after being tried once. From the tap of the gong Fitz assumed the offensive, until his stamina had gone, and then, knowing that defeat was inevitable, his protruded jaw gave big Jim the chance of a life time, which he did not fail to accept.

Jeffries had been "tipped" on the power of Fitz's right, and never gave the Kangaroo an opportunity to "cross" by leading his right until the knockout was assured. Jeff was several shades faster than when he was prevented from sparring publicly here in February, and knew just what he had to do to defeat Fitz. He showed no sign of fear, even when Fitz was rushing and boring in for openings for that terrible "solar plexus" punch. Fitz did land this famous blow, but never with the strength that he possessed at Carson City against Corbett. All the sign that Jeffries gave that the punch had hurt was by a suppressed grunt. Stamina, condition, ability and youth tell the story. Fitz had gone the pace—and a rapid one, at that—the past two years and was not as good as when he fought Corbett. Of this there is no doubt, but it does not detract from Jeffries' victory in the least.

Fitz was considered dangerous by Jeffries himself, and he best knew that point when face to face with Bob. Jeff held that right of his chained to his side and cut the old 'un down with his lusty left hand. It was almost entirely with the south paw that Fitz was rendered hors de combat, the finishing touches alone being given with the right. If Jeffries had used his right when Fitz was strong in the early rounds, there might be another tale to tell. But it is by results that the story is told, and Jeffries is readily received as a better man than Fitzsimmons.

Tommy Ryan, the crack Syracuse middle, announces that he is ready to meet Kid McCoy within three weeks for the middleweight championship. Ryan says he wants McCoy to come into the ring at regulation middleweight, and not lay claim to go at catchweights.

John P. Daly, the old 125-pound amateur champion of New England, and a popular member of the former Trimount A. C., than whom no club ever turned out a likelier lot of champion athletes in the early '90's, has gone to Asheville, N. C., for a few week's rest. A monster testimonial and reception for Mr. Daly is being planned, to take place on his return, the affair to be given by his old friends of the Trimount A. C., and a host throughout the city. Daly was a splendid boxer, and won the American championship at 125 pounds from Fred Schnaseing of New York at Music Hall in 1891.

The New York Journal says:

"Martin Flaherty, the Lowell (Mass.) lightweight, is in big demand just now. Martin is known to be in first-rate shape and clubs East and West are in communication with his manager, Charley Harvey, with a view to procuring his services. The Brooklyn clubs New Haven and Baltimore, have all made bids for Flaherty and somebody else, and Harvey is considering them all. He cannot act definitely right away, however, with the out-of-town people as he has made a match for his man and Charley Miner of this city, to fight at the Pelican club next Saturday night, at 108 pounds. Miner appreciates the difficulty of the proposition he is called upon to solve in this instance and is working sincerely to get into shape."

Billy Gardiner boxes Martin Flaherty eight fast rounds daily while the latter is training for Miner. Martin says Billy is a coming world beater and thinks highly of him as a sparring partner. Martin is negotiating with the manager of Frank Zimpher of Buffalo for a match with Billy.

HAMILTON PRINT WORKS.

The Hamilton print works are shut down for a week or more, during stock taking.

There are more than 1000 operatives affected by the shut down which is semi-annual.

The North Ends in defeating the Walbrooks Saturday, no doubt are the champion juvenile team of the city. There has been great rivalry between the two teams, so Manager Callahan must give in the O'Brien Colts are his superiors.

Mr. John McCluskey of Medford visited relatives in this city Saturday and Sunday.

Employes of Boston and Maine Happy.

NEW SCHEDULE TOOK EFFECT JUNE 1.

Increase Voluntary on Part of the Road.

Employes in some of the departments of the Boston & Maine railroad have recently received an increase in their wages, says a Manchester despatch.

This increase is not general and affects only certain branches and divisions. In a sense, it cannot be considered as a raise, but an equalization, employes in all departments of the service have been receiving from 10 to 25 per cent. more on some divisions than on others. For example: The pay of way freight conductors on the North Weare branch has been thirty-five cents per day less than on the Eastern division, although the work is as exacting and the hours as long; in some cases longer.

So far, the equalization affects only conductors, brakemen and towermen. Conductors and brakemen on the Portsmouth, North Weare and Suncook valley roads are among the fortunate ones.

The conductors on these branches have been raised twenty-five cents a day. This applies to both coal and way freight conductors. Passenger conductors do not profit by the advance. Brakemen on these branches are benefited also, their pay being increased fifteen cents. The yard conductors are raised ten cents a day and the towermen, some fifteen, some twenty-five cents. The circular sent to the yard authorities in this city states that the raise shall go into effect June 1.

There will be but three crews affected by the raise in the Manchester railroad yards, but the applications are pouring into the main office by the scores from all grades of railroad employes asking for a raise to be as much in proportion as that already granted. As the recent action was entirely voluntary on the part of the Boston & Maine, the engineers, firemen and other employes hope that their turn will come soon.

A well-known local railroad man said last night that as far as he knew only the Southern division would be affected. Anyway, but few crews in New Hampshire would be benefited by the increase. In the conversation a peculiar state of things was disclosed; peculiar, at least, as far as the uninitiated are concerned. Railroad employes are paid higher wages in Boston than in Manchester and Manchester railroad men receive more pay in Manchester than they do in Concord, and so on the farther north one gets. The argument used is that it costs more to live in or near Boston than in Manchester and that this cheapness of living is more apparent the farther north the line goes, and the wages are said to be smaller in proportion.

OPERATOR ADMITS

MATTHEW MURRAY CONFESSES HE WAS TO BLAME FOR THE WRECK AT AYER.

Matthew Murray, the operator in Tower 9 on the morning of the wreck on the Boston and Albany railroad company, at Rensselaer and who has tendered his resignation to the railroad company, called on Superintendent Wales of the Boston and Albany railroad today to learn if the rumor was true that Engineer Nixdorf of the passenger train had been suspended, or discharged. Murray was informed that such was not the case. Murray told Superintendent Wales that he called to exonerate Nixdorf from all blame in the accident as he (Murray) was alone responsible. He then explained how the accident occurred that he made the mistake, but that the railroad company made the greater mistake when they changed the interlocking to the present system of switches. Under the former system it would be impossible for the operator in the tower to turn an "all right" signal to the passenger engineer while the Central Hudson freight train was on the cross-over. The interlocking system was in use previous to the burning down of the tower some time ago. When the tower was rebuilt, the present system was substituted.

POOR CHILDREN'S FRIEND.

A meeting of the committee on Children's Excursions was held yesterday afternoon in the Courier-Citizen office and a report was made of the work done two years ago.

The Day Nursery gave $300 and there were contributed $53 by individuals. The trip cost $152, so that a balance of $231 was left.

It was voted upon the motion of the Rev. Dr. Chambre to turn the money over to the Day Nursery with the suggestion that it be spent for the benefit of the poor children and their mothers. Thanks were also extended to all who in any way contributed to the success of the excursion.

WALTHAM, AYER AND PEPPERELL.

The Waltham, Ayer and Pepperell street railway was fully organized last night when the directors met and completed arrangements for the construction of the road. The meeting was held at Boston, and the following are the officers for the ensuing year: Frank S. Arnold of Malden, president; Arnold Blaser of Cambridge, vice-president; Warren F. Freeman of Boston, treasurer; H. F. Downs of Malden, secretary.

THE SOUTH ENDS

ARE GOING TO PLAY THE SOUTH BOSTONS ON SATURDAY.

Next Saturday afternoon the Fair Grounds will be the scene of another fine exhibition of base ball. The South Ends have booked for their opponents on that day the strong South Boston team, the finest semi-professional team in the state and which has yet to sustain a defeat.

The South Ends are determined to play none but the best teams throughout the state and the public must be assured by this time that such is the case. They will have next Saturday an opportunity to see a team play that has defeated the Newtownes, Mt. Washingtons of Everett and has played a ten-inning game with the Carters of Franklin. The South Ends will play two games next Saturday. In the morning, they play the South Bostons at the Locust street grounds in Boston and in the afternoon both teams will play at the Fair Grounds. A big guarantee had to be given this club to bring them here; in fact, the largest yet given to any team that has played in Lowell.

The morning game at South Boston will start at ten o'clock and Moore and Roach will do the pitching for the South Ends. Both teams will take the 1 o'clock train to Lowell and the game here will start at the usual time, 3 o'clock. The South Ends will put Billy Connors in the box in the afternoon game here and backed up with fine support, he will receive from the remainder of the team, he will make things interesting for the team from Boston. Hugh Farley will catch both games for the South Ends. Good fast ball playing is being given the Lowell public by the South End team and the attendance will even be larger than the usual big crowd which turns out to see the local cracks.

MR. MATHEWS

WILL BE THE ORATOR AT BOSTON —THE PROGRAM.

Mayor Quincy has named Hon. Nathan Matthews, Jr., ex-mayor, to be the orator for the city of Boston on the Fourth of July. He has also named Rev. John S. Lindsay, rector of St. Paul's church, to be chaplain of the occasion.

It is probable that the exercises will be held this year at Tremont Temple. For several years the Fourth of July oration has been given in Faneuil hall, but the reconstruction of the building which is now under way, precludes the holding of exercises there this year.

The Fourth of July committee's program for athletic sports, entertainments, boat races, fireworks, etc., is now in the hands of the mayor. His honor will probably alter the items considerably, making what he thinks will be a more equitable distribution of the $11,000 appropriated for the day.

As was the case a year ago, the mayor intends to personally take charge of the arrangements for the children's entertainments, and to that end he has appointed John Graham to carry out his ideas. Mr. Graham is well known in theatre circles as a promoter of entertainments. It is the mayor's intention to have only wholesome, refined entertainments provided for the children.

GRANITEVILLE

THE GUN CLUB WILL HOLD FORTH ON SATURDAY.

There will be lots of fun in Graniteville next Saturday afternoon and this item is published for the benefit of the nervous residents who may prefer to be out of town on this particular afternoon. On that day the Graniteville Gun club will have its first annual tournament and the rod and gun clubs of North Chelmsford and Lowell have been invited. The other surrounding towns will also be well represented and it is expected that there will be several close contests in the match contests. Manager Charlie Sargent and Secretary John B. Carmichael, with the assistance of every other member of the club, are doing their utmost to make the event one of enjoyment to all who attend and a special invitation is extended to the ladies. There will be refreshments served on the grounds and all present will be invited to assist in having a general good time.

Did you ever See a Snow Storm in Summer?

We never did; but we have seen the clothing at this time of the year so covered with dandruff that it looked as if it had been out in a regular snowstorm.

No need of this snowstorm.

As the summer sun would melt the falling snow so will

Ayer's Hair Vigor

melt these flakes of dandruff in the scalp. It goes further than this: it prevents their formation.

It has still other properties: it will restore color to gray hair in just ten times out of every ten cases.

And it does even more: it feeds and nourishes the roots of the hair. Thin hair becomes thick hair; and short hair becomes long hair.

We have a book on the Hair and Scalp. It is yours, for the asking.

If you do not obtain all the benefits you expected from the use of the Vigor, write the doctor about it. Probably there is some difficulty with your general system which may be easily removed. Address DR. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

COMMITTEE MET

Another Step in Fourth of July Celebration.

GOOD SUMS APPROPRIATED FOR FEATURES.

Parade, Muster and Fireworks Provided.

BUTLER AMES ELECTED CHIEF MARSHAL.

Headquarters Remain at City Hall.

The Fourth of July committee held its second meeting in the committee room at city hall last evening with the usual large gathering on the outside.

For a starter, President Clark announced some of his committees as follows:

On parade—Alderman Miskella, Councilmen Mullaney, Whittet, Walker and Hogan.

On Bremen's muster, Alderman McNulty, Councilman Lyman, and Messrs. Turcotte, Fels, and Donahue.

On music—Messrs. Sturtevant, Turcotte, Fels, Donohue and Councilman Lyman, Walker and Whittet.

On decorations—Mr. Fels, Mr. Sturtevant, Mr. Hogan, Alderman Miskella, and Councilman Walker.

On parachute jump—Councilmen Mullaney and Lyman, Aldermen McNulty and Chapin.

Alderman Chapin declined the fireworks committee in favor of Mr. Fels, claiming that Mr. Fels knew more about fireworks than any other member.

Mr. Mullaney dropped out of parade committee in favor of Mr. Fels but the latter declined, as he did not care to serve on too many committees.

Mr. Sturtevant produced a schedule of how much money each sub-committee should have.

Mr. Hogan suggested a novel form of children's entertainment. He stated that the number of children who generally attended children's entertainments was comparatively small while the majority of the children congregate on the common. The best place, therefore, in his judgment, would be to have a merry-go-round and flying horses with free tickets for the youngsters.

Mr. Sturtevant believed in a free children's entertainment under a tent, a continuous performance, distributing tickets with the school teachers. Alderman Miskella favored an indoor entertainment of marionettes and other juvenile features. Mr. Turcotte suggested hiring barges and taking all the children in the parade.

President Clark called attention to the fact that bids were in for the official program.

Councilman Walker suggested that a bond be furnished from the parties who got the program. Mr. Fels thought that security was necessary.

Mr. Sturtevant believed that if an official program was to be got out, it should be got out by the committee by publishing the official program in the papers and letting those who wanted to go ahead and publish their programs.

The remainder of the committee seemed to favor the idea of letting out the program to the highest bidder so as to get in as much money as possible.

Councilman Walker moved that whoever gets the contract must put up the amount he bids within three days otherwise his contract is null and void. It was carried unanimously.

The bids for the official program were then opened and an attempt to have interested parties withdraw was killed.

The bids were as follows: John W. Kennedy, $50; W. J. Clark, $51; Frank Cox, $42; Walter Whitaker and John H. Shepard, $60.

Mr. Cox, the $42 man, forgot to sign his name, but he was known and his bid appears.

Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd who bid $60 not only agreed to give surety, but also specified an edition of 10,000 copies, 1,000 for the use of the committee and the rest to be distributed by them, the program to be 16 pages, exclusive of the covers, to contain half tone cuts of prominent men and public buildings and guaranteed even a certain kind of paper, while Mr. Clark who bid $51 gave no specifications. The contract was awarded to Messrs. Whitaker and Shepherd with Councilman Mullaney alone opposing in favor of Mr. Clark.

On motion of Mr. Hogan, the chairman was made a member ex-officio of all committees.

To facilitate matters Mr. Sturtevant moved that the following amounts be appropriated:

Music for parade and concerts, $800; fireworks, $900; parade, $800; tub contests and expenses, $500; children's entertainment, $200; parachute jump, $150; salutes, $150; incidentals, $400; total, $4,900.

The motion was withdrawn by Mr. Sturtevant as it was opposed.

Alderman Chapin moved that the committee on music be appropriated $900 immediately as the bands must be hired at once.

Mr. Fels moved a 15-minutes' recess.

Alderman Miskella moved an adjournment until Wednesday night in order to give the sub-committees a chance to meet.

Mr. Fels' motion prevailed and some of the sub-committees met.

It was 10.15 o'clock when the committee came to order again.

The committee on parade reported with a request for $1000, which was $140.88 less than was expended in 1897, said Alderman Miskella. Several names had been considered for chief marshal, he continued and it had been voted unanimously to recommend Lieut. Col. Butler Ames.

Mr. Sturtevant then moved, as a preliminary step in the matter of appropriations, that the children's entertainment be given up.

Mr. Fels seconded the motion, but Mr. Hogan made a plea for the children, and suggested that the saving be made somewhere else.

Alderman Miskella also spoke for the children, saying that the children took a great interest in the day, and should not be sacrificed to the parade.

"It is the children's day from early morn till night," said Mr. Sturtevant. "If the parade is made a success they will enjoy it, and their parents as well."

Mr. Hogan again spoke of the merry-go-rounds for the children, and the motion to abandon the children's entertainment was defeated.

Councilman Lyman asked whether there would be any special prize for the firemen in the parade.

Alderman McNulty said that there were special prizes for any organization, but not for them particularly.

Councilman Lyman said that he was thinking only of the success of the parade. A special prize, he believed, would result in a larger number of firemen in line, and better uniforms.

Alderman McNulty said that the firemen would have a good chance to win the prize for the best feature.

It was voted that the appropriation for the parade be $550, and it was voted unanimously that Lieut. Col Ames be the chief marshal.

The mayor was made a member, ex-officio, of the general committee.

Alderman McNulty, for the committee on firemen's muster, asked for $600 instead of $500, and said that the prizes proposed were $225, $150 and $100, leaving $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Hogan moved to amend that $525 be granted, the prizes to be $200, $125 and $75, with $125 for incidentals.

Mr. Lyman said that the firemen would be with the city all day, in the parade in the morning, and on the common in the afternoon. "Thousands of people will come to the city with them," he said. "Where can you get more for your money?"

After minor discussion it was voted to grant the $550.

The committee on fireworks asked for $500, the amount originally recommended. It was voted to grant it.

The committee on music, through Mr. Sturtevant, reported that it thought that four bands would do, and asked for $500.

The committee on parachute jump reported progress and asked for $175. It was so voted.

Mr. Fels, for the committee on decorations, reported that but little money would be needed. The citizens would be asked, through the public press, to decorate their houses and places of business.

The committee adjourned at 10.50 o'clock, to meet at 7.30 o'clock on Thursday night.

Until further notice, the headquarters of the general committee will be at city hall.

The committee on parade has prepared a rough draft of prizes, from $150 down, but it is subject to change.

The firemen's prizes for the muster will be $200, $150 and $100.

Enough militia companies to form a regiment are expected in the parade.

CO. M. REGULAR MEETING—BOWLS AND BOWLERS.

The regular weekly drill of Company M was held last night at the armory and at its conclusion a meeting was held in the company rooms for the purpose of determining whether it would turn out on Fourth of July. No action was taken. An invitation was received from Company C to participate in the competitive drill at the Fair Grounds on the afternoon of July 4, but in view of the possibilities of taking part in the morning parade, it was thought that the men would not be in proper condition to do themselves justice in the afternoon. Hence it was voted not to accept the invitation.

In the military duck pin tournament at the armory last evening Team One of Co. C defeated Team Two of Co. G by superior work in the second string. Lieutenant Kittredge is beginning to think that there are no flies on his team as ..... is its second consecutive victory. The score:

A BRIDE DESERTED

She is Now Vainly Waiting His Return in a Boston Hotel—He Took $300 of Her Money and Jewelry.

By Associated Press to The Sun.

BOSTON, June 14—The police of Boston have been looking since Saturday for a man named Henry Carter. Saturday Carter is alleged to have abandoned a wife only three days wedded, and in addition is charged by his deserted bride with stealing her money and jewelry, as well as her dress suit case.

The bride is of Swedish birth. Since coming to this country she has done housework in New York and by living frugally had saved $300 which she had in a New York savings bank. In addition to this she claims to have $1000 in a bank in Sweden.

Two years ago she met Henry Carter. The man made violent love to her and she came to the conclusion that she reciprocated his affection.

As the result of the attachment the couple were married Wednesday evening at the Gustavus Adolphus church, New York. The groom was 29, the bride a few years older.

On the wedding night, by various excuses, he obtained possession of her gold watch and a ring set with gems. She had withdrawn her $300 from the bank and this he also took charge of.

The couple came to Boston Wednesday night by boat, going to an Eliot street hotel.

Saturday morning Carter went out to look for rooms, since which time he has not been seen.

The baggage of the pair had been left at the Park Square station and when the bride went to look it up she found that her husband had taken away everything but her trunk.

Carter claimed to be a reporter on a New York paper and gave as a reason for coming to Boston that he was to represent the paper in this city.

The police were notified, but up to the present time have been unable to obtain any clew of the missing man.

In the meantime the bride is penniless in a strange city but anxious to get back to New York.

Victim of the Billerica Drowning Accident.

The body of Charles H. Allen, who was drowned in Billerica, Mass., June 8, was received in this city late Saturday evening, and taken to the parlors of F. L. Gray, says a Manchester despatch.

The funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chapel at Pine Grove cemetery. The Rev. N. L. Colby was the officiating clergyman. The casket was draped with the Stars and Stripes. The Parker Veterans were in attendance, six of them being the bearers—Charles M. M. Whitney, George W. Williams, Charles E. Philbrook, John G. Hutchinson, F. O. McPherson and Charles L. Fuller. J. A. Jaquith was funeral director. Burial was in the Parker Veteran lot. Taps were sounded over the grave by Comrade Herman Greager.

Among the floral offerings were a mound from R. D. Moore; bouquet, Charles W. Atwood, and a bouquet from friends.

NORTH BILLERICA

BRILLIANT WEDDING OF JOHN LATHAM AND MISS NANCY WALKER.

Mr. John Latham and Miss Nancy Walker, two well known young people of the town, were united in marriage yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Baptist church, Rev. E. E. Scates officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Bella Walker and the best man was Mr. George Latham. The wedding marches were played on the organ by Mr. Thomas Batson and the ushers at the church and house were Messrs. Louis Perry, George Colson, Albert Holt and Fred Auty. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother in Billerica street. Refreshments were served on the grounds. There were many gifts.

Mr. Latham is employed in the Talbot mills, and is a prominent member of the Baptist church and superintendent of the Sunday school and the bride is prominent in social and church circles.

Mr. Felix Clancy of Danvers Centre and Mr. Charles O'Connell of Peabody paid a visit to friends in this city Saturday and Sunday, coming on their wheels as far as Reading, thence to Lowell by rail.

POLE LOCATIONS

Opposed by Jenness Street Residents Yesterday.

Aldermen Wilder and Chapin of the committee on wires gave a hearing yesterday afternoon on the petition of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company for pole locations in Jenness street, and the petitions of 21 remonstrants against granting the same. Nobody appeared to represent the company, and the remonstrants controlled the hearing.

E. J. Carter stated that the four poles at present in the street are not wanted by the residents and that they object to any more being set up.

C. F. Joyce appeared for himself and S. E. Robins, Robert Gilmore, Harry Kittredge and others. He said that one of the poles in the street at present is located nearly in his driveway. He did not know of anybody who wanted the poles.

Charles F. Richardson said that there was but one telephone on the street, and that the poles were put in before the street was accepted. He objected to any more poles as a damage to the street.

Alderman Chapin suggested that if the poles were a damage to the property, then property all over the city must be damaged, for poles were necessary where there were telphones.

Merton A. Smith, representing Mrs. Eliza Smith, said that if the people didn't want telephones on the street, they should not be obliged to have poles.

"You wouldn't object to an electric light pole?" asked Alderman Chapin.

Mr. Smith said that he would object to one in front of his front door.

"I don't want a telephone, and I don't want a telephone pole," said C. H. Howard. "The poles on the street are in such condition now that the people are obliged to walk in single file on the sidewalk."

Rev. D. A. McPhie spoke of the poles in the street at present. He said that they stood at the angle of 45 degrees, and people had run up against them to their own injury. The residents of the street did not want any more poles whether they were polished or painted, and, he said, they proposed to fight them to the end.

Charles A. Gates said that he agreed with the other remonstrants. The hearing was then declared closed.

BASE BALL

The Brooklyn batsmen, almost to a man, stand close to the plate. Many of the Bostons not only stand back, but draw back when the ball is pitched. Hamilton stands far from the plate but he always steps in to meet the ball.

Boston could not see anything in Magee a few years ago, when he pitched in Brockton, but the late "Billy" McGunnigle, then manager of the Louisville team, sized him up as a comer. Now Selee thinks he is about Boston's size and would be only too glad to grab him.

Manager Smith of Portland is very sore over the showing made by his club on the trip and it will be interesting to note the excuse he will make to the Portland papers. Manager Irwin claims that Smith and his players made a farce of the game at Manchester yesterday by senseless kicking at Umpire Duffy, the object being to make it appear that the Portlands were being roasted. Smith threatened to take his team home rather than play in Manchester today with Duffy officiating. Irwin told him to go home. Smith had the nerve to claim in Taunton that he should have won both games in Newport. The nonsense in this statement is shown by the scores of the games, 8 to 2, and 6 to 0. It looks like a bad case of rattles on Smith's part. He has signed Jim Smith and released Counihan. Clarke and Johnstone. Tighe will captain the team henceforth.
